EXPLANATORY.

THE general scheme of this work is to give all information in as concise and clear a manner as possible compatible with practical utility, for this reason all towns have been placed in alphabetical order, and under each town again all the information as to the publications in the town has also been arranged strictly in alphabetical order, special reference being made to publisher's own announcements at end of book. The information has been collated at a great expenditure of time and money. Upwards of 12,000 letters and information forms have been sent out. Proofs of each of the separate lists have been corrected by local experts. The foreign lists have been corrected by competent men in each country. Particulars as to produce, trade, &c., of each town and country at home, abroad, and in the Colonies and India, have been supplied by the best authorities and revised with great care.

Throughout the British Isles information as to market days, distance of towns from London, Members of Parliament, Industries, is given under each town, and at the head of the County Lists, the various Industries, &c., of each County is given. First in order in the newspaper lists will be found a complete list of papers published in London and the suburbs, next English, Irish, Scotch, Welsh, and the Islands, each list being distinct, so that each country is complete in itself. The magazines, monthly, quarterly, and annual publications, and class publications, which have been carefully revised and arranged in alphabetical order, follow; a carefully-revised list of Foreign, Colonial, and American Papers; Publishers' own announcements; and last a complete list of papers published in each County, with reference folios to General List.

Commencing at page 645 will be found upwards of 1,200 publishers' advertisements, containing special information as to prices, &c., of their journals. These will amply repay perusal by intending advertisers.

The prices given by the various publications are the usual scale rates, but it is important to note that in all cases Sell's Agency can give very considerable reductions by reason of the large amount of business done with the various Newspapers. Advertisements to the value of upwards of £2,000 weekly are regularly sent out.

PREFACE.

AGAIN I have to offer my hearty thanks to a wide circle of friends and clients, who have repeated former kindnesses, and have continued to encourage me by words of praise for the DICTIONARY OF THE WORLD'S PRESS.

This Volume will be found to contain what I believe will prove to be the completest list of Newspapers yet published—and the information given regarding the prices for advertisements in the various publications will also, I trust, be valuable to the daily increasing company of advertisers.

In these days of intense pressure in every branch of business, anything which conduces to the simplification of detail, or the easing of labour and saving of time and effort, is a distinct gain; and therefore I have, in the following pages, endeavoured to give my advertising readers the benefit of all that experience could teach, while for the general reader I have introduced new features, and greatly extended references, as well as fresh literary matter bearing on recent phases of commerce; in addition to which are practical articles upon the Law of Libel, and features regarding the work of War Correspondents, War Artists, and others, whose untiring zeal and devotion to their duties has to so great an extent helped to make the press of to-day what it is.

There is a growing tendency in these times of desperate competition in many trades to dispense to a considerable degree with the agent, broker or middleman, as he is often called. This has been attempted by a few advertisers who have hoped, by avoiding the advertising agent, to pocket the commission he receives from the papers, and at the same time secure equally "bold advertisement" and success. But the experience of the few who have tried this plan is one that is not likely to induce others to follow—and the mariner who goes to sea without his compass is not more likely to suffer shipwreck than the man of business who sets about advertising on a large scale without seeking the advice and counsel of an experienced advertising agent.

The fact that some of the largest and most prosperous advertisers whom I have on my books are customers who have been with me from the time of my commencing business, is a proof that even after years of continuous publicity, the wise advertiser does not endeavour to sail his ship alone, but still looks to the advertisement agent as his guide, philosopher, and friend.

To those gentlemen associated with the press who have kindly favoured me with information of new literary and journalistic enterprises, and of changes in proprietaries, titles, or places of publication of newspapers, magazines, or other periodicals, I beg to tender my sincere thanks.

In conclusion, I desire to express the hope that should anything be wanting in this book, or fuller information needed by any of my readers—if it is in my power to furnish the deficiency, I shall be most happy to do so on application.

THE WORLD'S PRESS.

THE social and political progress of the last half century may be estimated by the vast growth of the newspaper press during that period. The remission of the taxes that were formerly imposed upon periodicals of the nature of newspapers—the duty which had to be paid for the Government stamp which authorized their publication,—and the heavy duty on the advertisements that they contained, were a burden so heavy that it greatly restricted and at one time prohibited, all enterprise in furnishing news and information on current events in a cheap and popular form. The remission of these imposts gave to periodical literature a remarkable impetus, the results of which, in increasing education and developing the intelligence of the population are incalculable. The remission of the duty on foreign paper coming to this country was effected in 1861, at the time that Mr. Cobden had concluded a commercial treaty with France. The terms of which, it was understood, included the removal of import duties concurrently with the remission of the excise on home made paper. Many of the London newspapers, but not the Times, Daily Telegraph, and Daily Chronicle, are now printed on paper made in Sweden and Germany. A few years ago they were all fully supplied from Lancashire, and some do even now get part of their material from paper-makers in that county, but by far the greater portion of the paper used comes from abroad. Six years ago the publishers of most newspapers were paying at least threepence halfpenny a pound for the paper supplied to them. Now twopence and seven-eighths and twopence halfpenny, less a discount, is considered a fair figure.

The Times has always maintained its character for high-class paper. More expensive paper is employed for the Times than for any other newspaper in the world. The Daily Chronicle possesses paper mills at Sittingbourne, where is made also the paper for Lloyd's Weekly. At Dartford are situated the mills of the Daily Telegraph, which boast three paper-machines 100 inches wide. The mills give employment to two hundred people, and the production of this mill averages about 100 tons a week.

The paper supply of a newspaper is a matter of such high importance, that every journal makes it a rule never to depend wholly upon a single paper mill. The publishers keep always two, sometimes three, makers upon their books. The reason for this is not far to seek. It would be the ruin of a newspaper to stop or delay publication. One or other of these it would be obliged to do if its paper was not forthcoming at the proper time. Supposing a publisher were dealing for his entire supply with one mill only, a breakdown in the mill's machinery might close the works for weeks, and thus place their customers in a position of great difficulty. Each mill when making for a newspaper, must always be in advance, and keep stock on hand to provide for emergencies.

It is not in England alone that the remission of the "taxes on knowledge" has had this effect. In almost a precise ratio to the freedom, the progress, and the civilization of a community the people have demanded and have been provided with the chronicle of the hour, the history of their own time, the record of work day-by-day; and the experience of half the world has, in some sense, become the experience of each individual who could read as he ran.

According to some interesting statistics, lately compiled, concerning the number of newspapers and other periodicals published on the globe, the total number appears to be 35,000, thus having one to every 28,000 inhabitants. Europe has 20,000 newspapers, Germany being first with 5,500, of which 800 are dailies, the oldest being the Post-Zeitung, first published at Frankfort in 1616, whilst the paper with the largest circulation is the Berliner Tagblatt, which prints 55,000 copies daily. Great Britain comes next with 4,000 newspapers, magazines, &c., of which 200 are issued daily. France has 4,092, of which 360 only are dailies. Italy comes fourth in the list with 1,400 newspapers, of which 200 are published at Rome, 140 at Milan, 120 at Naples, 94 at Turin, and 79 at Florence. The oldest Italian paper is the Gazzetta di Genova, first published in 1797. In Austria 1,200 newspapers are published, of which 150 are dailies, the most remarkable of Austrian journals being one called Acta Comparationis Literarum Universarum, which is a review of comparative literature, with contributors in every part of the world, each of whose articles is printed in its native tongue. Spain has about 850 journals, of which a third are political. Russia possesses only 800 newspapers, of which 200 are printed at St. Petersburg and 75 at Moscow. Several of the Russian journals are printed in three different languages, and there are four published in French, three in German, two in Latin, and two in Hebrew, besides several in Polish, Finnish, Tartar, and Georgian. Greece has upwards of 600 newspapers, of which 54 appear at Athens. Switzerland has 450 newspapers, and Belgium and Holland about 300 each.

There are 3,000 journals published in Asia, of which no fewer than 2,000 appear in Japan. In China the only newspapers not published by residents at the treaty ports are four—the Ning-Pao, an official journal published at Pekin; the Chen-Pao and Hu-Pao, published at Shanghai; and the Government journal of Korea, brought out last year. There are three papers printed in French Cochin China, and one appears in Tonquin—L'Avenir du Tonkin; the rest of the newspapers credited to Asia, appearing in India, with the exception of six published in Persia. Africa has only 206 papers, of which 30 appear in Egypt, and the remainder in the colonies of England, France, &c. Australia has 700 journals, nearly all published in English, and the Sandwich Islands boast of eight, of which five are in English and three in the native tongue,

London, with its population of over 4,000,000, takes precedence of all other great cities in its list of periodical publications. These have an annual circulation of about 1,017,000,000 copies. Paris, with its far smaller population, issues periodicals which have an annual circulation of 1,100,000,000 copies. It is estimated that the journalistic products of Paris amount annually to almost one-tenth of the entire issue of the globe. New York and Brooklyn, with a population nearly two-thirds that of Paris produce publications with an annual circulation of about 516,000,000. Berlin, Vienna, Madrid, Brussels, Rome, show a gradual diminution; and St. Petersburg and Moscow may be said to come latest in the list of great circulations.

About five-sevenths of all the periodicals published in the United States are weekly papers. The number of monthlies greatly exceeds the number of dailies. New York State claims about one-eighth of all the periodicals printed in the country, and is the head-quarters of the American press. The number of periodicals of all sorts published there is not less than 625. Chicago is next, Philadelphia third, and Boston fourth.

In the vast number, variety, and scope of the newspaper press of the world, and particularly of the leading nations of Europe, may be seen the results of that vast system of communication between the people of all nations which has been organized by means of railways and steam navigation. The consequence of this rapid and continuous intercourse has been the establishment of postal and telegraphic schemes by which the communities of every country may secure those commercial advantages that are the outcome of extended trade, and the regular and complete interchange of commodities demanded by the growth of civilization and the consequent development of free markets for the industrial and agricultural productions of the world.

Each year has been marked by some new enterprise, and the traders and manufacturers of every industrial centre seek for new outlets for their merchandise.

All the world is in competition, but that competition itself creates new and incessant demands.

Numberless articles which only a few years ago were reckoned only among occasional luxuries have now become almost daily necessities. The choice products of every land find markets where they were formerly almost unknown; and so the natural advantages of each country are developed to the common advantage, and the earth is replenished by the stimulus given to labour and the competition which causes unceasing inquiry, thus leading to the investigation of the means of economical production and the adaptation of science even to the humblest handicrafts.

This condition of things, and the enormous growth of enterprise, no less than the craving for intelligence, make newspapers a necessity in every civilized community. In the great centres of activity the daily newspaper is an epitome of the events that are happening in every portion of the globe.

For a merely nominal sum we are in possession of the current history of the world; and, to the trading community, the markets and the advertising columns of "The World's Press" are not only significant, but indispensable.

By the reports and the announcements which they contain the conditions of demand and supply can alone be profitably regulated, and by their means alone can the seller and the buyer be brought into immediate relation.

It will be seen, then, that the present volume—in which every important newspaper in the world is designated, and "the World's Press" indicated in such a manner as to bring it within the scope of every advertiser who seeks to take advantage of the world's markets—is of no little importance as a book of frequent reference.

At the same time, the various magazines and periodicals which are the more particular distinction of our own country, in the field of letters, offer peculiar advantages of their own, not only in bringing the announcements of advertisers immediately under the notice of those to whom they specially appeal in this country but before readers in other countries, and in the colonies, to which English periodicals are regularly transmitted.

It would clearly be impossible to comprise in any single volume all the information which may be needed by those who seek the aid of "The World's Press" to give publicity to their enterprises, or to make known their requirements, but in the least instance valuable suggestions may be gained from an examination of the following pages.

It may here be mentioned, in reference to succeeding articles, that we are prepared to undertake the Registration of Titles, Newspapers, and Periodicals, and also the Registration of Trade Marks.

As regards arrangements for literary assistance, there are immediate facilities at this office for translations, compilation, or the composition of original articles, descriptive advertisements, circulars, and prospectuses.

In all cases, advertisers who apply to us for advice or assistance may rely upon both being freely and promptly given; and in a manner which will enable them to obtain the best results, by selecting the most suitable medium for calling attention to their claims.

"HEADS" OF THE WORLD'S PRESS.

IT cannot be considered inconsistent that the DICTIONARY OF THE WORLD'S PRESS should include a few portrait sketches of some of the heads of the great intelligence department of the day—the leaders of the world of letters who present to the public the literary, social, political, and commercial history of the hour, and bring within the compass of the columns of a daily or weekly newspaper the complete and continued chronicle of the events, enterprises, and occurrences of the whole civilized world, with such explanations or comments as enable the reader to follow the progress of the human race, and to compute the influences that affect the destinies of mankind.

The editors and leading contributors to the greater newspapers for the most part maintain a professional seclusion. Though they educate the thinking faculties, and to a great extent shape the opinions of millions of readers, they are not known to the multitude in their habit as they live, and they wisely take care to be inaccessible to curious intruders; but the pencil of the artist and the camera of the photographer have, in the majority of cases, revealed their identity and the portraits of "men of light and leading" appear in shop windows and in the pages of illustrated periodicals, so that there is now little difficulty in learning what manner of men they are in appearance. The men and women who are the heads of the world's press—that is to say, the heads of the great newspapers of the English-speaking race in England, the United States of America, and the Australian colonies—have a vast responsibility and a noble duty, and it cannot be denied that they accept the one and fulfil the other with honour, truth, and justice. It is not surprising, therefore, that readers who recognize the incalculable importance of the work often have a desire, which is not mere idle curiosity, to see the likeness of the worker.

SOME PRESS AND OTHER LITERARY CURIOSITIES.

THE following pages having been so widely appreciated, and last year's "World's Press" being out of print, I have considered it desirable to reproduce them again. The subjoined illustrations of John Forster's gifts to the nation include many things that were first of great personal interest to himself as showing the esteem in which he was held by the best men of his time, and, as a matter of course, of great interest to us; and also many things that had value, because of their relation to eminent men in more distant times. Mr. John Forster held a prominent place among the men who have done notable work for the "World's Press." He edited the Examiner while it was full of the vigour and the fame which it owed originally to Leigh Hunt and Albany Fonblanque, and when Charles Dickens so soon tired of the worry to which he was subjected as the first editor of the Daily News it was his life-long friend John Forster who succeeded him. Besides his long connection with the daily and weekly press, John Forster won for himself a special position among our standard authors by his very valuable contributions to our biographic and historical literature. It was in his "Statesmen of the Commonwealth," contributed to "Lardner's Cabinet Cyclopædia," that he first made known to readers his value as an author of research and originality; and it was afterwards by his biographies of Goldsmith (one of the most charming works in the English language), of Swift and of Walter Savage Landor, and of Charles Dickens, and the minor essays, such as those on Churchhill and Defoe, that he made for himself a unique position as the historian of English literature from the days of Queen Anne to the later days of Victoria. It is scarcely fair to him to say that he played Boswell to Dickens's Doctor Johnson. He was always more to Dickens than Boswell ever was to Johnson, and it was to him that Dickens always looked for advice and for encouragement. To many who knew him a little he was a disagreeable personality; but to those who were most intimate with him he proved himself great in helpfulness, and of steady sterling worth. In the course of his life he gathered about him books and pictures, and other memorials of prominent men in his own and in former days, and by his will these were given to the nation, and may now be seen in a way befitting the man, at South Kensington. It is difficult to know where to begin in giving these memorials, but I shall not be wrong if I give something very personal in the form of a facsimile of the postscript to a letter in which the late Sir Edwin Landseer accepted Forster's invitation to a birthday dinner, in 1845, at the "Star and Garter," Richmond. It is not difficult to make out what the artist means to say—"I hope to trot to the 'Star and Garter' in time for a bottle."

Digitized by Google

The late Daniel Maclise, R.A., was another friend of Forster and of Dickens, and the following illustration is the conclusion of a letter in which Maclise says: "My whole nose is one red fiery mass arising from a blind boil that has engendered on the very tip. I have had it a week, and not shaven for a fortnight, so that you could not know me. All the blood of my body seems exhausted to furnish this bloated spendthrift." And then he goes on :—

When Frazer's Magazine was at its best, when Carlyle and Thackeray were among its contributors, and when Dr. Maginn was its editor, Maclise, between the years 1830 and 1838, contributed a long series of portraits which have since been published as "A Gallery of Illustrious Literary Characters." Many of the original sketches for the Frazer Gallery Maclise gave to John Forster. In each of these portraits there was, with all times a touch of caricature, something characteristic of the man whose features were limned. This is clear in the portrait of Coleridge, on the corner of which Maclise has written, "S. T. Coleridge, from life. Highgate. D.M."

At the time Maclise made this portrait Coleridge was living with Mr. Gilman at the Grove, Highgate, and, as readers will remember, he died there in 1834.

Another of these portraits, the original sketch of which the artist gave to Forster, was that of Charles Lamb, the friend of Coleridge, and the admired of all thoughtful readers since. This portrait I give below.

CHARLES LAMB.

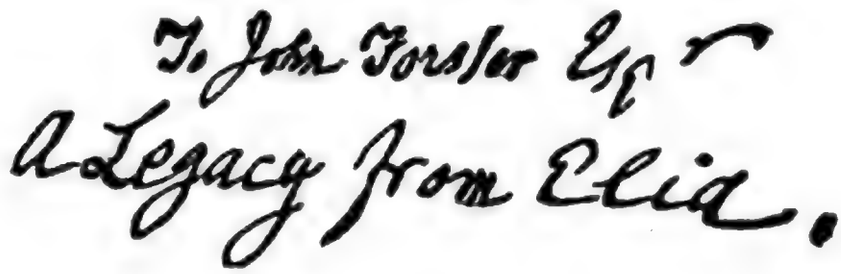
I may as well give here a facsimile of Lamb's autograph as written by Lamb on the title-page of the "Last Essays of Elia," which Forster received from the author on the publication of the book in 1883.



There is also a pencil sketch by Maclise of Thackeray when a young man, which I make room for here.

W. M. THACKERAY.

The portrait of Thomas Carlyle, which I also take from Maclise's Gallery, was sketched when Carlyle was young, and the autograph is from a letter which Carlyle wrote to Forster in 1844, and referred to a dinner which was to be given to Dickens before he left London for his tour in Italy.

A very interesting portrait is one of Lord Byron in pencil, with just a touch of colour in the face, which was drawn by Count Alfred D'Orsay, when he met Byron in Geneva in 1823.

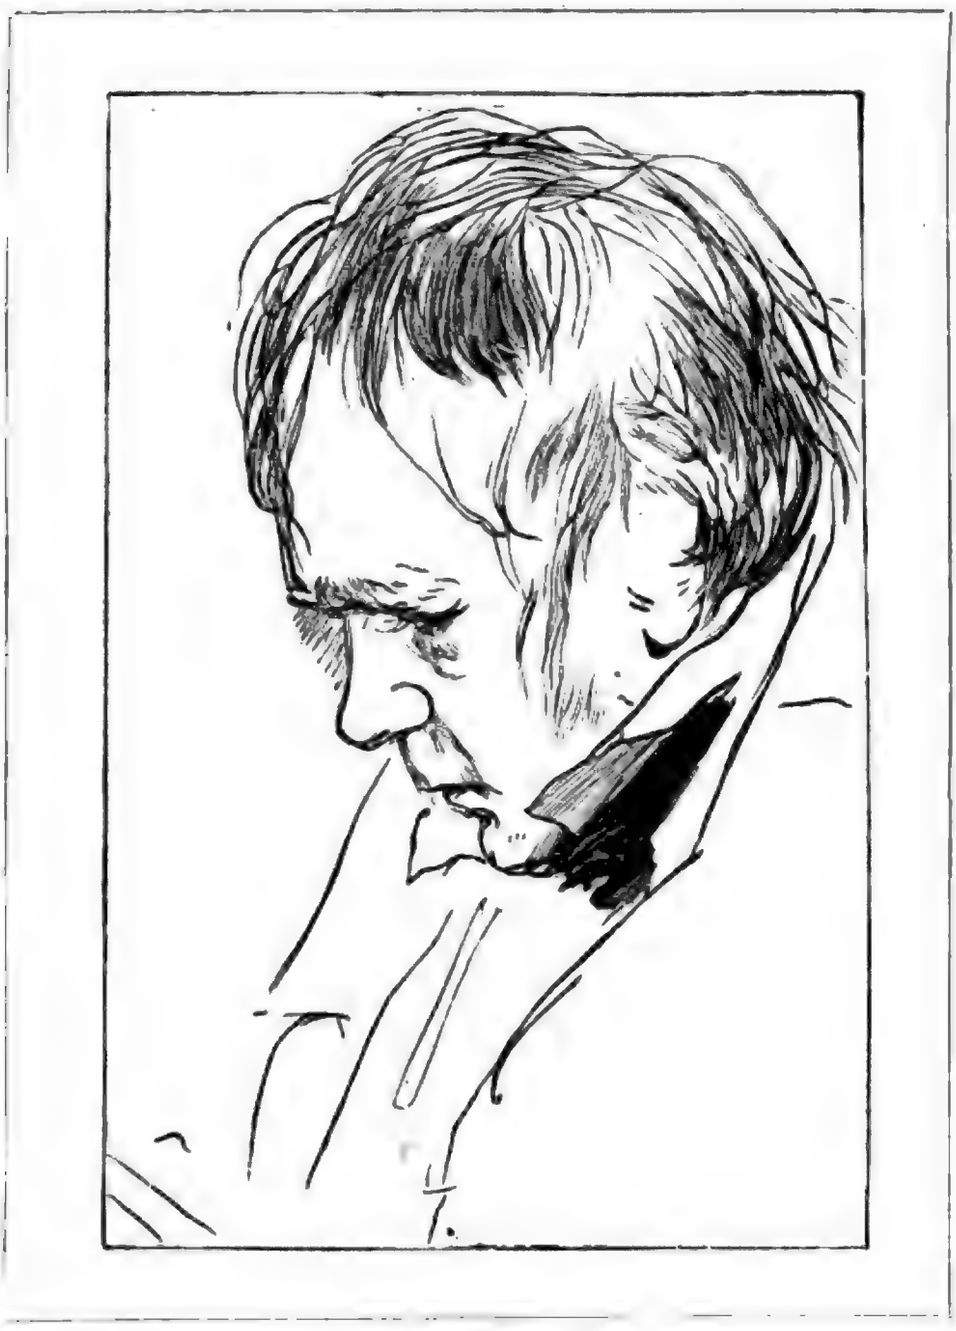
Also very interesting are two sketches of the head of Sir Walter Scott, by Sir Edwin Landseer, R.A. Forster put the two in one frame, and the following is the most characteristic.



SIR WALTER SCOTT.

It is known that Landseer painted two important portraits of the great novelist, one was a full length, and the background was the scenery in the Rhymni Glen, and the other was painted in oil on panel at Abbotsford, and has been presented to the National Portrait Gallery by Baron Albert Grant.

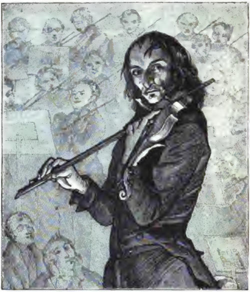
We all know how great a furore the violinist Paganini made when he first came to this country. His first appearance was on the 3rd of June, 1831, at the Opera House, and it was on that first night that Maclise made the drawing which afterwards came into Mr. Forster's hands. Here is an engraving of this portrait. Paganini died at Nice in 1840.



John Forster was very fond of getting and keeping whatever memorials he could of persons who had been prominent in literary or political history, and he has left to us on the title pages of books, on warrants, and other documents, many autographs of interest and value. Among these is the autograph of Dr. Johnson, which is interesting from the completeness with which its authenticity is accounted for. It was found on the back of a letter addressed to "Mr. Richardson, printer, in Salisbury Court." At the time it was written Johnson lived in Gough Square, over on the other side of the Fleet Street he was so fond of, and it is surmised that he had walked across to see Mr. Richardson at his house in what is now Salisbury Square. Not finding the famous novelist and printer, and not very conventional in anything, he, instead of leaving a card, or in some other formal way leaving evidence of his call, just wrote his name on the back of a letter which he found lying on the desk. The letter itself is of interest, for it is one dated May 18, 1749, and in it one Solomon Lowe suggests to Richardson a motto for his novel, "Clarissa Harlowe." Forster obtained this autograph from the famous collection of Mr. Upcott, in whose handwriting is a note, and under it a it a sort of voucher by John Forster himself, as will be seen in the facsimile overleaf.

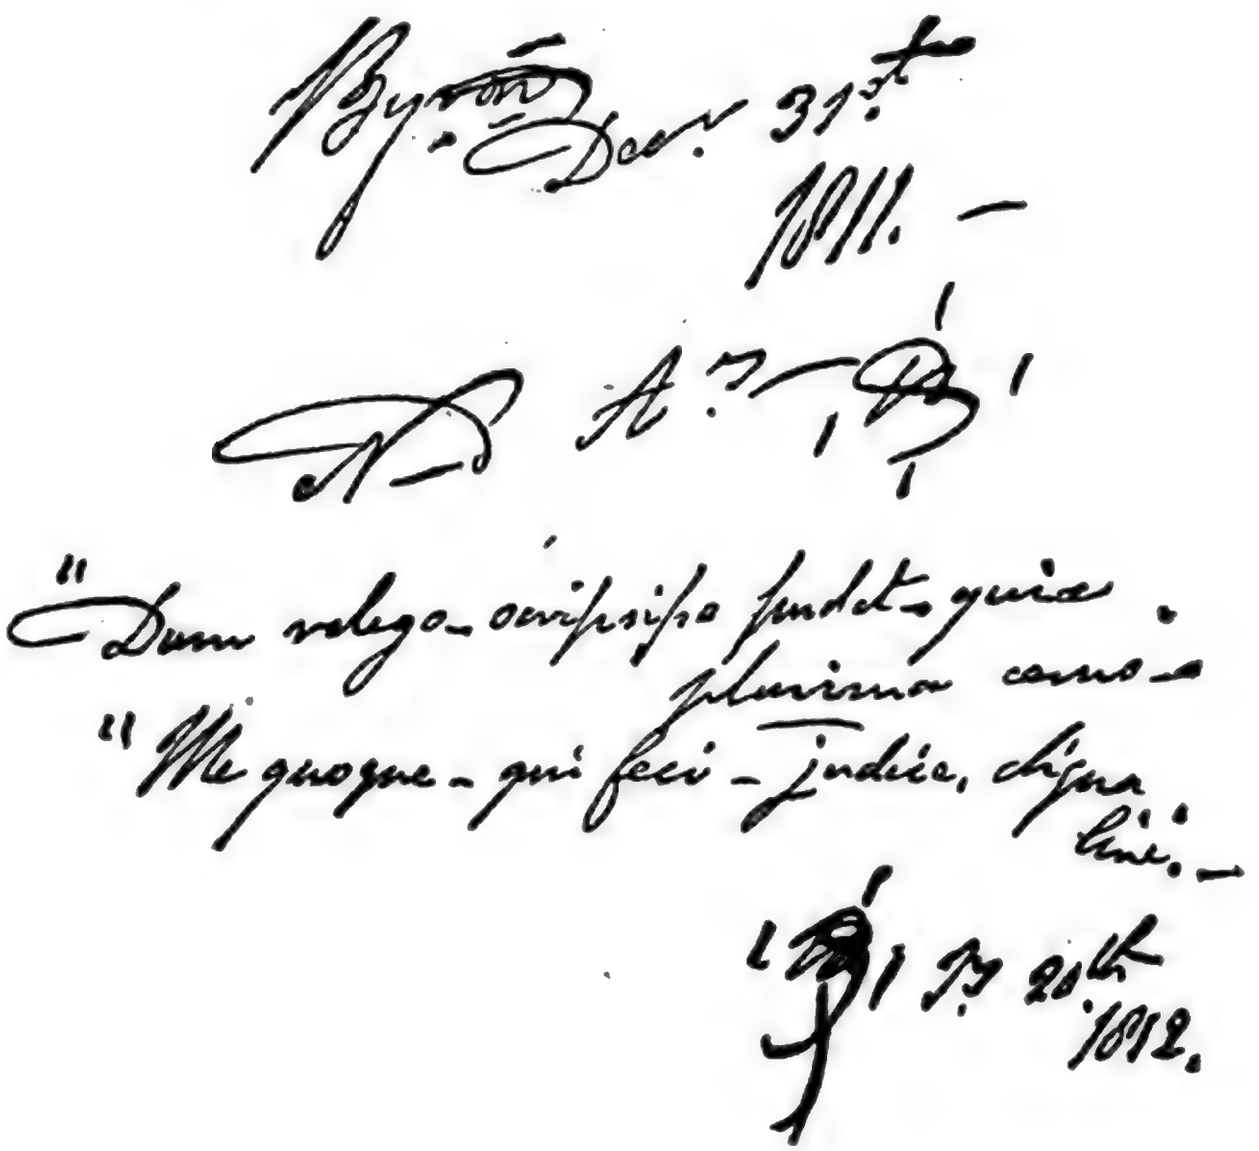
The autograph of Byron given below is an inscription on the title page of the fourth edition of the "British Bards and Scotch Reviewers," 1811. The "N——d A.y" means, of course, Newstead Abbey.



This copy has on the half-title the following memo—by Leigh Hunt—"Given me by the author on my birthday, Oct. 19th, 1815;" and there are many alterations and corrections of the poem in the handwriting of Byron.

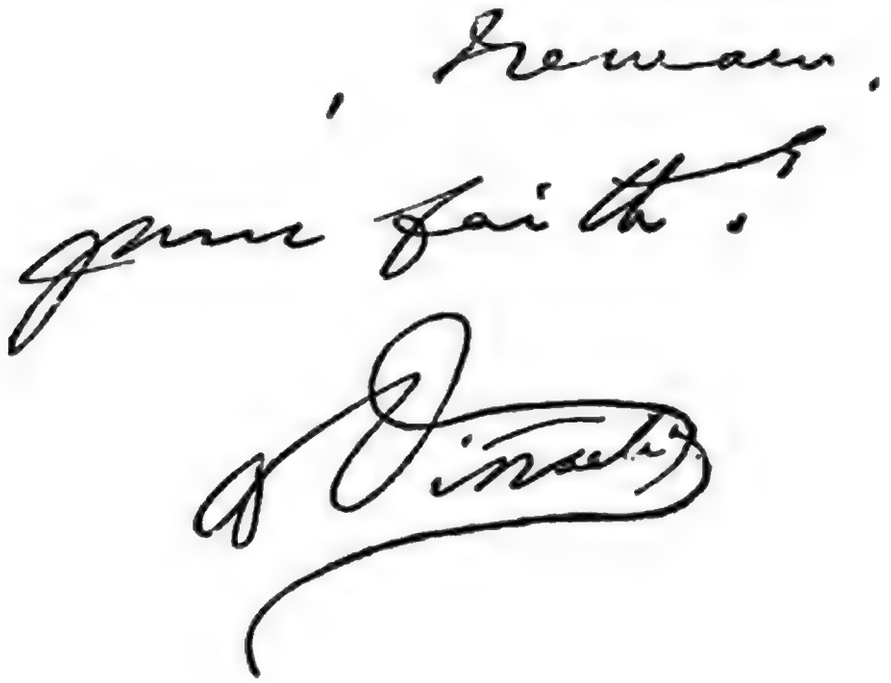
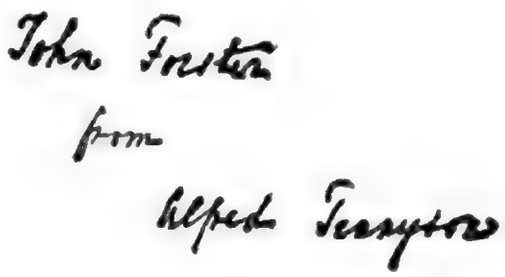
The following autograph of the late Lord Beaconsfield is the signature to a letter, written Aug. 31, 1845, to Mr. H. Colburn, the publisher, and refers to the forthcoming new editions of "Alroy" and "Contarine Fleming," and with it Mr. Disraeli sent the prefaces for the two books.



This autograph of the poet Laureate, now Lord Tennyson, is written in a presentation copy of the "Poems" published in 1842.



Mr. Forster was fortunate in having as friends and correspondents two of the most famous of American authors, Emerson and Longfellow. The autograph of Longfellow given overleaf is the ending of a letter to Forster, dated from Bonchurch, July 20, 1868. It was written just about the time the poet was leaving England for the Continent, after one of the visits he made here. In it he says:—"I have in my brain a confused memory of London; rattle and roar of streets; and 'dreams of fair women' in drawing-rooms; and breakfasts and luncheons and dinners in hopeless entanglement; and an endless procession of people, headed by the Archbishop of Canterbury."

This autograph of Emerson is from a letter he wrote at Concord, Sept. 4, 1871, to John Forster, and in which he says:—"My delinquencies have grown to be so habitual yet so crying and unpardonable that they begin to darken my old days uncomfortably. I almost never write a letter, and receive from time to time gifts of the greatest value without a word of acknowledgment, so that my only salvation must come from obedience to the precept of Buddh, 'Never thank your benefactors.' Is it quite too late to make the first step to reform, by saying to you that I received long ago your noble gift of the 'Life of Landor,'" of which I read a large part on its arrival, and many more pages from time to time since, and I still keep it on my table with a security of permanent interest? Only a few days ago I read with delight one of the best sentences that I have seen for long—Crabb Robinson's defence of Wordsworth against Landor, Vol. II., 316, and the whole book abounds with anecdotes of mark, and with just appreciation and censure. Your kindest note accompanying the book ought to have decided my instant reform, but I am still a slave to my tasks, and my repentance is late and spasmodic. But to-day my son asks me if I have any messages for England, through which he is to pass to Germany, and I am startled effectually to remember several benefactors therein two-and-twenty years ago, whom I should not like that he should pass by without a respectful salute. So I hope you will give the boy your benediction, and assure him that his father has your forgiveness."

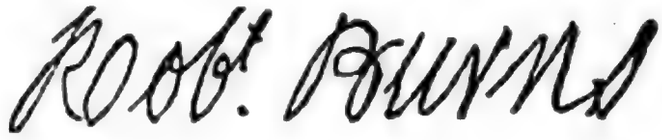
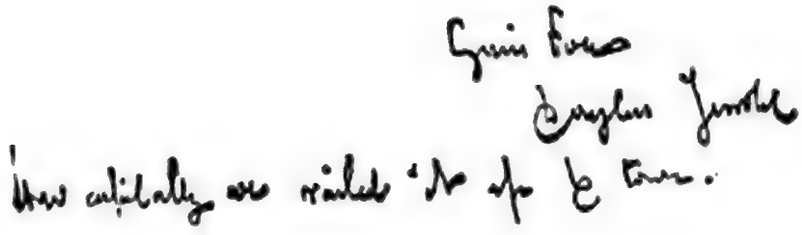
Here is the autograph of the poet Burns as it appears at the foot of a letter to hi "dear friend and honoured patroness," Mrs. Dunlop. It is dated "November 1790, and contains some verses addressed to Mrs. Dunlop's grandchild. He refers to hi being flattered by the approbation which his patroness accords to "Tam o' Shanter. The seal is characteristic. It is a heart pierced with two arrows.



The following are autographs of Charles Dickens, the most intimate friend of Forster, and of Douglas Jerrold, also a friend, and who was in the habit of "railing it" very much otherwise than he here "capitally railed it up to town."



This autograph of Wilkes, the "friend of liberty," and whose figure in history is as grotesque as his name is notorious, is written to Mr. Dill from "Prince's Court. Feb, 17, 1780," and refers to his intention of being present at Aylesbury in "a great public cause."

The following is a facsimile of the signature of Handel to a letter to the then

Earl of Shaftesbury, and dated "London, June 29, 1786." In this letter Handel says:—"I am extreamly obliged to your Lordship for sending me that part of My Lord your father's letter relating to Musick. His notions are very just; I am highly delighted with them, and cannot enough admire 'em." "My Lord your father" was no other than the famous third Earl, the Shaftesbury of the "Characteristics." Anyone passing along Brook Street, Grosvenor Square, may see on the front of No. 25 one of the Society of Arts' memorial tablets, stating that it was there that "giant" Handel, as Pope called him, lived; and there where he died in 1759.

There is a very interesting memento of Nelson in a letter written by him with his left hand (he lost his right hand at Santa Cruz, in 1797), to Admiral Lutwidge. It is dated "Amazon, Downs, October 4, 1801," and as the admiral is supposed to have been one of Nelson's early preceptors, he must have been proud as he wrote the signature:—

Among the many letters of personal interest written from one historic personage to another is a short letter which Charles the First sent to his nephew ("Nepveu," he wrote), Prince Rupert. It was written from "Hampton Court," in Sept. 1647, and the King says:—"Since I saw you, all your actions hath more than confirmed the good opinion I have of you. Assuring you that next my children (I say next) I shall have most care of you." And the King signs himself:—

Very near to Charles I., and very interesting indeed to John Forster, was all that related to Oliver Cromwell, the "uncrowned king," as he has been called. The signature which I give below is from a letter, all written by Cromwell's own hand on "Aug. 13, 1649, from aboard the John," at Milford Haven, and was addressed to Richard, Mayor of Hursley, Hants. This name is a very familiar one to the readers of Carlyle's "Letters and Speeches of Oliver Cromwell." The letter refers to the relationship between the Mayor and the Cromwell family, Oliver's son Richard having married the Mayor's daughter Dorothy on the May-day of the year in the August of which the letter is dated. Carlyle prints the letter, and says that when the old house at Hursley was pulled down, a lump of metal was found covered with rust, and it is said that it was the Great Seal of the Commonwealth. This is how Cromwell finished the letter:—

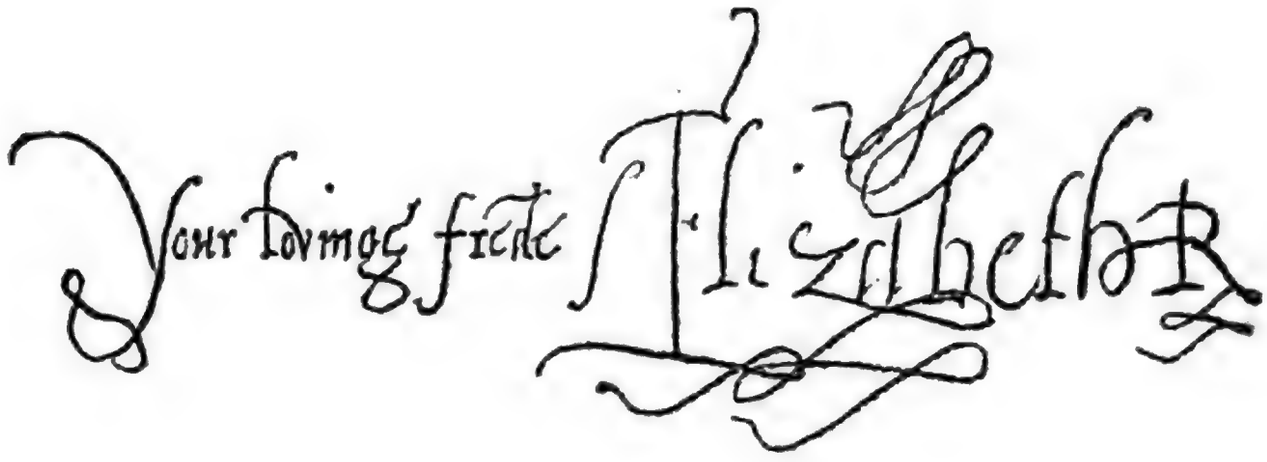
Going a little further back in history we get to the reign of Elizabeth. The signature we give below is appended to a warrant, dated 1570, addressed to the Earl of Lenox, then Regent in Scotland, and asking him to send "an Englishman being a fugitive" to Berwick. She signs herself—



It was a "happy thought" to associate the name of Oliver Goldsmith with that of John Forster, who made the author of the "Vicar of Wakefield" the subject of one of the most charming of biographies in our or in any other language. At his death Goldsmith bequeathed his gold-headed physician's cane, his writing-desk, and the chair in which he was accustomed to sit, to William Hawes, his friend and the apothecary who was attentive to him when poor Poll was passing through his last illness. Goldsmith's friends, among them, as we know, being the most eminent men of the day, left the arrangements for Goldsmith's funeral and the management of his affairs after his death to Dr. Hawes. Long after, the widow of his grandson, Sir Benjamin Hawes, gave these memorials of Goldsmith to the South Kensington Museum, and they could find no more fitting place than in the room which is full of things that interested and belonged to John Forster. Here is a sketch of these Goldsmith memorials :—

John Forster was the intimate friend, and, with Mr. William Macpherson, the executor, of the late Rev. Alexander Dyce, who, while having very strong interest in the passing events of his time, devoted himself more especially to the literature of former days. He was full of knowledge of Shakespeare and the elder dramatists, and bestowed upon them great editorial labour. It was fitting that the literary and other accumulations of his lifetime should find place so near and so closely associated with the memorials of Forster at South Kensington.

I give here a portrait of Milton, which is engraved from a chalk drawing found in a copy of "Paradise Regained," dated 1795, edited by the Rev. Charles Dunster. The copy was the editor's own; and on the back of the drawing the following memorandum is written: "Milton fr[om] Mr. G. Virtue's Bust, by my f[ather]." The writer of this was the son of Jonathan Richardson, who was in his time one of our chief painters of portraits. He and his son wrote "Explanatory Notes and Remarks on "Paradise Lost." The name of George Virtue is very well known as an artist of considerable reputation, and as having given different portraits of Milton; but, of course not one of them was drawn from the life.

It is pretty well known that about twenty of Shakespeare's plays were printed while he still lived, and that they were in the form of small quarto volumes. The first collected edition of the plays did not appear until 1623, about seven years after the poet had gone over to the majority. Mr. Dyce managed to get four of these

"first quartos" into his possession. One of these was the "Much adoe about Nothing," which was published in 1,600, and I reproduce the title page here in a reduced facsimile.

It is very likely that this was the book which Mr. Dyce "bought for two shillings, bound up within a ragged volume of otherwise worthless pieces." At the Daniel sale in 1864, a copy of this edition of the play realized no less than £267 15s.; and, to show how the value of these Shakespeare relics had risen in value, it is only necessary to state that Daniel only gave £18 for his copy, at the sale of Richard Heber's library. Heber died in 1833.

There is a great step in point of time between Shakespeare and Mrs. Siddons; but there is, as we know, a very close association of the two names. The great dramatist would have been much in sympathy with one of the greatest actresses of any time. The portrait we give here is from an unfinished oil painting four times probably the work of Sir Thomas Lawrence, P.R.A., an intimate friend of the Kemble family, or of his pupil, Mr. G. H. Harlow. I give the autograph of Mrs. Siddons under the portrait.

If the reader should chance to be passing along Upper Baker Street, he will see in the front of No. 27, one of the Society of Arts' tablets, stating that Mrs. Siddons died there in 1831. There is also a tablet to her memory in Paddington Church, and it was in the Paddington churchyard that she was buried. In Westminster Abbey there is a statue to her, which was erected by the great actor Macready.

There is, and long has been, a rage for the collection of autographs of eminent men, and it will interest many to find here facsimiles of some of special interest. The late Mr. Gifford, the first editor of the Quarterly Review, tells us, in his life of Ben Jonson, that the famous poet had a pleasant habit of presenting books to his friends, and of liking to write his name in them. Thus it happens that autographs of "rare Ben" are more common than those of most of his contemporaries. The one I give is copied from the title-page of a copy of "Tragedies and Comedies," by John Marston, published in 1633. Marston was, of course, one of Jonson's contemporaries. The autograph of the poet, Edmund Waller, occurs on the fly-leaf at the end of a work in French, published in 1666, and on a leaf at the beginning of the work Waller has written the following :—

Digitized by Google

"Affter a tempest when ye storme is layde
Ye calme sea wonders a[t] ye recks it mode."

Pope's autograph, which follows that of Waller, is the signature to a receipt given to the Marquess of Dorchester for two guineas, "being the first payment to the subscription for the translation of Homer's 'Iliads.'" The book in which this receipt is inserted is worth looking at. It is a copy of the fifth edition of Garth's "Dispensing," published in 1703. This book Garth gave to Pope, who, at his death, bequeathed it to Bishop Warburton. Warburton presented it to the Rev. William Mason. From Mason it went to the father of Mrs. Opie, then from him to his son, who gave it to Lord St. Helens, and Lord St. Helens gave it to Samuel Rogers, the poet-banker, who wrote the "Pleasures of Memory." The book collector, George Daniel, gave £12 15s. for it at Rogers' sale in 1856, and John Forster managed to purchase it, in 1864, at Daniel's sale. The price Forster gave was £26. This volume is further remarkable, as it contains the pen-and-ink portrait of Pope, which was "drawn without his knowledge while conversing with Mr. Allen at Prior Park." The artist was W. Hoare, R.A., of Bath.

Here are three other autographs, which are worth giving. That of Izaak Walton is written in a book called "Psyche, or Love's Mystery;" a poem extending to twenty cantos, the work of Joseph Beaumont. The lines of this poem have been counted, if not read, and it contains no fewer than 38,922 lines, which makes it about four times as long as "Paradise Lost." John Evelyn, whose "Dairy and Correspondence" so curiously illustrates and is illustrated by the more famous "Diary" of Sam Pepys, with many things of interest. The autograph we give appears on a page of a presentation copy of John Glanvill's translation of the "Plurality of Worlds" by Fontenelle, published in 1688.

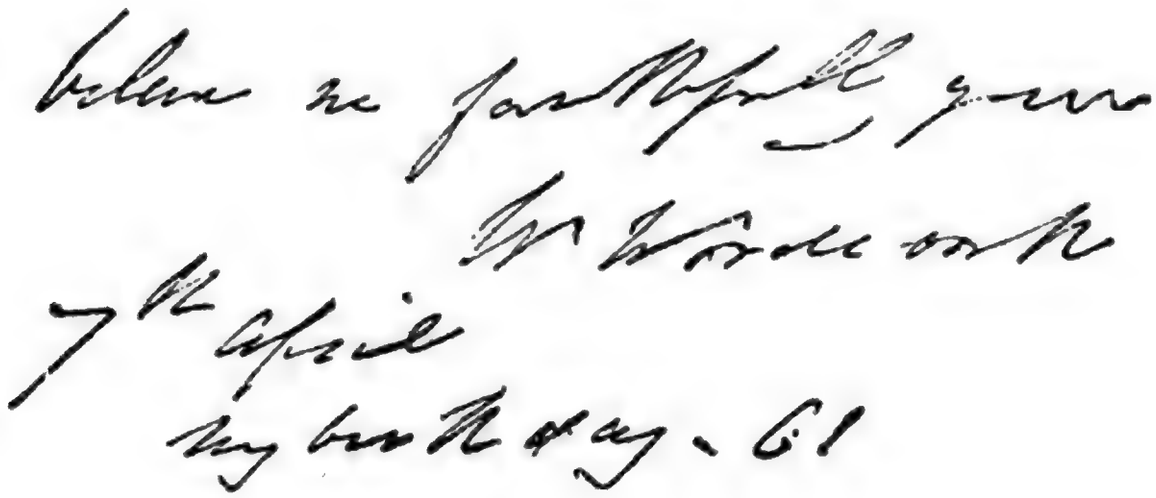
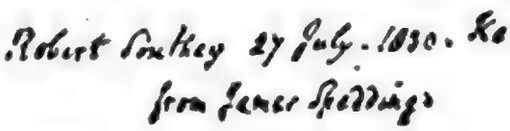
I have still three more autographs to give; one is the following of the poet Wordsworth.



It is the signature to a note to Mr. Dyce, in which the poet refers to the "Excursion," and is dated 12, Bryanston Street, evidently on his birthday, when he was sixty-one. The very neat signature of Southey, with its accompanying inscription, appears at the bottom of the title page of a now notable volume, "Poems chiefly Lyrical," by Alfred Tennyson, 1830. The book is now very rare, and has realized



£8 10s. at a sale. The James Spedding who gave the book to Southey was the J. S. to whom Tennyson addressed the lines beginning:—

"The wind that beats the mountain, blows
More softly round the open wold."

This autographs of Thackeray explains itself—

I cannot do better than wind up this gossip about memorable men by giving the following reproduction of the title-page of "Cocker's Arithmetick." The book from which it is taken is a copy of the fifty-fourth edition, published in 1758. There is no

Ingenious Cocker, now to Reſt thou'rt gone,
Thy rare Arithmetick alone can ſhow
No Art can ſhew thee fully, but thine own, certainty about the dates of the birth or the death of Edward Cocker. He is supposed to have died about the year 1675, and it is known that he was buried in St. George's Church, Southwark. I need not say that common use of this book gave rise to the saying "According to Cocker."

I am pleased to think that in putting together these memorials of distinguished persons, and in giving my informal jottings respecting them, I shall be adding somewhat to the interest of the "World's Press."

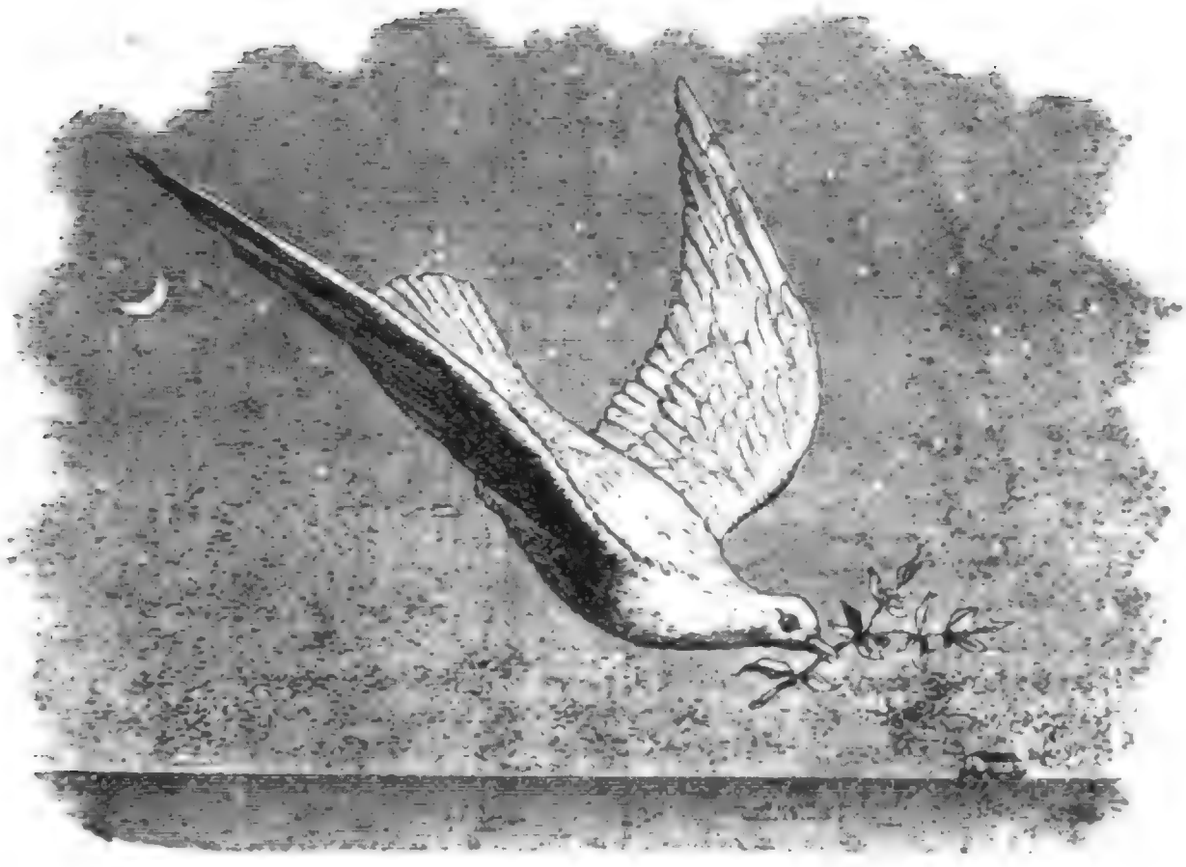
About 1622 periodicals and papers first came into general use in England, and at the time of the Civil Wars, in the reign of Charles I., each party had its "organs" to disseminate sentiments of loyalty, or to foster a spirit of resistance. About three years before that monarch ascended the throne, the paper shown above was established; it contained only a few scraps of foreign news, which it gleaned from the journals of Holland, and no advertisements appeared. The above is full size of the page.



THE FIRST NEWS GATHERER.

PRESS ASSOCIATIONS AND AGENCIES.

DURING the past few years a very important change has taken place in the method by which a large number of publications are supplied not only with the latest news, but with articles, summaries of events, descriptive writing, and other literary matter, by means of several telegraphic and press associations.

When the system of electric telegraphy had been introduced into almost every civilized country in the world, and a large portion of the principal journals was occupied by records of events which were hourly occurring, it became necessary to put forth second, third, fourth, and fifth editions of newspapers.

The smaller publications, and those which had not vast capital and resources, were in danger of being eclipsed, because of the cost of telegraphic communications, and of a large staff of writers who could deal with the messages as they arrived, and either construct articles from them or immediately put them into striking and readable form. This difficulty, however, did not last very long.

From the remarkable organization by which telegraphic intelligence was transmitted through Reuter's Company to London, from all the principal capitals of Europe, other associations arose, and there are now several large and important agencies affording facilities to every newspaper in England and on the Continent for obtaining the latest news on every subject of interest, at a cost which has been reduced to a comparatively trifling amount by the benefits of co-operation, or rather of centralization. Foreign, political, parliamentary, social, sporting, legal, and commercial news (with market quotations), prices of stocks and shares, particulars of accidents, crimes, calamities and disasters, festivals, rejoicings, sporting matters, and remarkable occurrences, are constantly being flashed along the wires from all parts of the world. Through a network of electric communication the news of mankind, and records of human hopes, fears, joys, sorrows, enterprises, failures and achievements, pass in perpetual and practically uninterrupted streams. Nor does the marvel stop at the mere transmission, interpretation, and publication of the telegraphic message. In the offices of some of the press associations, quick eyes are on the watch, skilled hands are ready, and intelligent brains are actively employed, to recount in telling and picturesque language the wondrous stories of the hour, and to supply them to the periodicals which subscribe for such attractive additions to their pages. Résumés of the latest news are constantly being printed and circulated to the members of the associations; commercial and legal intelligence is sent promptly to the City; a staff of parliamentary reporters is employed to record the transactions of Parliament; and so, by marvellous enterprise and able organization, a large number of journals, newspapers, and even private individuals, are able to participate in the advantages which but for such agencies could only have been confined to a few. It is not too much to say that the Telegraphic and Press Associations are among the most remarkable of modern developments.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE PRINCIPAL PRESS ASSOCIATIONS AND AGENCIES.

Atkinson News Association.—This is an association who supply exclusively with carefully arranged combination of papers, original matter, and commercial correspondence. Manager: J. Rintoul Mitchell, 52, Fleet Street, E.C.

Central News.—Established January, 1870. The Central News collects news by telegraph from correspondents throughout the United Kingdom and abroad, and telegraphs important events, Parliamentary reports, Stock Exchange and market reports, law cases, results of races, &c., to newspapers, exchanges, clubs, and news-rooms. Communications intended for general publication should be forwarded by messenger or telegraph to the Central News, 5, New Bridge Street, Ludgate Circus.

Central Press.—Established 1863. It affords all newspapers in the kingdom as well as on the continent facilities for obtaining the latest news on every subject of interest or importance at small cost. The directors of the Central Press Company also contract with the managers of country journals, clubs, and news-rooms, for supply of telegrams on important matters generally, or of matters of local interest. They also print the Sun and Central Press every half-hour during the session, giving a copious summary of the debates and proceedings in both Houses of Parliament. These sheets are delivered by relays of messengers to the chief clubs of London. The Central Press engages to furnish all of its clients with reports in flimsy (the best attention being given to local subjects). Leading articles written by gentlemen of acknowledged ability, notes of the day, London letters, &c., supplied. An efficient staff of reporters in the galleries of the Houses of Parliament furnish full or verbatim reports of speeches of Local Members, Scotch and Irish debates, &c. A special feature being the preparation of admirable sketches of incidents in both Houses of Parliament, and of a service of "Lobby Tips," which are wired direct from the House. Manager: John Hawkings, 22, Parliament Street, S.W.

London Associated Shorthand Writers & Reporters. (Originally Pocknell's Press Agency.)—Established 1869. The former organization has been at work several years successfully, and meets a want much felt by daily papers which require work done well, quickly, cheaply, and adapted to their particular journals. The Associated Shorthand Writers and Reporters are simply a large number of independent London reporters, pursuing their individual work for their own clients, but associated together for mutual help in heavy jobs, and for the advantages of co-operation as opposed to single-handed efforts. The past conduct of Pocknell's Press Agency is a guarantee of the work of the wider organization being done promptly, accurately, and conscientiously. Manager: H. H. Pestell.

National Press Agency (Limited).—The object of this agency is to concentrate in one establishment facilities for meeting the various requirements of the newspaper press. It undertakes to furnish ably-written leaders and London letters, and carefully edited news; all the matter being sent out either in manuscript, proof, or stereotype, on any or every day of the week, and at the shortest notice. To meet the wants of country clients, a large staff of competent reporters are kept, so that accurate reports of proceedings in London, of special interest to the provinces, can be despatched with the utmost promptitude.

National Press Journal.—Subscription by arrangement. This Journal, which is published for the special use of newspaper proprietors, is issued in the form of slips, printed on one side only, for the convenience of cutting up. It contains every day an ably-written London letter and other original matter; the most important items of home and foreign news, the latest markets and trade reports, &c. Proofs forwarded by train or post. National Press Agency (Limited), E. Dawson Rogers, 13, Whitefriars Street, Fleet Street, E.C.

Press Association (Limited).—Formed 1868, for supplying telegraphic and other news to the provincial press, the principal proprietors of which are its members. It has the sole right of supplying Reuter's foreign telegrams in the provinces, and it also supplies all kinds of home news. In conjunction with the intelligence department of the postal telegraph system, it supplies Parliamentary, club, news-rooms, general, commercial, and market news direct; provincial market news from all the great market centres, and sporting news from all the race-courses. It undertakes the duties of London reporters for its subscribers, taking charge of all law-courts, &c., in order to report local cases occurring in the metropolis, reporting the speeches of local Members in Parliament, &c. Manager: E. Robbins, 7, Wine Office Court, Fleet Street.

Provincial Newspaper Society.—Established 1836, for the purpose of securing a more intimate acquaintance between the proprietors of newspapers in the United Kingdom, and unity of action in relation to their joint interests. Its main objects are to watch over all measures introduced into Parliament affecting the press, and to exercise a careful supervision over doubtful advertisers and advertising agents. The members meet annually in London, during the month of May. Circulars to members are issued quarterly, or oftener if necessary. Secretary: Mr. H. Whorlow, 7, Wine Office Court, Fleet Street, E.C.

Reuter's Telegram Company (Limited).—Established February, 1865. The Company supplies the English, foreign, colonial, and American press with telegraphic intelligence of all important events, for which purpose it has branches or agencies in all the principal capitals of Europe, India, China, Japan, North and South America, and the Australian colonies. The service embraces all countries which are in telegraphic communication with London. The Company also furnishes commercial news to the mercantile community, and private telegrams can be transmitted at a moderate rate to all parts of the East. Office: 24, Old Jewry, E.C.

Tillotson & Son's "Evening News" Fiction Bureau, Bolton.—Established 1871. For supplying stories by popular novelists and other special literary features, to the newspaper press. There are few English authors of note who have not written for Tillotson & Son's newspaper syndicate. Among their authors were Charles Reade, W. Harrison Ainsworth, and Hugh Conway; whilst among their living contributors are Mrs. Alexander, Walter Besant, William Black, Miss Braddon, Rhoda Broughton, Wilkie Collins, B. L. Farjeon, Rider Haggard, Thomas Hardy, Joseph Hatton, Mrs. Lynn Linton, Florence Marryatt, Helen Mathers, D. C. Murray, Mrs. Oliphant, Ouida, James Payn, F. W. Robinson, Dora Russell, W. Clark Russell, William Westall, and the author of "Molly Bawn." Their leading stories are illustrated by well-known artists. In addition to long and short stories, illustrated and otherwise, Tillotson & Son furnish their clients with "Our Ladies' Column," by Penelope, a letter which has probably found more imitators than any other newspaper feature; "Lottie's Letter to her Sisters and her Cousins and her Aunts;" "The Children's Hour," by Maggie Symington weekly; a London letter for clients abroad, and a daily London letter for evening papers. Tillotson & Son also supply, to meet the convenience of their clients, matter in stereotype columns. Registered telegraphic address, "News," Bolton.

University and Sandringham Intelligence Service.—Established 1859. This Service is established for the purpose of supplying telegraphic and other reports of the Royal movements in the East of England, and also for supplying University and general intelligence. The University branch is under the direction of a member of the firm of 25 years' experience at the University. A speciality originated by this Service is, that the names of successful students in the various triposes, and the Oxford and Cambridge Local Examinations, belonging to the different districts are supplied to the provincial papers circulating in the districts to which they belong. Proprietors: Digby & Son, 18, Cockspur Street, Pall Mall, S.W., "Cambridge House," Weston Park, Crouch End, N., and 25, Emery Street, Cambridge.

PARLIAMENTARY REPORTING.

IN the early history of parliamentary reporting, there probably was no more remarkable proficient in the art than Mr. Woodfall. When we look at the development of shorthand reporting in Parliament during the last few years, it is a marvel to think that there ever existed such a mental note-taker as "Memory" Woodfall, of the Morning Chronicle. It is said that he was able, and not only able, but frequently accomplished the feat of writing a column and more of a report, faultless in the matter of accuracy, without having put pencil to paper. His memory was so acute, that in the early days of parliamentary reporting—when the simple act itself was looked upon with jealousy, and when those who ventured to perform such duties were regarded as little less than traitors—he must have been an invaluable member of any newspaper staff. It may not be well known, although the rapid growth and spread of shorthand, and the dissemination of the history of every incident in its development, must have made it familiar to the present generation, that it was not until Mr. Woodfall's successor's time that regular relays of reporters were organized to take up the work at short intervals. It was John Perry who initiated the system, in consequence of which a reporter has time to write out his notes in full, while his colleagues continue the note-taking, and enable a complete report of the debate to be in readiness for the printer almost as soon as the debate itself has come to an end. Since his time the system has been marvellously extended, and latter-day inventions have further annihilated distance, for whereas originally the "growlers" were requisitioned to convey copy from the reporters at St. Stephen's to the Fleet Street news offices, now telegraphic and telephonic communication do the work, with the wonderful results of which we are all cognisant. The very earliest history of parliamentary reporting is pregnant with interesting incidents. Cobbett's "Parliamentary History of England" is the diminutive record of the discussions for nearly six centuries prior to 1625. It was not until the seventeenth century that debates of the most meagre character began furtively to find their way into the public journals, and the House of Lords in 1698 declared this to be a breach of privilege. In 1728 the House of Commons came to the same decision, with the addendum that they would punish the offending members who disclosed the reports, and that such persons should, on repetition of the offence, be punished with the utmost severity. This determination was not, however, actually carried into practice, and in 1785 the Gentleman's Magazine and the London Magazine began to afford what at that time were elaborated reports. The names of the speakers were suppressed, with the exception of the first and last letters, very much the same as our cartoonists do now in the comic journals. This device served to postpone the wrath of Parliament for some time; but in 1738 it broke out, and the magazines were compelled, not by decree, but by considerations for safety, to report the debates as if they had taken place in a fictitious assembly. The printers of the London Magazine were afterwards placed in custody for reporting the trial of Lord Lovat before his peers in 1745. In 1764 the House of Lords fined the proprietors of the London Evening Post £100 for mentioning the name of one of the speakers, and in several succeeding sessions printers of newspapers were fined for similar offences. Other convictions took place; but public sympathy became aroused in favour of having the debates reported, and there has not been unnecessary interference on this head since then. The parliamentary reporting staff is now very strong, the London, Provincial, Continental and American papers being largely represented, and probably there is no more cultivated, talented, and active body of gentlemen in nightly contact and converse than those of the "gallery."

NEWSPAPER LIBEL.

By F. O. CRUMP, Q.C.

APART from statutory protection proprietors of newspapers stand in no better position when publishing libellous matter than the author of any other form of publication. It is quite a common error to suppose that they are clothed with special privilege. This error arises from some knowledge of the law which declares certain occasions of publication privileged. Several of these occasions arise in connection with the functions of newspapers, and so it has been thought that newspapers as organs of public opinion possess a privilege generally which is wider than the privilege of private individuals. This imperfect knowledge and consequent error is too frequently to be found in newspaper writers themselves who are prone to complain of the verdicts of juries as restricting the liberty of the Press and making unnecessarily difficult the duties which newspaper editors and reporters have to discharge. Consequently the best course for a lawyer to take when concisely stating the law relating to "newspaper" libel is to show what occasions judicial decision has declared privileged and what Parliament has enacted to relieve newspapers from the operation of the ordinary law.

Libel, it is to be remembered, may be contained in original comment or criticism, in the published communications of others, and in reported speeches and proceedings. In the first place, then, when is original or communicated comment or criticism privileged? The answer is when it is fair and honest and the subject matter is of public interest. The reason of the privilege is that in matters of public interest it is to the interest of the public that fair and honest comment and criticism should be protected, however painful or unpleasant it may be to the person under discussion. In the second place, when are reports of speeches and proceedings privileged? Again the answer is when they are fair and accurate and are reports of Parliamentary proceedings or of proceedings in Courts of Justice. So far the law was declared by judicial decision up to the year 1881, when privilege was given by a statute known as the Newspaper Libel and Registration Act, 1881, to "any report published in any newspaper of the proceedings of a public meeting"; "if such meeting was lawfully convened for a lawful purpose and open to the public, and if (1) such report was fair and accurate, and (2) published without malice, and if (3) the publication of the matter complained of was for the public benefit." This is a very qualified sort of protection, the interpretation of which has created some conflict of judicial decision; but that is not all. It is not to be available if the plaintiff in an action can show that the defendant has refused to insert in this newspaper in which the report containing the matter complained of appeared a reasonable letter or statement of explanation or contradiction by or on behalf of such plaintiff.

I may here mention that it has been recently declared by the ultimate Court of Appeal that the privilege which covers fair and accurate reports of proceedings in Parliament and in Courts of Justice does not extend to reports of statements made to editors of newspapers. It has also recently been decided by the Court of Appeal that the fair and accurate report of the judgment in an action published bonâ fide is privileged, although not accompanied by any report of the evidence given at the trial. Lord Justice Bowen said broadly that it was for the interest of the community that no restriction should be placed on the publication of what judges say in the course of proceedings in Courts of Justice.

Now the statute of 1881 creates a privilege independent of the common law, and is complete in itself. The privilege declared by the common law may be lost in this way. If it shall appear that the occasion prima facie privileged was made use of for some wicked or sinister motive, such as to gratify personal feelings of spite or animosity, and the jury so find, the defence of privilege is of no avail. This is the doctrine of express malice.

To complete this examination of the grounds and extent of privilege it is only necessary to suggest what is matter of public interest. In the present day nearly all private matters seem to be of interest to the public, but the law will only regard matters which are of legitimate public interest. Men who hold public positions or who assume the rôle of public men are liable to have their conduct and motives as such fairly and honestly assailed. Thus it has been said a clergyman in relation to his flock, a general with his army, a judge with his jury—are subjects of public discussion. So a book which is published to the world, a painting publicly exhibited, a building erected for public use, afford a legitimate occasion for comment upon the author, the painter, or the architect. Again, all political and ecclesiastical matters are of public interest; and the conduct of vestries, town councils, boards of guardians, and similar public bodies. The administration of the law, the verdicts of juries, the conduct of suitors and witnesses are in the same category.

Postponing to the conclusion of this paper remarks of a general character upon what constitutes a libel, and who may sue and be sued for its publication, it will be convenient that I should here state what the Legislature has done for the relief of the press when honestly discharging its functions, but yet unprotected by privilege. As long ago as the time of Lord Campbell a statute was passed (6 & 7 Vict., c. 96) which provided that in an action for a libel contained in any public newspaper or other periodical publication it shall be competent to the defendant to plead that such libel was inserted in such newspaper or other periodical publication without malice and without gross negligence, and that before the commencement of the action or at the earliest opportunity afterwards he inserted in such newspaper or other periodical publication a full apology for the libel, or had offered to publish the apology in any newspaper to be selected by the plaintiff. The defendant so pleading is then given liberty to pay into Court a sum of money by way of amends for the injury sustained by the publication of the libel.

Now for the general remarks. The publication of written or printed defamation is actionable whether it causes pecuniary loss or not. Nearly everybody nowadays knows what defamation is. The way judges and textwriters define it is this: Words or pictures which expose a person to hatred, contempt, ridicule, or obloquy, which tend to injure him in his profession or trade, or cause him to be shunned or avoided by his neighbours, which impute to him any crime, fraud, dishonesty, immorality, or dishonourable conduct, or incompetency or unfitness for any office or position which he fills or aspires to fill, want of skill or knowledge requisite for his profession, which impute to a merchant bankruptcy, insolvency, or embarrassment past, present, or probable. But a publication is not a libel which has for its object to correct misrepresentation of fact, to refute sophistical reasoning, to expose a vicious taste in literature, or to censure what is opposed to morality. A critic, however, must confine himself to criticism, and not make it the veil for personal censure, nor allow himself to run into reckless and unfair attacks. This is really an amplification of what I have already said, that all criticism must be fair and honest; and it is only necessary to add that if in criticism personal reflections of an injurious character are cast recklessly or wantonly, and are unfounded in fact, it will be no defence to the writer that he honestly believed the truth of the charges he was making.

The latest, and a very high authority, says that no attack upon a dead man can be libellous; but that if an attack upon a dead man is made the vehicle for an imputation upon the living, the latter will have his action. Says Mr. Justice Stephen: "The dead have no rights, and can suffer no wrongs. The living alone can be the subject of legal protection, and the law of libel is intended to protect them, not against every writing which gives them pain, but against writings which hold them up individually to hatred, contempt, or ridicule."

We, therefore, arrive at this clear and very intelligible conclusion as to the existing law. All untrue defamatory statements are actionable. However gross no action lies if they are true. But, although untrue, the plaintiff will not recover if they are published on a privileged occasion, unless express malice can be proved against the defendant. The untruth, together with the circumstances attending the publication, are matters for the consideration of the jury in arriving at their finding as to malice. And newspaper writers must remember that, although the question of privileged occasion is for the presiding judge, the question of excess in comment, and of motive where express malice is pleaded, is for the jury, and while the jury system lasts juries will look somewhat jealously at defamatory statements which are not justified on the ground of truth.

A few words as to the construction of the Act of 1881, a few more as to who may be sued, and I have finished. Two judges have taken the view that a jury ought to be asked whether it was for the public benefit that a speech should have been reported. Two others have thought it sufficient if a report is fair and bona fide of a speech delivered at a lawful public meeting. It is not for me to act the part of a Court of Appeal.

Everyone who makes a publication of the libel is liable to be sued, whether under age or not. Author, printer, and publisher are often joined; and it is no answer that other publishers have been sued for the same libel. Corporations aggregate and joint-stock companies may be sued for libels published by their servants. And one who sells a newspaper in the ordinary course of business is prima facie liable for a libel contained in it; but he will escape if he can prove that he did not know that it contained a libel, that his ignorance was not due to any negligence of his, and that he had no ground for supposing that the newspaper was likely to contain libellous matter.

Libel, I may add, entails a criminal as well as a civil liability. Wherever an action will lie an indictment will lie also. But since the Newspaper Libel Act of 1881, no criminal prosecution can be commenced against any proprietor, editor, or any person responsible for the publication of a newspaper, for any libel published therein, without the written fiat or allowance of the Director of Public Prosecutions in England, or Her Majesty's Attorney-General in Ireland, being first obtained.

A Bill has been introduced in the House of Commons by Mr. Jennings and Mr. Addison to amend the Newspaper Libel Act, which proposes to empower any person served with a notice of civil action to appeal to a Judge in Chambers for an opinion on the question whether the action is one which ought to be pursued. If, in spite of an adverse opinion, the plaintiff elects to proceed, he is to be required to find security for all costs. With a view to prevent frivolous actions by "men of straw," the Bill provides further that an affidavit may be made by the defendant declaring the plaintiff (if such be the case) to be a man of no substance, the filing of which affidavit is also to be a justification for demanding from the plaintiff security for costs.—Daily News.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS AND WAR CORRESPONDENCE.

By ARCHIBALD FORBES.

ARCH. FORBES.

BEFORE the Franco-German War of 1870-1 there had, of course, been war correspondents, and some of them had earned worthy reputations, to vie with which no representative of a newer school has any claim. But their work, brilliant as it was, for the most part was carried on under less arduous conditions than those which confront the war correspondent of a more recent era. They had no telegraph wire to be at once their boon and their curse; there was for them seldom any other expedient than the ordinary post from the camp or of the base; or, at the best, a special express messenger. Nor was it often incumbent on them to carry their lives in their hand. Before far-reaching rifled fire-arms came into use in war, it was possible mostly to see a great deal of the battle without getting within the range of fire. But under the newer conditions, this immunity is no longer possible. The range of fire has so enlarged itself that the war correspondent cannot be a spectator of the strife unless he hardens his heart to take a full share of the risks of the battle-field. Indeed, if he has determined to look narrowly into the turbulent heart of each successive spasm of the bloody struggle—and it is only now by doing this that he can make for himself a genuine and abiding reputation—he must lay his account with adventuring more risk than commonly falls to the lot of the average soldier. For in great and prolonged operations, the troops who have borne the brunt of the hardest fighting in yesterday's battle are replaced in to-day's battle by fresher soldiers, and are relegated to the reserve. But there can be no position in the reserve for the war correspondent who is intent on doing his duty. The Third German Army Corps which ıder Alvensleben on August 16, 1870, endured the long bitter struggle of that desperate ght which the Germans know as the battle of "Mars-la-Tour," the French as the ttle of "Vionville," was, what of it was left, in the second line on the slope of erneville two days later, when the yet more colossal combat of Gravelotte was ging all along that blood-stained line from St. Marie au Chene to the Bois s Ognons. But the war correspondent who on the 16th had followed Buddenbrock's alwart infantry men to the storm of Flavigny, and who had shaken hands with Bredow e he led out his cuirassiers and lancers to an onslaught which compares with our Bala- ava charge, was on the 18th standing in the shell fire in front of Gravelotte, the com- ınion of the gallant Von Göben on the outer fringe of the Bois de Caux, or tramping ith the Prussian guardsmen up the slope upon the fortress village of St. Privat. uring the siege of Metz the German soldiers holding the front of the environment ere relieved every third day, but the correspondent who held that his work lay in the repost line, was handed over by the relieved to the relievers along with the quarters ı the shell-shattered village, and till the capitulation came lived his life within chronic ange of French fire. It may well be then, and it often is the simple fact, that the per- entage of casualties among war correspondents is greater than that among the actual ghting men. In the Servian campaign of 1876, for instance, there were twelve corre- pondents who kept the field and went under fire. Of these—men of varied nationality —three were killed and four wounded. But take a more recent example, an instance of loser application, since the men who died in the service of their masters the public, were nen of our own nationality, and the public they served was the people of our own land. Not more than twenty English correspondents and artists, all told, were in the Soudan n the course of the recent campaigning in that miserable region; yet on or under its cruel sands lie the corpses of at least six of our comrades. O'Donovan, the adventurous pioneer of Merv, perished with Hicks. All hope has now been relinquished that Vizetelly still remains alive. Power lived to be Gordon's loyal, valiant, and trusted lieutenant; but fell in the effort to bring to us the full tidings of that noble soldier's heroism. Cameron and St. Leger Herbert were struck down on the same bloody day, and lie together in their shallow grave in the hot Bayuda sand. Poor Gordon, who led the Houssa scouts in Ashantee, died a lone death of thirst in the heart of the desert, while pushing on to where his duty lay.

In my day dreams, indulged in mostly when smarting under the humiliating consciousness of my own shortcomings, I have tried to think out the attributes which ought to be concentrated in the ideal war correspondent of the modern school—of that school called into being mainly on the behest of the telegraph wire. He should possess the gift of tongues, be conversant with all European languages, a selection of the Asiatic languages, and a neat assortment of the African tongues. He should be endowed with the sweet, angelic temper of a woman, be as affable as if he were a can- didate canvassing a constituency for their votes, and at the same time be big and ugly enough to impress the conviction that it would be highly unwise to take any liberty with him. The paragon war correspondent should be able to ride anything that chance may send him, from a giraffe to a rat; be able to ride a hundred miles at a stretch, to go without food for a week if needful, and without sleep for as long; he must never get tired; never feel the sensation of "a slight sinking, you know"; and be able at the end of a ride of a journey—however long, arduous, and sleepless—to write round hand for a foreign telegraph clerk ignorant of the correspondent's language, at the rate of a column an hour for six or eight consecutive hours; after doing which he should as a matter of course gallop back to the scene of action without a moment's delay. He should have the supremest disregard for hostile fire when real duty calls upon him to expose himself to it—wanton exposure is folly of the worst kind, and simple treachery to his paper as well, to which he necessarily ceases to be of service should a casualty befall him. But at once for the credit of his nation which rests on his shoulders in the presence of foreigners, and that his paper may have the full advantage of his observant faculties unperturbed by distractions, he should be as calm when shells are bursting around him as if he were watching his bosom friend having a tooth extracted. He must have a genuine nstinct for the place and day of an impending combat; he must be able to scent the coming battle from afar, and permit no obstacle to hinder him from getting to it in time to be a spectator of it. He should be so constituted as to have an intuitive perception how the day hath gone; to be able to distinguish victory or defeat, when to the spectator not so gifted the field of strife seems confusion worse confounded; and so to rely on his own judgment as to venture, ere the turmoil has died away, to turn his back upon it, and ride off the earliest bearer of the momentous tidings.

Alas, there never was such a man, and there never will be such a man. "Well, Uncle Billy," said the Yankee soldier to General Sherman, "you can't expect all the martial virtues for fifteen dollars a month." Success, not dollars, possess the mind of the war correspondent; but it is not in nature that any one man should be endowed thus bountifully. Of all the men I have ever known, I believe that Lord Wolseley would have made the best war correspondent. He has the "stroke of the eye" for a battle-field. Criticism and an awakened sense of the fitness of things would have curbed the tendency to fustian his despatches too often betray; while the fire and lucidity they disclose would have remained to him. He is alert, he is rusé, he is audacious in all the senses of the word; he possesses endurance and address, and he is destitute of the bashfulness which has hindered the career of some otherwise deserving persons. But Wolseley had committed himself to the meaner avocation before war correspondence had crystallized into a profession. Of all the men I ever knew actually engaged in the work, Macgahan, taking him for all in all, came nearest, longo interrallo questionless, to the ideal I have tried to sketch. Cameron I never saw at work, and so have had no insight into his methods; but if one is to judge by results, he, too, must have been within measurable distance of the ideal. It is difficult to compare the two men, since Macgahan worked under conditions at once freer and more arduous—I mean professionally—than those which it befell Cameron to encounter. In the Continental wars of recent days—I know not what may be the conditions of the future—the correspondent had, as a general thing, to contrive his own strategy as well for seeing battles as for the prompt despatch of their descriptions. Nobody excelled Macgahan for "riding on the cannon-thunder." If there was any shortcoming in him at all, it was that the "Cossack correspondent" was occasionally weak in the pre-arrangements of his methods for prompt despatch of the intelligence of what result the cannon-thunder had wrought. He never forgot, but he was not always practical in the recognition of the fact, that the war correspondent has two distinct duties. Of course, he should see all that he can see, know all that he can know. But this, of itself, is not his goal. I had almost said it were worse than useless that he should witness an important event unless he makes secure the ability to make the world an early sharer with him in a knowledge of the phases and issue of that event. At a casual glance, it might seem that the principal qualification needed in the war correspondent is, that he should be a brilliant writer, able so to depict a scene that the reader may all but imagine he has witnessed that scene himself; capable of so describing a battle that the reader may glow with the swelling enthusiasm of the victory, and weep for the anguish of the groaning wounded. The ability to do this is questionless a great faculty; but it is not everything or even the most indispensable thing. For the sake of the art of vivid and picturesque description, one must regret that attributes of a less elevated type are of yet greater practical utility in the war correspondent; but he is a creature of circumstances, and works under the compulsion of conditions. The world lives so fast now-a-days, and is so voracious for what has come to be called the "earliest intelligence," that the man whose chiefest gift is that he can paint pictures with his pen may be overshadowed by the swift, alert man of action, who can get his bundle of dry, concise, comprehensive facts into print a couple of days in advance of the most brilliant description that ever stirred the blood. To-day, in war correspondence the race is emphatically to the swift, the battle to the strong.

I have watched the exertions of ardent men engaged in a considerable variety of avocations, but I have the firmest conviction that the zeal of the fervid war correspondent has rare if any parallel. The burning anxiety to succeed imbues his whole nature to its last fibre. In the lulls of the campaign he takes his ease, doubtless, and casual people who see him at a table d'hôte in the city which is his base may imagine that the life is one mainly of beer and skittles, and may rather hanker after the notion of taking to war correspondence themselves. But when the lull is over, and serious things impend, then the war correspondent lives only for his work, and is ready to die in it. When Picton's body was found after Waterloo, it was found he had been concealing a severe wound he had received at Quatre Bras. But I knew a shabby little Russian correspondent who, with a bullet-hole in his thigh, kept the field and did his work through a fortnight of the Servian campaign of '76, till he was finally killed in front of a battery above Alexinatz. St. Leger Herbert, sore wounded when riding with Herbert Stewart in the cavalry charge of El Teb, dictated a long and brilliant telegram to the Times while lying on his back waiting for his turn of the surgeon. Just before the Russo-Turkish war formally opened, Macgahan had his ankle-bone broken by a fall from his horse. When I first met him, as the campaign was opening, he was limping about with the limb enclosed in plaster of Paris. But never for a moment did he regard himself in the least incapacitated by an injury which would have invalided eleven out of twelve men. In the face of my protests, he accompanied Gourko's adventurous raid across the Balkans soon after the crossing of the Danube. In the passage through the narrow defile of the Hankioj Pass, his horse slid over a precipice, and in the fall Macgahan's half-set bone was broken again. But the gallant American disdained to be invalided by this misfortune. He could ride no more, but he quietly bade them heave him up on a tumbril, and so went through the whole adventurous expedition, being involved in several actions, more than once all but falling into the hands of the Turks, yet never for an hour—in pain, with uncared-for hurt, and inability to do anything for himself—neglecting the duty which he owed to his newspaper. After a fashion the bone, pretty much left to its own devices by Macgahan, did gradually reunite, but to the last he limped painfully; yet he was one of the three newspaper men—himself, Grant, of the Times (since dead), and Villiers, the artist of the Graphic—who, having seen the commencement of the long and arduous campaign, witnessed its close under the walls of Constantinople. I myself may be allowed to offer personal illustration of the absorption in his work of the correspondent's whole nature. On the day of the German entry into Paris, on the conclusion of the memorable siege, I had the ill-fortune to fall into the hands of a furious mob of patriots from Belleville, who fell to maltreat me the moment I quitted the protection of the German bayonets. They used me rather savagely. While I lay on the ground in their midst, as they did their best to stave in my head with their heavy shoes, it struck me that there was but a poor chance of my escape alive. Yet the sole thought that engrossed me was poignant anguish, that the fate which seemed inevitable must prevent me from carrying to Bouverie Street, as I had planned, the description of the German entry, and of the brilliant review on the Longchamps racecourse which had preceded the memorable promenade down the Champs Elysées. Again, during the seething turmoil of the fell days that saw the Commune close in blood, it happened to me to be stuck up against a wall to be shot by a handful of Versaillist soldiers, who assumed me to be a Communard in virtue of being a foreigner. The misconception went so far that the firing party were actually loading, and my life at the moment was certainly not worth thirty seconds' purchase. Yet in this somewhat critical juncture, I will make the confession, against myself as it must tell, that there was no thought in my mind of my family, or of the hereafter, but that I was permeated solely by the grief that the story there was in me—and the pang was the keener because the story was of intense, indeed unique interest—was not to reach that shabby old office in Bouverie Street, and give Robinson's heart another throb of joy and pride.

The electric telegraph, as I have said, was the great revolutionizer of the methods of war correspondence. The conservative spirit of the Old World was singularly illustrated in the tardiness—I had almost said the reluctance—with which the revolutionizing agency was accepted. In the great American Civil War which began in 1861 and ended in 1865, the wires were resorted to by the correspondents accompanying the Northern Army with a fulness, an alacrity, and an ingenuity that might surely have been pregnant with suggestiveness to the war journalism of Europe. But the reflection of the American enterprise was curiously faint on this side of the "herring-pond." Throughout the Austro-Prussian War of 1866, what little telegraphy was done by the correspondents in the field consisted exclusively of curt messages, compressing facts into the narrowest and driest compass. Of journalistic strategy, having for its aim the systematic forwarding of copious intelligence to an available telegraphic base for transmission by wire to the newspaper office, there was absolutely no symptom. The outbreak of the Franco-German war in 1870 was accompanied by not the slightest stirring of the dry bones. Men had lived, indeed, but they had not learned. At Saarbrück, whither immediately on the declaration of war I hastened to join the Germans, there was an early concentration of interest hardly surpassed later anywhere else, but as yet to no correspondent, veteran or youngster, had come the inspiration of telegraphing letters in full, a practice to-day so exclusively resorted to that war correspondence transmitted through the post may be said to be an obsolete tradition. Enterprise was as yet unkindled. The Prussian telegraph bureau would just then forward nothing, and that fact established, the journalists accepted the situation without the thought of an effort to conquer it, utterly failing to recognize the alternative staring us in the face in the shape of quick and unimpeded communication with the neutral territory of Luxemburg. For lack of perception of the possibilities lying so temptingly at hand, the battle of Spicheren, fought within two miles of the frontier, was undescribed over the wires; Courcelles (the French Borny), fought but some thirty-five miles inside Lorraine, was similarly ignored. What accounts of the desperate struggle of Vionville (or Mars-la-Tour) reached the eyes of English newspaper readers came home slowly and circuitously through the post; yet a correspondent, well mounted and making haste, might have left the field on the practical decision of the battle; and have reached Saarbrück (only forty-five miles away)—and at Saarbrück there would have been no hindrance to the prompt transmission of the news of a German victory—in time for the appearance in his London paper of the following morning of a succinct but intelligibly comprehensive description of the battle. Nor would he have lost aught by the short absence from the front which the ride to Saarbrück would have entailed, since with reasonable promptitude he could easily have been back again to the army in time for Gravelotte, fought on the following day save one after Vionville.

Gravelotte did get described after a fashion over the wires. But this new departure was taken by no correspondent of European origin. A little American gentleman named Hands—he is now, I believe, a United States vice-consul somewhere in South America—saw Gravelotte, or a portion of it, as the representative of one of the principal papers of his native land. He rattled off on the field a half column sketch of the great battle and its issue, and found means—whether he had contrived his scheme in advance or not, I am not aware—for sending the despatch to the Saarbrück telegraph office, whence it was promptly transmitted. There was an alliance between his American paper and one of the London dailies, in which latter the message appeared the day but one after the battle was fought. No great achievement in itself was this, looked back on now in the light of more recent developments; yet Hands' telegram should stand monumentally as the first attempt in the Old World to describe a battle over the telegraph wires.

The lesson it conveyed, it must be said, remained long quite unlearned. After Sedan, William Howard Russell and Hillary Skinner could devise no better expedient than a journey to England with the details of that great conflict, travelling after the first ten miles through a neutral territory, whose copious telegraphic resources were available for employment. For my own part, I crawled when I might have leaped, yet although groping along it, I was on the right path. Detailed to duty with the German troops encircling Metz, and passing through Saarbrück on my way to that service, I deposited with the telegraph-master of the frontier town a sum of money to defray the charges of transmitting to England what messages I should send him from the front by post or messenger. By this expedient I scored not a little; but so unregenerate was I, so timid on the score of expense, that the longest telegram I sent through this channel did not exceed half a column of the Daily News. "I laff, I du," like the American in "Mugby Junction," when I think what babes and sucklings we all were then.

But there was a full-grown man among us, although scarcely of us. Metz capitulated in the end of October, 1870. The morning but one after this event all England was startled by a telegram which appeared in the Daily News. This memorable despatch, printed verbatim from the telegraph slips, was over two columns in length, and described with minute detail, with admirable vigour, with effective if restrained picturesqueness, the events of the surrender. Next day the Times quoted the message in full, with the comment that it envied its contemporary "so admirable a correspondent." That admirable correspondent was not I who write. I had done my best according to my lights, and blindly thought I had done passing well. A few days after the capitulation, while at breakfast in a Metz hotel, a Daily News was handed me, containing the message I am speaking of. I turned sick with self-abasement. I had been smugly believing in myself, and here was the crushing evidence how completely and how mysteriously my eye had been wiped. It was stern teaching. I almost succumbed under it, but took heart of grace, and swore to profit by it. It was not until some time later that I learned who the man was who had thus at a stroke revolutionized war correspondence—for this, in a word, was what all unwittingly he had done. A young surgeon, a German American named Müller, was professionally attached to one of the ambulances or field hospitals of the army of beleaguerment. On his way from America through London to the seat of war he had accepted some sort of journalistic commission to do any work that might casually come in his way and should not be incompatible with the professional functions he meditated undertaking. I suppose as a volunteer he had more time at his disposal than falls to the lot of a surgeon of the regular service. Anyhow, he saw the capitulation, witnessed the taking over by the German troops of the Porte Serpenoise, penetrated into the city, and witnessed the confusion there. He and I may have rubbed shoulders in the Place d'Armes. Then having, as the Americans would say, "taken in" the whole situation, he proceeded to utilize his advantage in the most effective, daring, and purposeful manner. He rode from the west side of Metz away northward along the Moselle Valley, through a region infested by Franc-tireurs, through villages bitterly hostile to the Germans; he rode, I say, the long forty miles to the Luxemburg frontier, and crossing it, reached a village called Esch, a village so petty that it is marked on few maps and appears in no gazetteer. How he got his long telegram expedited from this hamlet I know not, but there is no question that he did somehow, and then—strange to say—he vanished, abiit, evasit, erupit. In a word, the man who made what I do not hesitate to call the greatest journalistic coup of our time, effaced himself utterly thenceforward. No laurels twined themselves round his name, which to all save a few is now revealed for the first time. I do not even know that he was aware he had earned any laurels. I have never seen the man in the flesh, much and often as I have tried to do so. In a word, of Müller it may be said, stat nominis umbra.

He kindled enterprise in us all, yet time elapsed before the full influence of this achievement of his made itself felt. A curious phenomenon, during the rest of the Franco-German war, was the supineness in what I may call craft. Few men attained to the recognition of opportunities. I own myself to be one of the few who did this in a measure. During the siege of Paris, when I was attached to the staff of the Crown Prince of Saxony's army on the north and east sides of the environment, messages from me habitually appeared in the Daily News of the next day but one after the date they bore. A colleague, or rather let me say a rival on the same ground, was so stung by this superior celerity of mine, that in the belief it could only be accomplished by official telegraphic facilities granted me, he complained to the head-quarter staff of the undue favouritism accorded to me. He was assured there was no such favouritism, and remained bewildered and dissatisfied to the end. I was told of this complaint, and of the answer made to it; and the question was put to me how I obtained the results which had been noticed and wondered at in the Prince's staff. Under pledge of secrecy, I revealed the very simple device. On my way through Saarbrück I had renewed my arrangements with its telegraph master, arranging also with a local banker to keep my credit balance with the former always up to a certain figure. A daily mail train travelled from close behind the Paris front eastward to the frontier in about twenty hours, and by it I sent my messages to the Saarbrück telegraph master, who wired them with the promptitude incited by due recognition. There was surely nothing very subtle or complex in this expedient, yet, so far as I know, the only other correspondent around Paris to whom it suggested itself was a confrère of my own, who posted telegrams to his wife at Carlsruhe, whence she transmitted them. At the close of the siege I had the good fortune to be the first correspondent to enter Paris, and utilized the advantage after the Müller fashion, although at a long interval. Getting out next morning, I travelled first on horseback and then by train away eastward to beyond the Rhine, and sent off a long telegram from Carlsruhe, whence I was back in Paris again within forty-eight hours.

When the Russo-Turkish War came six years later, the new conditions of war correspondence were found to have become more fully comprehended. The competition from the first was keen, particularly among correspondents on the Russian side, and there was considerable realization of the fact that strategic organization for the swift transmission of intelligence was a thing sedulously to study. Bucharest was the telegraphic base for the Bulgarian campaign. There, at the outset, I established an office at the head of which was a young colleague of tact and alertness, who had two clerks, one of whom was always on duty for transcribing into round-hand for the telegraph transmitters the rough, hurried, often pencil-written matter reaching the office from the front. Four of us field correspondents each took his own alloted section of the war theatre, with specified limits, with full equipment, and with instructions to forward, or to bring rentre a terre all important news to the office at the base. The work of organization devolving chiefly on me, I bent every faculty on the devisal of expedients for obtaining expedition and for obviating failure. At the telegraph office in Bucharest there was established a Russian censor. He was not a very ruthless person, but I realized that he could not reasonably be asked to pass the whole naked truth in the event of a Russian disaster. In case of such disaster, how, then, were the tidings of it to be transmitted? Away on the Transylvanian side of the Carpathians, in the neutral kingdom of Hungary, is the quaint town of Kronstadt. From Bucharest to Ploiesti, the railway station nearest the foot of the Carpathians on the Roumanian side, is a distance of about fifty miles; from Ploiesti to Kronstadt by a rough mountain road, the distance is over eighty miles. Before the Russians crossed the Danube, to meet the contingency I have specified, I had established a pony express service. Eight men were engaged, eight ponies were purchased; men and ponies were stationed at points about ten miles apart, with orders to the former never to quit their posts, and have the latter always in readiness. For six weeks and more this service ate its head off unutilized, but I would not break it up. At last its time came. Schafoskoy and Krüdener sustained a crushing defeat before Plevna on the 30th of June. Bucharest reached with the news, it was realized that the details of the reverse would not pass the censor. Then the pony express across the Carpathians stood justified of its utility, and resort to it enabled an eight-column telegram from Kronstadt to appear in the Daily News of August 3rd. It was a great exertion, but a telling stroke. When this message, because of its honesty, found favour in the eyes of the Russian headquarters instead of causing that expulsion of its author which was freely prophesied, the Bucharest censor was no more to be dreaded, and the pony express was broken up. It had been used just once; it had been constituted for about two months; I don't remember what it cost, but it was a pretty penny; and the money was not wasted.

From a battle at the Schipka Pass, I reached the Imperial headquarters at Gorni Studen well in advance of any of the Russian couriers, and had to describe the fight and its issue to the Emperor. This superior celerity was simply because on my way up to the Schipka I had posted relays of horses in charge of grooms at intervals along the road. One needed and one had a large stud to meet the requirements of those stirring times, during which by hard riding in three months I lost 2½ stones in weight. On the advance on Adrianople, after the fall of Plevna, the couriers organized by my brilliant colleague Frank Millet, used to carry back across the Danube with his letters the Russian despatches. At the outset of the Afghan campaign of 1878-79, I carried to the field telegraph office at the low end of the Khyber Pass, the official intimation of the fall of Ali Musjid from General Sir Sam Brown and Major Cavagnari to the Commander-in-Chief and the Viceroy of India. I believe that at last I got level with Müller in a ride which I made through Zululand to the telegraph office at Landmann's Drift, with the news of the victory of Ulundi. Of the more recent developments in quick telegraphy from Egypt and the Soudan, much as I have admired them, I cannot speak with any claim to specialism.

THE SPECIAL WAR ARTIST.

By F. VILLIERS, of the "Graphic."

F. VILLIERS.

AN artist must have at least three qualifications before he has any chance of success as a Special War Artist. First of all, rapidity in sketching; secondly, a quick perception of the most telling incident of a battle; and last and most important, the faculty of never missing the mail.

In the early days of special war artists during the Crimean campaign and Indian mutiny, postal communications were less anxiety to the artist than they ever are now, the mails being few and far between. There was after the excitement and fatigues of a fight at least some little time for reflection and rest of mind and body before it was necessary to send off the budget of sketches. Another happiness for the war artist of those days was that the special correspondents for the dailies were "all in the same boat." At that period, there being no telegraphic communication, sketches would arrive in England the same time as the first news and descriptions of the battle were published, and the drawings were produced in the illustrated papers only a few days after the public had become acquainted with the particulars. There has been a great change since then with the special. Mails certainly go oftener, accelerated by steam and rail, from all parts of the globe, but the telegraph wire makes known to the world an event so long before the sketches can possibly arrive at their destination that generally the public have almost forgotten the incident which a short time back may have stirred them to the marrow. The task, therefore, of getting his material home before this oblivion should take place causes the special artist no little anxiety. If after a fight of considerable interest he is unfortunate enough to miss his mail, the sketches when they arrive are almost worthless to his journal. Hard work, hunger, thirst, fatigue of mind and body, and risk of life goes for nought. The attention of the public is fixed on other matters now. A mine explosion or railway accident will bring blood and suffering nearer home. The melodrama of a great divorce case or comedy of breach of promise will hold the public mind for a time, shutting out the sorrows of wretched Bulgarians, the atrocities of barbarous Mussulmans, and the discomfort of Tommy Atkins in Afghan hills, fever-stricken Burmah, or thirst-racking Soudan desert.

Well do I remember in the early days of my campaigning the bitterness I felt at some incident nearer home blocking out sketches which I had worked so hard to obtain. It was in the Servian War of 1876, when Mr. Archibald Forbes and I resolved to see the Servians' second attempt to capture Saitschar. We started one afternoon from the camp at Deligrade in an open springless cart, carpeted with reeds from the adjacent river. Leaving the Morava flowing through its lovely valley on our right rear, we struck towards the mountains in the direction of the river Timok. Sleeping that night in a frouzy inn at a place called Banja. We, next morning, pushed through narrow defiles, into flowering valleys, and over vine-clad slopes, up towards the mêlange of purple hills, which bisected the Servian and Turkish frontiers near Saitschar. After sunset, the camp fires flickering on the heights around, told us we had come up with the rear guard of General Doctouroff's division. We halted for the night; we could not go on; our horses were dead tired, and the sentries would not allow us to move further till daylight dawned. So we ate the last of our scanty bread and raw sausage —for we found food scarce en route. Lighting our pipes, we settled down on the reeds at the bottom of the waggon, regretting much that we were not under some cover, for the night was chilly, and threatened to be wet. Towards morning we were awakened by the rain pattering in large drops on our faces, and found the straw we were lying on all soddened with water. We got out and walked about in the almost knee-deep mud to try and bring some little warmth into our chilled bodies, till day dawned, when we discovered that we were at the tag-end of a village, and soon descried the headquarter flag hanging, all bedraggled with rain, on the roof of the nearest hovel. On walking up to it, we discovered in the compound a Red Cross waggon of an English society for the relief of sick and wounded during war. The doctors offered us from their scanty store a sardine a piece, which we readily accepted with some bread; and we shared with an aide-de-camp his tumbler of hot tea. Soon our blood began to course in its proper way—the numbness left us. The rain still continued. The troops now began to debouch from the narrow valley we had traversed the preceding evening. Filing past the general, they slowly made their way along the heavy uphill road leading to the field of battle, the rain beating against their faces and soaking them to the skin. The gusts of wind from the mountains swept the cheers from their lips as they attempted to salute their general. I never saw a more doleful march past than that one on Saitschar.

The troops fought through the morning bravely enough, and might once have gained the day. But bad generalship, and the number of third-class reserve men armed with flint-lock and percussion guns, could not hold their own against Osman Pacha's better equipped troops. Towards the evening the Servians began to retire, and they retreated the greater part of the night. On our road back to Banja next day a thunderstorm raged through the mountain pass. The deluge of rain and violence of the wind threatened several times to drive us over the precipice. We clung to the waggon—then would rush to the horses' heads to keep them from going frantic with fear at the terrific flashes of lightning. After three days and nights incessant travelling, we arrived in Belgrade. When safely across the River Save and Servian frontier, I triumphantly posted my budget of sketches on Austrian soil. To my astonishment, when the Graphic reached me, my sketches had been blocked out of the paper by some passing event nearer home, and only one small half-page drawing appeared of the incidents round Saitschar.

Time will occasionally allow the special artist to put considerable finish into his work, but in cases of hard fighting the scantiest materials are sometimes sent home, but of course with a considerable number of marginal notes to direct the artist on wood.

The passage of the Danube at Simnitza was one of the slightest sketches done by me during that campaign, a most remarkably accurate reproduction appearing in the Graphic a few days after its arrival. I had just twenty minutes to sketch the subject in. Having hardly commenced to draw, Forbes rode up and said, "Have you finished?" "No," said I, "only just begun." "Well," replied he, "I am off in twenty minutes for a ride to Gorgieuvo, and hence to Bucharest, with my telegrams. If your envelope is ready by that time, I will take it." Of course it was ready, but caused me a considerable effort, what with the glare of the early morning sun in my eyes, almost choking with the dust of the incessant marching of the troops, and the noise and bustle of battle.

Mr. Forbes and I happened to be the only correspondents there at the time of the crossing. We had it all to ourselves. Imagine my surprise when a few weeks afterwards, walking into a café in Bucharest, I saw round one of the little tables four or five Frenchmen laughing over a number of the newly-arrived Graphic. The artist of the Monde Illustré, pointing to one of the pictures, was saying, "This will show you what these English artists are; look at those men fighting round that solitary house on the Sistova levée of the Danube. That was not there at all. Was it, Lazzaro?" addressing himself to a comrade. "Certainly not," replied the Italian. I walked up and said, "Certainly not; you are both quite right; but so is the artist. That house you refer to was there when he was there; but, gentlemen, when you both arrived, many hours after the battle, it had been razed to the ground, after one of the finest little fights I ever saw on the part of the Turkish garrison." The laugh turned against those two gentlemen; and when I added that if they ever went so near the front as to cross the Danube, they might yet see the ruins of the house, if that would satisfy them, they were absolutely affronted. This very French war artist was the cause only a week or two before of an amusing conversation between myself and the then Prince Charles, now King of Roumania. Calling on him one morning, he said, "Mr. Villiers, you were with me when I reviewed my little army at Kalafat, and our batteries down by the river proved their guns, and the only damage done was a shell taking a few feet of a scarp off one of the Turkish redoubts. "Yes, sir," said I. "Very well, look here," and the Prince produced a French illustrated paper with two drawings in it. One was the burning of Widden, and the other was Kalafat in ruins. I doubt whether the artist at the front was responsible. May be they were invented at home on some inaccurate telegraphic news in one of the dailies. I am afraid this is sometimes done in other countries besides France. I remember seeing a sketch produced in another illustrated paper of a different nationality of the retreat of the Servian army in the late war with Bulgaria. The men shivering with cold in their tattered uniforms were trudging through a slough of mud rather than road, a gloomy sky overhead and a mist hanging over the deeply-rutted fields. Yet in a contemporary was a sketch of the Bulgarian force on the heels of this very retreat—marching on ground as hard and as flat as a billiard table; the men with overcoats neatly rolled across their bodies, marched with boots unspotted with mud or soiled with dust, led in companies by their full complement of officers in open order, filing past a general officer; above a cloudless sunny sky. It was well-known during that war that there was about one commissioned officer to each thousand men, for the Czar of Russia had withdrawn them, and the public must certainly get confused if they ever take the trouble to think about it. Here was a sketch so clumsily concocted that the originator did not even look at his morning newspaper for material wherewith to throw a little semblance of truth into his work. He would at least have found out how inclement the weather was, and the state of the Bulgarians regarding their officers. No wonder the special artist, under the circumstances, is looked at with some suspicion. It accounts for the many inquiries that I must say this libelled individual gets put to him. Do you ever go into danger? Have you ever been under fire? Then, if so, how is it you don't come back wounded? A very intimate friend of mine told me that he was once at a dance. The young lady he was leading up for the Lancers was a stranger. As they were waiting for the music to begin, there was quite a stir near the door—all turned in that direction. The hostess was talking in rather a loud voice to a young man who had just arrived. A whisper went through the room, and there was quite a flutter from the ladies' fans and dresses, and my partner said: "Oh, that is Captain ——, an officer just come from the war in Egypt. How wan he looks; but how beautifully sunburnt! Oh, how I should love to hear all about his adventures and fights! If I were a man, how I should like to see all this! Wouldn't you?" My friend replied that he was a man, and had seen a good deal. "But have you been to Egypt?" "Yes," replied he. "What were you doing there?" "Sending sketches to the papers." "A correspondent artist! How interesting; but of course you don't go into danger, do you?" said she, with a little sigh, and lifting her eyes in the direction of the doorway and the officer. "No; never if I can help it," replied he. "You have never seen a fight?" again inquired she. "Yes; many," answered my friend. "Are you wounded?" "No; never." "Then you could not have gone very far into the battle. I should like to know in how many places that young officer has been wounded." I suggested that if she honoured him with a dance, he might even suffer among his many other wounds a pericardiac affection. I could have told her more, said my friend, but did not take the trouble. The young officer I knew very well. He was attached to the commissariat, or ordnance, at the base of operations, during the whole campaign, and had not seen a shot fired in anger. When I happened to have been in the bombardment; landed with the blue-jackets; seen the attack on Kafr-el-Dahour; the fights at El Mafah and Massamah; and eventually marched with the 42nd during the night attack on Tel-el-Kebir. But, with all the exertions on my friend's part to provide the British public with authentic details of interesting events, nevertheless, like the charming young lady of the ball, they are still uncertain whether, on looking at a special artist's drawing, to believe their eyes or not. There is one fact which ever remains; and that may prove to the least credulous that honest work is done. The mortality of correspondents in campaigning is far greater in proportion to either the naval or military service. In the late Soudan campaigns, out of not more than twenty correspondents six were killed, one died from disease, two were slightly wounded; and others had narrow escapes from shooting, drowning, and dying of thirst.

EXPERIENCES OF COMIC JOURNALISM.

By late EDITOR of "FUNNY FOLKS."

"THERE are but fifteen original jokes in the world—all the rest are variations," said some one whose name is lost to history. This crystallized truth comes home very forcibly to everyone who has had practical acquaintance with comic journalism, and occasionally is too evident, I am afraid, to the readers of comic journals. Good jokes are so scarce, that when one of these rarities is presented to the editor of a comic paper, he uses it with much misgiving lest it should turn out to be a plagiarism. This distrust is never absent when the good joke is contributed by an outsider, and sometimes is produced by an unusually spontaneous effort of the professional writer. It is by no means an uncommon thing for the same idea to be evolved by two men independent of each other. A case in point occurs to me. A member of the staff of one comic journal sent in the following conundrum :—"What is the difference between an industrious working man and a cremationist?" Answer: "The one earns his living, the other urns h dead." Two days after, and fortunately in time to stop publication of the riddle, it was discovered that the same idea, worked out in almost identical words, had appeared in a contemporary. This was simply an accident, since the contributor of the jeu de mot was beyond suspicion. An old joke by an amateur is not so easily detected. As a rule the old joke has been dug up from the back volumes of Punch by chance, and not necessarily for re-publication. It is told to B, retailed to C as original, thought to be just the thing for the "Scorpion," by D, who forthwith, and in perfectly good faith, sends it in as a brand new effusion. Of course, by a good joke, a simple or more often complex play of words is not meant. This kind of comic writing is now the refuge for the destitute wit. Tom Hood exhausted the mine, and H. J. Byron could only work it by a lavish supply of verbal "salting." You marvel at the ingenuity, but you don't laugh.

Having so limited a stock-in-trade to start with, how comes it that anybody takes to comic journalism as a means of livelihood? The question is a difficult one to answer. Poeta nascitur non fit. And so I fancy is a comic journalist. Commencing with a native capacity for evolving jokes he knows not why, he takes to making them for a full and sufficient reason. He is lured onward by a power which at first he pets and finally grows to loathe. Your professional jokist is not as a rule a cheerful man. There are a few exceptions—those possessing a superabundance of animal spirits for instance—who may be said to be still human, but the majority—well, of my own acquaintances, veterans in comic literature, one, saturnine yet amiable, has constant warfare with his liver; another, without any chronic complaint, take a jaundiced view of things—I suppose out of pure "cussedness"; a third, a kindly sympathetic Diogenes, is prematurely grey, a compound of sweetness and sadness; a fourth, melancholy and taciturn, has "blighted existence" written all over him; a fifth, with wild and wandering eye and gaunt aspect, marches through the streets with a pre-occupied air suggestive of immediate suicide.

These are examples of the survival of the fittest. The others, the failures, those who never get beyond their first efforts, are countless. This first effort is one of the most remarkable characteristics of comic journalism. Every editor knows what it is to receive among the inane productions which cumber his waste-paper basket something which seems to show a vein of original humour. Here, he thinks, is talent worth cultivating. He inserts the first effort; he encourages the young author to go on. The second attempt is received, and, alas! all originality has disappeared and humour as well. The "copy" is returned with a polite intimation that the editor does not think Mr. X's second contribution quite so good as his first, but that he may try again. Mr. X. does try again with the result that effort No. 3 is worse than No. 2. No. 3 is sent back and nothing more is heard of Mr. X.

But sometimes it happens that Mr. X, after innumerable failures elsewhere, and possibly a few successes, returns to you again. He has acquired more judgment, he has begun to discriminate between unmeaning word play and the ludicrous association of ideas (the essence of all humour), he is now contented with a smaller number of witticisms, and has concentrated his style. If so, it is pretty certain he has cast in his lot among comic journalists, and sooner or later will be enrolled in the army of martyrs.

And then? What constitute the tools with which he works? What is the course of training capable of giving him the power at a few minutes' notice to turn out a quarter, a half, a whole column of matter which shall at least be up to the standard of the paper to which he belongs—beyond it, if possible? Does anybody but those who have been through the mill know the horror of being "funny" to order? The leader writer may eke out his article with any number of platitudes, which sound very well, but mean very little. The humorous writer must be crisp in his sentences, bright in his style, and, above all, put in plenty of "points," especially at the tail, for which he reserves his best. This is of great importance, and the skilled workman will often subdue the rest of the matter in order to bring out the final "point" more sharply. With an untrained writer a lame and impotent conclusion is nearly always the rule.

But this power of putting in "points"—how is it to be acquired? Unfortunately no comic writer can tell, save that it implies constant practice and concentrative capacity. Even the trained mind breaks down occasionally. I recollect one of the wittiest of modern writers, a man of ready resource and of a peculiarly delicate vein of humour, coming to me flurried and anxious.

"The paper is waiting to go to press," said he, "and I want a one-line joke."

I shuddered on hearing the request, for when you are not prepared nothing is more difficult than the one-line joke—that is to say, if it is to be topical and is to have a good point. The evolution of that miserable quip took us half-an-hour, and left us exhausted. What the result was I do not remember, and if I did, probably it would now be said that it was not worth the pains bestowed upon it.

This, however, is an extreme case. The production of humorous matter when you are not tied for time or fettered by the necessity for brevity is another affair altogether. Most comic writers have settled forms into which they throw their ideas, and in which, for some occult reason—probably, force of habit—they find they work better. A dramatic form suits some subjects, others are better treated in a conversational style. A very useful individual is the special interviewer, who may be a Munchausen, a lunatic, or may possess any fancy characteristics convenient for bringing out the points. Sometimes an odd idea which strikes one at starting may suggest others, and so the paragraph or the article is built up.

As a rule, unless you are in a very happy vein, the writing refuses to flow continuously; the jokes are not evolved in rapid sequence. You are never certain when you begin what the end will be. The initial idea is everything, and if you are fortunate in this the rest is comparatively easy. But occasionally this initial idea, apparently so promising, turns out to be a stubborn strata which yields nothing, dig as hard as you may. Then, indeed, is tribulation. The only thing left is to cast the notion aside and take another, if you can find one. More frequently than not you discover that the first abortive effort has tired you out, and from a weary brain brilliancy cannot be expected. A few thin quips and a miserable sense of wasted nerve power will probably be the outcome of such a morning's work.

This sensation of failure is one of the secrets of the prison house. Few comic writers like to acknowledge the weakness, even to one another, yet all are at times conscious of it.

"Do you find your stuff come pretty spontaneously?" said one professional humourist to another, half hesitatingly, and in an apologetic tone, as though he had committed a breach of etiquette.

"Spontaneously!" exclaimed the other. "Why, my dear fellow, it is as a rule a species of mosaic work. When I sit down to write I always have at my elbow scraps of paper on which I first put down each sentence, altering, polishing, or discarding as the case may be. It does not often happen that I can write a thing straight off."

"I am very glad to hear you say that," replied the inquirer, looking much relieved. "My experience is exactly yours. I have often felt quite miserable over the time I spend, and the little I sometimes have to show for it. I have always imagined that I was exceptionally slow, and have frequently wondered whether your (naming a special vein of humour with which the other was identified), which reads like a fairly spontaneous effort, was written quickly."

"Quite the reverse, I assure you. It is the result of a long and laborious process of piecing together."

When the article is "thrown off" at once two conditions are necessary. You must come to the work with a brain fresh and active, and you must have a strong personal interest in the subject. The late Evelyn Jerrold was one of the few humorous journalists whose ideas flowed at the first onset. But then, his vein was satire rather than humour, and his specialty political skits written from his own point of view, which was strongly Radical. His personal opinions largely influenced his work and certainly sharpened his pen. He had also what comic journalists do not always possess—a perfect knowledge of the subject he was writing upon. He was an indefatigable student of modern political history, and his "points" came with greater force, because they were so true. As a writer of keen, trenchant, political verse, he has left no successor. But he had one serious fault, from an editorial point of view. His handwriting was of the most involved character, the lines very close together, the loops of his y's, h's, l's, and g's lovingly intermingled, and he invariably used violet ink! Let no one seek to imitate him in these peculiarities.

Easy reading, then, it is pretty clear is very hard writing, Still harder is it to find the initial idea with which to start. By dint of constant practice, the professional jokist on the hunt for a paragraphic quip will be sure to turn a few in the course of a systematic search through the daily papers. The paragraph which will repay toiling at, to unearth the pun lying concealed within he at once pounces upon by a kind of instinct. It is simply a matter of manufacture, and, like many other skilled workmen, he could scarcely tell you why he knows, almost at a glance, what material to choose and what to reject. But the paragraphic quip is, as I have already said, the lowest form of wit. The manufactured article has never the sparkle of the true gem, and the proportion of real, spontaneous, epigrammatic jokes to the spurious, is certainly not more than one in a thousand. Nevertheless, the faculty of manufacturing the paragraphic joke is a very useful one, and no comic journalist's education can be said to be complete unless he possesses the accomplishment. It is his unhappy fate never to be able to forget that he is writing for a comic paper, and if he only reviews a new book, or notices a consignment of Christmas cards, neither of which occupations is at all mirth inspiring, he must not do his work without introducing the inevitable quip. If the title of the book, or the name of the card manufacturer be at all suggestive of a jeu de mot thrice blessed is the comic writer; if not, and he has to go far afield to work in a joke—well, that way madness lies.

The manufacture of the more elaborated article—skit, parody, imaginary conversation, or what not, is, as a rule, a much more legitimate piece of work, and certainly far pleasanter to do. The initial idea may come as you are walking in the street, riding in an omnibus, having your dinner, or chatting with a friend. When the notion flashes through your mind, make a note of it at once, for there is nothing in the world so slippery, nothing so difficult to retain. Still, in mercy to your friends, do not make notes of everything which occurs to you. It is certain not to be worth the trouble. I know one professional humourist who carries this system of note making to almost the mania point. In the course of a short walk from Ludgate Circus to the Law Courts he will have had his note book out half-a-dozen times. This is extremely irritating, because you have a lurking suspicion it was something you said which caused the memorandum to be made, and you rack your brain in the vain endeavour to recollect the lost brilliancy. Besides, it is, to say the least, uncomfortable to be suddenly pulled up every five minutes and be compelled to wait while your abstracted friend jots down his "notion" quite heedless of the block he is causing in the thoroughfare.

But there are few comic writers so systematic as this. Their foibles are the other way; and often has a man to lament the loss of an idea which he omitted to note at the time it occurred to him, and only remembers it when too late.

The quintessence of comic writing lies, it is almost unnecessary to say, in the manufacture of the illustrated joke. Here the journalist has need of all his invention and concentrative power. "But," the public may ask, "what has the comic writer to do with illustrated jokes? Doesn't the artist find his own jokes?" Not necessarily. Those in the very first rank probably do not trouble the editor very much for notions, as from the good prices they get they can afford to spend the necessary time in the seeking out of notions for themselves. In addition, the well-known comic artist usually has a host of friends who are only too glad to bring incidents and stories, "which you could make an awfully funny picture of, my boy." Six out of every twelve of these "good" stories are probably old, five are not worth telling, and the twelfth, with a little manipulation, may pass. The very best illustrated jokes are those which portray a bit of real life, and do not smell of the lamp. It is pretty certain that John Leech got the jokes which he put into the mouths of his inimitable cabmen, omnibus drivers, flunkies, and servant girls from nature. There is not the least savour of invention about them.

The artists who are at the other end of the scale—amateurs, with just a smattering of the knowledge of drawing—also provide their jokes (?); about which it is only necessary to say that they are quite equal to the draughtsmanship. But the hard-working professional comic artist of the middle rank, who has other engagements not alway of a comic nature, where is he to get his jokes from? At the commencement of his career he has enthusiasm, and may bring in ideas to his editor every week. But the success of a joke lies not with him who makes, but with him who takes it. What appeared so funny to the artist seems to lose half its point when looked at by the cold critical editorial eye. After a few failures the artist gives up attempting to supply jokes, and is quite contented to leave the matter to the editor. And he is not to be blamed. He is practically master of the situation. Comic papers must have pictures, and these the artist is ready to furnish. All he wants is the subject. If he hasn't got a subject, then the editor must find him one. The consequence is that he ceases to think about the matter until the day comes round when he calls for his joke.

By degrees the editor looks upon his artists much in the same way as he regards his income-tax collector. He knows their demands for jokes must be fulfilled, but he puts off the evil hour as long as possible. Very often he has been unable to conjure up the least semblance of a humorous idea, and editor and artists meet each other with the blankest of faces. Something likes this is the scene:—

EDITOR.—Good morning, Mr. Smith. Any notions?

ARTIST.—No; have you?

EDITOR.—Not a ghost of one.

(They stare at each other helplessly for two minutes. Editor plunges his hands deep in his trousers pockets, as if he had a joke or two concealed about him, and was trying to find them. Artist knits his brows, and frowns at the wall in a manner suggestive of Belshazzar.)

EDITOR (sadly).—That was a funny thing in to-day's Telegraph about the man who, &c.

ARTIST (brightening up).—Yes; wonder if we could do anything with it.

(They hammer at the paragraph for a quarter of an hour.)

EDITOR (despondingly).—I'm afraid there's nothing in the thing.

ARTIST (resignedly).—Doesn't seem much.

Editor paces up and down the room. Artist watches him sorrowfully.

EDITOR (suddenly ecstatic).—Look here. Did you see what the Daily News has been suggesting about so and so. Why not, &c., &c.

ARTIST (confidently).—Oh, that's better! and then you might have, &c., &c.

EDITOR.—Yes, and if, &c., &c.

(And with a feeling of thankfulness he sends Mr. Smith away, and braces himself up for an interview of a similar nature with Mr. Jones.)

This may be called a very favourable sample of the process of manufacturing a comic picture. Too often, half-a-dozen subjects may be tried, and only after fighting the air for a couple of hours is the result achieved. If there is anything more exhausting than this kind of thing I shall be glad to know it. There is mental labour which leaves the brain fatigued, but it is healthy fatigue—if the term may be used. The evolution of comic pictures in this cold-blooded fashion has nothing healthy about it. The effect when matters go smoothly is weariness; when they go untowardly, and the joke is obstinate, it is almost brain paralysis. After a prolonged séance you begin to fail to discriminate between what is funny and what is drivelling nonsense; and then comes the horrible suspicion when you have dismissed the artist that your verdict has been in favour of the drivelling nonsense. It is only when the number is out and the brain has recovered itself that you are reassured.

The natural question which some one may ask in answer to this, I fear, somewhat pessimistic view of comic journalism is "Are there no compensating influences?" To the artist there may be a few, to the writer scarcely any. The former may, when travelling on the railway, have the satisfaction of seeing a smile irradiate the countenance of a fellow-passenger who is looking at his (the artist's) work; but this joy the writer never experiences.

As for the editor, his only gratification is the perusal of the letters of the well-meaning outside public. It is rather droll when, about once a week, you receive a communication commencing "Dear Sir—my little boy, aged seven years and a half, said a very clever thing at dinner yesterday which I thought you would like to have for your widely circulated journal, &c." The clever thing is never clever enough to print, but it amuses the editor in his sad hours.

A very common epistle is that of the tradesman who insists upon telling you what a customer said in his shop the other day. The writer usually favours you with a pen and ink sketch of his counter and of the lady. He always apologizes for the drawing, and hopes that one of your clever artists will be able to put it all right. Then there is the confiding would-be contributor who leaves you to fix the remuneration for his efforts, the cautious contributor who fixes his own remuneration, and the extra cautious contributor who wants to know what your remuneration is before he trusts his valuable jokes to your tender mercy.

The poets are occasionally entertaining. They are very numerous, and for every piece of prose at least half a dozen poems arrive. Many of these have merit, but nearly all possess the slight drawback of requiring a whole number of the journal to themselves. When the amateur mounts Pegasus he never knows where to stop. Sometimes the effort is so remarkable for its unconscious badness that one would be tempted to print it were it not for fear that the public seeing it in a comic journal might take it seriously. But there is no such danger here, and I take the opportunity of giving a specimen verbatim et literatim.

THE FATE OF JUMBO.

Jumbo was a noble beast
Was loved by rich and poor
He done his work hear on Earth
But now he is no more.

They sent him far accross the sea
Much money for to gain
Untell he met with this most awthall Death,
Which caused his keeper pain.

Poor Jumbo I feel sad at heart
When I think of thy poor Fate
Many a time I road on thy Back
And loudly laughted outright.

Some Man have their fourtune made
By Exibting that noble beast,
And now he dead they do the same
Whatever Town they meet.

Though gems like this may somewhat brighten the joyless life of a comic journalist, they do not reconcile him to his fate. Why, then, does he continue to "turn out" comic copy? The answer is best given in the words of Charles Dibden's sister, who, when asked how it was her brother could compose such beautiful songs, replied: "I don't see why he shouldn't. He has nothing else to do!"

TYPE COMPOSERS.

DR. MACKIE'S COMPOSING MACHINE.

EVERY few months we have notices from abroad about new type-composers and we naturally ask, What about the English machines from which some years ago so much was expected? For instance, at the Exhibition of 1872 a type-composer, working automatically, was one of the sights of the Exhibition, and the talk of the trade.

After the Exhibition closed at South Kensington, the machine was sent to the Edinburgh Museum, at the Government expense, and received marked attention from the mass of printers in the Scottish metropolis. At length it and a number of others were put to work at Crewe and Warrington, but ultimately were confined to the Warrington office, where there is an uninterrupted flow of "copy" day by day, owing to the numerous newspapers printed there, and plenty of copy being a sine qua non in the profitable working of the "Mackie Composer." That it is profitable at Warrington, a comparative statement published in the Printers' Register some years ago gave ample proof. The effect, however, is best seen by the rapid growth of the Guardian office at Warrington to one of the largest and most complete printing-offices in the kingdom. It has also important printing branches in Liverpool, London, and Chester.

After years of labour Dr. Mackie, the inventor, discarded the idea of any machine which tied one person to work it, and succeeded in producing one that, in its larger sizes at least, comprises all the following elements:—

(1) They will set 8,000 types an hour.

(2) They will set any size of type used for books or newspapers at that speed, and change instantly from one size to another. Thus, news and leaders may be set with but little delay in changing.

(3) They contain capitals, small capitals, figures, spaces, punctuation marks, and italic, according to size.

(4) Their speed is the same in any language, or any mixture of languages.

(5) They are perfectly automatical, are driven by steam, and guided by perforated paper. This perforated paper is to the composing machine what the card is to the Jacquard loom—in fact, it is the application of the principle of the Jacquard loom to the setting of type.

Digitized by Google

(6) The same perforated paper will direct the machine first for one size of type and then for another—for a shilling Bible to-day and a Family Bible to-morrow. Thus, at least one-half the cost of second editions is saved. The perforated paper may be lent, sold, or used again and again, and corrections made, in future years. Perforating may be done anywhere, and by those who have never seen a type. Perforated paper, instead of "early sheets," may be sent abroad.

(7) The machines never require to stop, being fed while in motion.

(8) No special kind of type is required, nor any special nick in the type.

(9) The machine has fifteen pockets arranged around it at equal distances. Each pocket has eight divisions, holding eight kinds of type, and the pickpockets, after having their triggers set at the "spelling bracket," by means of the perforated paper, run round and underneath the "pockets," and extract letters at once, delivering them in due order at the spout, in endless lines, ready for justification.

Wicks's Composing Machine, the keyboard of which we give above, is the most simple and most productive yet produced.

It will be observed that the most frequently used types are comprised in those between the comma and the letter "d." Any combination of letters on the keyboard spelling from left to right may be struck at the same instant, and an expert operator will be able to strike an average of two at a time. Operators will, by practice, learn to spell in combination like shorthand writers. Thus they will read pro-po-si-tion so that four strokes on the keyboard will set the word. The other points in the machine are that it has no springs or tapes. The letters are arranged at an angle of 45 degrees, and never change from that position until they are set upright by the setting wheel. They do not run down devious channels, but each and all run down one straight line, and only one. The types are never touched on the face, and are placed in the single straight channel by a sideway movement of only three-sixteenths of an inch. The keys need depressing only three-eighths of an inch; the letters are not hidden in tubes, but can be seen and handled; indeed, every part of the machine is open to the eye and touch. The justifying table can be varied to anything up to 40 picas.

Mr. Wicks, having discarded all idea of mechanical distribution, proposes to supply new type for these machines by a new rotary type casting machine constructed upon an entirely novel principle. Each revolution of a wheel of solid steel moulds will cast and deliver 100 letters, comprising eight letters e and one z, an assortment of capitals and infrequently used sorts. These will be finished automatically and arranged in rows ready for the composing machine at a speed equal to producing a million types in a working day. This gives opportunity for a discount which will leave a net result sufficient for the requirements of any existing daily paper.

Smaller offices not desirous of casting could be supplied with letter for once using, in holders, at a price less than the ordinary cost of distribution.

The casting machine is simple in conception. The moulds are formed of a steel matrix on the end of a piston at the bottom of the mould proper. The end of the mould appears on the periphery of the wheel, which is about two inches thick; and as this end passes a given spot, the size of a pin-point, it fills with type metal, and carries away a type. This type, in the course of the revolution, it places in a receptacle which comes for it and carries it away to its special groove where all of its kind have gone before.

PRINTING.

WE have in our own printing office adjoining, compositors who are skilful in the setting up and "display" of every class of Advertisement; in addition to which they are furnished with a large selection of display types, and the special founts of types used by the various newspapers enabling us to forward printed "copy" to the papers, thus ensuring taste and attractiveness in display, uniformity in style, and accuracy in every detail.

The following styles of setting and display of type will give some idea of the attractiveness that is to be obtained by merely ordinary roman type and printer's rules, signs, &c.:— on the lungs till they are diseased. The heart

cannot pump.
The liver is a

are all compressed. Therefore this woman grows to be a fearful mass of woes, but thinks she has a lovely shape, though hideous as a crippled ape.

* This * is a woman's
which corset never yet disgraced. Inside it is a mine of health. Outside of charms it has a wealth.
It is a thing of beauty true and a sweet joy for ever new. It has no artful padding vile or bustles big to give it
"style." It is strong and solid, plump and sound, and hard to get one arm around. Alas, if women only knew the mis-they'd let Dame Nature have her way, and never try her "waste" to "stay."

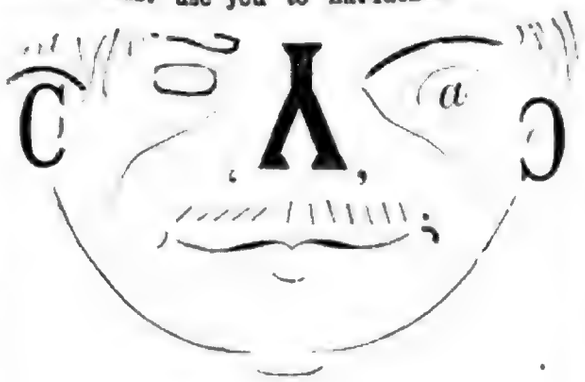
The Man who does Not Advertise.

The Man who Does Advertise.

Hello! you new eight-dollar tile, Come, make my head ache just for style. Make me grow bald and heat my brain and make me dread to see it rain. I've got to wear you though I die for fear some geese will pass me by. You make me envy all the girls, who, on a mass of borrowed curls, pin something which they call a hat, too light to lay their tresses flat. You're only fit to hold a brick and get, when in the street, a kick from men who while they you despise must use you to hat-racked soft eyes.



Good-bye, you dear old hat of straw, I've got to shoot you—that's the law, and yet, if I could have my way, till winter comes with me you'd stay. You cool my head and shade my face, and keep, save windy days, your place. Straw hat! I love you for you seem all that is left of summer's dream. The girl you bowed to, yes, and fanned; wore you, too, while I was tanned, forgets us both. Now you are shot. Alas! I'd like to share your lot.

ANCIENT ADVERTISING.

IT is a common delusion that advertising is the result of the printing press, the ancients, like the intelligent moderns, were not blind to the advantages of advertising. The Greeks, in spite of their love of art, did not shrink from posting their advertisements upon the statues of the god, although the more pious amongst them must have regarded such a custom as a shameful sacrilege. They seem to have preferred, however, to have subsidized the infernal gods rather than the celestial gods as the bearers of their advertisements. If they turned Pluto, the King of Hell, into a sort of sandwich-man, they never ventured, so far as we know, upon subjecting Jupiter, the King of Heaven, or Pallas Athene, the Goddess of Wisdom, to such an indignity. The Bristol Museum is in possession of a whole collection of ancient Greek advertisements, which were dug up in the island of Kuidos in the year of 1758. They are in the form of leaden plates, upon which are inscribed the names of honest persons, who had found articles, or of rogues who had stolen them. Such a plate could, of course, be used again and again, the old advertisement being erased, the plate smoothed, and a new advertisement indented upon it. These, however, are by no means the oldest advertisements in the world. That wonderfully-cultivated people, the old Egyptians, seem to have been regular advertisers. Papyrus leaves have been excavated amongst the ruins of Thebes, more than three thousand years old. They are inscribed with the description of runaway slaves, and the offer of a reward to anyone who can catch them and return the wretched men to their proprietors. Possibly it was a custom in Egypt, as it certainly was in Greece and Rome, to fasten advertisements upon the walls of public buildings, on the pedestals of statues, in the most frequented spots. In such cases, however, the people had to go to the advertisement, instead of the advertisement coming to the people, as it now does in our newspapers.

REMARKABLE ADVERTISEMENTS DATING FROM THE YEAR 1600.

1663.—"These are to give notice to the heirs and trustees of William Hinton, some time one of the servants of the late king; and to the heirs or trustees of the estate of one Christopher King, and Mr. Francis Braddock, sometimes of London, gent.; that there is a discovery of a concealment of some estate belonging to them or some of them, or to some persons claiming from them; whereof they may be informed if they repair to Mr. John Bellinger, at his house in Clifford's Inn Lane, in Fleet Street."

1668.—"A young brindled mastiff, cropt with three notches on the rump, four white feet, and a white streak down the face, was lost on Fryday was seven-night, July 31. 'Tis one of the king's dogs, and whoever gives notice of him at the porter's lodge in Whitehall, shall have a very good reward."

1668.—"Stolne on Fryday night, the 10th instant, from Peter Bennier, his Majesty's sculptor, between Whitehall and Charing Cross, one blackmore cast from the life, and three or four other heads. If any person can bring notice of the blackmore to the said Peter Bennier, at his house over against the signe of the 'Golden Balle,' they shall be very well payd for their payns."

1664.—"Without Bishopsgate, near Hog Lane, over against the watch-house, liveth one Jacob Summers, a weaver, who maketh and selleth town velvets at reasonable rates."

1664.—"Whereas, his sacred Majesty (Charles II.) has been pleased, after example of his royal ancesters, to incorporate the musitians of England for the encouragement of that excellent quality; and the said corporation to empower all that profess the said science, and to allow and make free such as they shall think fit. This is to give notice to persons concerned, that the said corporation sits once a week in 'Durham Yard,' in pursuance of the trust and authority to them committed by his most gracious Majesty."

1664.—"At the 'Angel and Sun,' in the Strand, near Strand Bridge, is to be sold every day, fresh Epsum-water, Barnet-water, and Tunbridge-water; Epsum-ale, and Spruce-beer."

1679.—"This is to give notice to all the Marshals, both in the city and countrey, that may be desirous to come to their namesake's feast, which will be the 13th of November, 1679, at Mr. Edward Marshal's house, at the sign of the 'Cock,' in Fleet Street, where the tickets are delivered, and at Mr. Marshal's, bookseller, at the 'Bible,' in Newgate Street."

1679-80.—"Whereas Johnn Pippin, whose grandfather, father, and himself have been for 100 years past famous throughout England for curing the rupture, making the most easy trusses of all sorts, both for men, women, and children, being lately deceased; this is to certify to all persons that Eleanor Pippin, the widow, who in his lifetime made all the trusses which he sold, still lives at 'The Three Naked Boys,' near the Strand Bridge, where she makes all manner of trusses. She also hath a gentleman to adjust in the fitting of them upon men, he being intrusted by the said John Pippin in his lifetime."

1680.—"William Deval, at the sign of the 'Angel and Stilliards,' in St. Ann's Lane near Aldersgate, London, maketh Castile, marble, and white sope, as good as any man sells, tryed and proved, and sold at very reasonable rates."

1680.—"Whereas one John Stuart, of a tall stature, black brows, a wart upon his cheek, in a black periweg, and a tawny or black suit, and campaign coat, has been lately intrusted to sell several pieces of black worsted, crapes, hair chamblets, black philemot, and sky-coloured mohairs, watered and unwatered; with which goods he is run away, and cannot yet be heard of. Whoever gives notice of the man and goods (who, it is thought, is gone towards Ireland) to Mr. Howard, in Milk Street Market, shall have 40s. reward."

1680.—"A book in quarto, bound in parchment, about a quire of paper, near all writ out, being several accompts for work done, being missing out of a shop near Cheapside Conduit; supposed to fall off the stall, or other wayes, by some accident, lost about the middle of September last. If any will bring the said book to Mr. Hifftell's Coffee-house, in Cheapside, near the Nagg's Head Tavern, shall have 10s. reward."

October the 29th, 1680.—"There was dropt out of a balcony in Cheapside, a very large watch-case, studded with gold; if any person hath taken it up, and will bring it to Mr. Fells, a goldsmith, at the sign of the 'Bunch of Grapes,' in the Strand; or to Mr. Benj. Harris, at the sign of the 'Stationer's Armes,' in the Piaza, under Royal Exchange, in Cornhill, shall have a guinney reward."

1680.—"There is a side of shop, ready furnished with all sorts of millinery goods, to be sold, and the said side of a shop to be let, all at reasonable rates; at the 'Naked Boy,' near Strand Bridge. Inquire at the said shop, or at the house of Mr. Van Auker, merchant, in Lime Street."

1680.—"At Tobias' Coffee-house, in Pye Corner, is sold the right drink, called Dr. Butler's Ale, it being the same that was sold by Mr. Lansdale in Newgate Market. It is an excellent stomack drink, it helps digestion, expels wind, and dissolves congealed phlegm upon the lungs, and is therefore good against colds, coughs, ptisical and consumptive distempers; and being drunk in the evening, it moderately fortifies nature, causes good rest, and largely corroborates the brain and memory."

THE following appears in the Observator for December 3, 1684: "A gentleman

having been requested to undertake the translating of Arrianus his Epicetus into English, hath so far advanced it that the same will in a very short time be published, and this notice is given to prevent interfering with the same design."

November 30, 1686.—"Whereas Mr. Thomas Otway, sometime before his death, made Four Acts of a play; whoever can give notice in whose hands the copy lies, either to Mr. Thomas Betterton, or Mr. William Smith, at the Theatre-royal, shall be well rewarded for his pains." The missing copy, which was never found, very likely had been destroyed as waste paper.

The following rather novel advertisement appeared in the Flying Post of 1694:—"If any Gentleman has a mind to oblige his country friend or correspondent, with an account of Public affairs he may have it for twopence of J. Salusbury at the Rising Sun in Cornhill, on a sheet of fine paper, half of which being blank, he may thereon write his own private business or the material news of the day."

LOTTERIES.

Advertisements of lotteries occur in nearly every newspaper of this date, and they continue throughout the eighteenth century, having ceased only within the memory of persons now living. I give one, which is interesting from the great names connected with it:—"In the Postman for November 16, 1695, the people are invited to speculate in the Epsom Lottery. It is described as 'The New Adventure for £60,000 sterling, which money will be deposited in the Bank of England.' They need have no doubts; they are told that it goes on very successfully. It is no swindle; great names are responsible for it; we of this day still acknowledge them as such—one is the greatest of English architects, the man who has given London the most known and noticeable of its features; the other the greatest English painter of that age. 'The trustees who have given their hands to see the fair ordering and management of this adventure, are Sir Christopher Wren, Sir Godfrey Kneller, &c.' Some of these lotteries had very enticing titles; there is 'An Adventure called A General Relief for a General Loss;' and another, 'An Adventure called Three Blanks to a Prize.' Both are advertised in the newspapers of the year 1695."—Chambers's Journal.

A CROOKED COINCIDENCE.

A pamphlet published in the year 1703 with the following strange title was advertised:—"The Deformity of Sin Cured: a Sermon, preached at St. Michael's, Crook Lane, before the Prince of Orange, by the Rev. James Crookshanks. Sold by Matthew Dowton, at the Crooked Billet, near Cripplegate, and by all other Booksellers." The words of the text are, "Every crooked path shall be made straight." The Prince before whom it was preached was deformed in his person.

SINGULAR ANNOUNCEMENT.

The following curious advertisement is preserved. There is no date to it; but, from the style of its typography, it is evidently very old. It is headed by the Royal Arms, and runs thus:—

"By His Majesty's Authority.

"At Mr. Powell's Coffee-house, near the Royal Exchange, Cornhill,

Is to be seen the wonder of the world, being a man child, born at Leenward, in Friesland, having in his right eye these words in Latin, Deus Meus, that is to say, 'My God,' in English; and in his left the same words in Hebrew characters. He has been seen by most of the kings and princes of Europe, who all look upon him to be the only wonder of this present age. Being now brought from France, where he was strongly admired by the learned and curious, he is to be seen any hour of the day, without any stay or loss of time. And such as desire it, may have him brought to their houses or lodgings."

THE USE OF THE FIRST PERSON.

This was customary, formerly, as may be seen in the Collection for the Improvement of Husbandry and Trade, No. 153 (July 5, 1695):—"I know a gentlewoman whose family is only her husband, herself and maid; and (she) would, to keep her company, take care of a child, or two, or three, of three years old and upwards. She is my good

Digitized by Google

iend, and such a one, that whosoever shall put their children to her, I am sure will give me thanks, and think themselves happy, let them be of what rank they will."

SCHOLASTIC.

In the same journal August 17, 1696, is a scholastic advertisement:—"About forty miles from London is a schoolmaster; has had much success with boys, as there are almost forty ministers and schoolmasters that were his scholars. A school for girls is kept under the same roof. His wife also teaches girls lace-making, plain work, raising paste, sauces, and cookery to the degree of exactness. His price is £10 or £11 the year, with a pair of sheets and spoon, to be restored if desired. Coaches and other conveniences pass every day within half a mile of the house, and 'tis but a day's journey to or from London."

AN EXHIBITION.

The Postman, February 6, 1696, contains the following:—"Whereas, it hath been reported that some of the excellent figures in the Royal Court, in the Great Room over Durham Yard, in the Exchange in the Strand (five circles, one within another), have been removed to several parts of the town, these are to give notice that none of them have or shall be removed, whatever pretence may be made. In the place above-named, you may see King Charles II., King William, Queen Mary of blessed memory, the Princess (afterwards Queen Anne), the Duchess of Norfolk walking, the Duke of Gloster, the Duke of Monmouth, a Lady of Honour, the King's Page, and several other curious figures in a stately temple. You will likewise see Oliver Cromwell in his full stature, the muscles, sinews, and veins appearing all over his body, so naturally that you would take it for life itself did it not want motion. Made by Mrs. Mills, the greatest artist in Europe."

A rival establishment advertises in the same newspaper August 26, 1697:—"The effigies of her late Majesty Queen Anne of blessed memory, is curiously done to the life in wax, draped in coronation robes, with so majestic a mien, that nothing seems wanting but life and motion, as persons of great honour have, upon the strictest view, with surprise declared. So that, without boasting, it may truly be affirmed far to exceed all that has been made of this kind. Likewise the effigies of several persons of quality; with a fine banquet, and a number of other curiosities in every room passing to and fro the Queen's apartment. All to be seen every day at Mr. Goldsmith's in Green Court, in the Old Jury, London, and nowhere else in England."

ADVERTISING 164 YEARS AGO.

The Stamford Mercury republishes the following amongst other curious advertisements, which appeared in its columns in the year 1715-16:—

"At Great Wigston, near Leicester, is to be Lett a Farm, a very good Penniworth, with or without all manner of Utensils belonging to Husbandry, likewise a convenient House in good Repair, also a large Homestead, Barns, Malting Office, Dovecoat, Fish Pond, Orchard, and Garden. Enquire at the More House in Wigston aforesaid, or of Francis Edwards, the Messenger that carries the News from Stamford to Litchfield. N.B. A Crop of Standing Corn in the Fields of Great Wigston is to be sold on the Ground. A very good Penniworth. Enquire as abovesaid, and be farther satisfied."

OLD MOORE'S ADVERTISEMENT.

Francis Moore, the founder of "Old Moore's Almanack," thus advertises in the year of grace, 1712:—"At the Old Lilly, near the Barge House, in Christchurch Parish, Southwark, at London, liveth Francis Moore, licensed physician and student in Astrology; who, by the blessing of God, cures all sorts of agues with one dose, in young and old, when left off by others. He hath an excellent medicine for fits in young people or children; he has an excellent worm-powder, and a family tincture that gives present ease in colic, and carries off all pains in an instant. He gives judgment in the Astrological way. He desires all that send to him out of the country, upon their own business, to pay the postage of their letters or expect no answer!"

JONATHAN WILD.

THE following scandalous advertisement appeared in a daily paper in 1717:—"Whereas, on or about the first day of August last, there were three Burglaries committed, viz., one at the Ditchside, another at the corner of Southampton Street, and the third at the corner of Little St. Martin's Lane, by three housebreakers, two whereof are now in custody. This is to give notice to any Person or Persons whose houses were so broken open, that if they will appear at the next Sessions held in the Old Bailey, and prove the same, so that one of the Persons now in custody shall be convicted thereof, shall receive over and above the usual Reward, the sum of £5 for their expenses and trouble. Which money will be paid by Jonathan Wild, over against the Duke of Grafton's Head in the Old Bailey. Note. One of the two persons now in custody hath made himself an evidence against the other. Note also. That the above-mentioned Jonathan Wild hath had an account of several Writings, Deeds, and Pocket-books given him from some persons lately transported, which if any person hath lost such things, will come to him, and give such description thereof, so as they may be known to be theirs, shall have them again," This advertisement exhibits Jonathan Wild in his threefold capacity of thief-taker, suborner of evidence, and receiver of stolen goods.

SECRETS OF FREEMASONRY TO BE SOLD.

An advertisement appeared in the Newcastle Courant of January 4, 1770, which would rather surprise members of the order of Free Masons. It was as follows:—

"This is to acquaint the Public,—That on Monday, the first instant, being the Lodge (or Monthly Meeting) night of the Free and accepted Masons of the 22nd Regiment, held at the Crown, near Newgate (Newcastle), Mrs. Bell, the Landlady of the House, broke open a Door (with a Poker) that had not been open for some years past, by which means she got into an adjacent Room, made two Holes through the wall, and by that stratagem discovered the secrets of Masonry; and she, knowing herself to be the first woman in the world that ever found out the Secret, is willing to make it known to all her Sex. So any Lady who is desirous of learning the Secrets of Free Masonry, by applying to that well-learned Woman (Mrs. Bell, that lived 15 years in and about Newgate), may be instructed in all the Secrets of Masonry."

BIDDING TO A WEDDING.

28th May, 1797.—Bell's Weekly Messenger of this date contained the following advertisement:—

"MATTHEW DAWSON, in Bothwell, Cumberland, intends to be married at Holm Church, on the Thursday before Whitsuntide next, whenever that may happen, and to return to Bothwell to dine.

"Mr. Reid gives a turkey to be roasted; Ed. Clementson gives a fat lamb to be roasted; Wm. Elliott gives a hen to be roasted; Jos. Gibson gives a fat calf to be roasted.

"And, in order that all this roast meat may be well basted, do you see Mary Pearson, Betty Hodgson, Mary Bushley, Molly Fisher, Sarah Briscoe, and Betty Porthouse, give, each of them, a pound of butter. The advertiser will provide every thing else for so festive an occasion.

"And he hereby gives notice,

"To ALL YOUNG WOMEN desirous of changing their condition, that he is at present disengaged; and advises them to consider, that although there be luck in leisure, yet, in this case, delays are dangerous; for, with him, he is determined it shall be first come first served.

"So come along lasses who wish to be married,
MATT. DAWSON is vexed that so long he has tarried.'

BEGGAR'S ROUND FOR SALE.

IN the year 1804 a beggar's round was thus advertised for sale:—

"To be disposed of for the benefit of the poor widow, a Blind Man's Walk in a charitable neighbourhood, the comings-in between twenty-five and twenty-six shillings a week, with a dog well drilled, and a staff in good repair. A handsome premium will be expected.—For further particulars, inquire at No. 40, Chiswell Street."

Digitized by Google

A MARGATE WORTHY.

Bennett, the "Donkey Hackneyman," at this celebrated watering-place, in the beginning of the present century, issued the following advertisement, containing a very delicate compliment to the fair sex, and which no doubt gained him considerable patronage :—

"Cows' milk and asses' too, I sell;
And keep a stud for hire
Of donkeys fam'd for going well,
And mules that never tire.
An angel honour'd Balaam's ass
To meet her in the way;
But Bennett's troop through Thanet pass
With angels every day."

DIVERSIONS.

The following advertisement from an old newspaper is interesting as giving us an idea of the exhibitions provided for our forefathers :—"At the Great Booth in West Smithfield is to be seen a large collection of strange and wonderful creatures, all alive. 1. A wonderful Dromedary from Turkey, a wonderful creature, 22 hands high, and 12 feet long. 2. The Turkey Horse, not 3 feet high; being so little that he is kept in a box. 3. The Little English Woman, 2 feet 2 inches high, 27 years old, straight and proportionable, being the least woman that ever was seen in England. 4. Two Monstrous Creatures, male and female, resembling human nature, from Ethiopia. 5. A Whistler from Brazil, that hangs by his tail and takes his natural rest. 6. A Picary, which charms the birds with his voice, that they all fall down and become his prey. 7. A Wild Satyr, from Cape de Bon Esperance. With several other varieties, too tedious to mention. To be seen from 8 in the morning till 9 at night, without loss of time."

AN INDIGNANT TENANT.

The following no doubt proceeded from a householder indignant at the grasping conduct of his landlord. It was inserted in a paper as long ago as 1816 :—

"Wanted immediately, to enable me to leave the house which I have for these last five years inhabited, in the same plight and condition in which I found it, five hundred Live Rats, for which I will gladly pay the sum of five pounds sterling; and, as I cannot leave the farm attached thereto in the same order in which I got it, without at least five millions of docks and cockens (weeds), I do hereby promise a further sum of five pounds for said number of dockens. N.B.—The rats must be full grown, and no cripples."

VALUE OF EDITORIAL TIME IN SYDNEY.

The author of an article descriptive of life in Australia, thus describes his visit to an editor in Sydney :—"At my first call, I came to the palace-like house, the ground floor occupied by the printing-office. On the first floor, among other advertisements, I found a tablet informing visitors that the editor cannot be spoken with unless paid for his valuable time; accordingly everybody, without exception, is advised to buy a ticket of admission at the door of the waiting room—one hour costing 10s., half an hour 6s., fifteen minutes 3s. Such were the contents of this singular price-current of time."

RIGA BALSAM.

An advertisement of the famed American Riga Balsam, concludes with this most extraordinary statement :—

"N.B. The trial of the Riga Balsam is this: Take a hew or a ram, drive a nail through its skull, brains, and tongue, then pour some of it into the wound, it will directly stop the blood and cure the wound in eight or ten minutes, and the creature will eat as before."

Dear Sir

By advertising a man places himself and his wares on trial, the unbiassed public mind being the judge and its verdict will be either for or con according to the real merit of the commodities offered. If he obtain its favour then let him with good judgment boldly advertise

GREAT CONCERN.

WARNER'S SAFE REMEDIES LABORATORY is the largest and most complete Medical Laboratory in the world. The building occupies 4½ acres of flooring space, and is fire-proof throughout.

There is a PUBLISHING DEPARTMENT, MAILING ROOM, enormous ADVERTISING DEPARTMENT, BOTTLING ROOM, a Patent Cable Railway to carry boxes from the yard to the various floors, and two whole floors are occupied by the Laboratories.

H. H. WARNER.

H. H. Warner is probably the largest advertiser in the world, when printing, bill posting, and other novel methods are included.

Mr. Warner has just issued an advertisement printing order which will cost £200,000. The contract is divided between England, America, & Germany, and is for forty million thirty-two-page pamphlets, and four hundred million four-page circulars.

On this side the herring pond the bulk of the newspaper advertising is done by SELL'S AGENCY.

NOTIONS ABOUT ADVERTISING.

I HAVE always considered advertising liberally and long to be the great secret of success in business; and I have made it an invariable rule to ADVERTISE AT ALL TIMES, large experience having taught me that money thus spent is well laid out.—Stephen Giraud.

"WHY don't you trade with me?" said a close-fisted manufacturer to a customer, the other day. "Because," was the characteristic reply, "you have never asked me, sir. I have looked all through the newspaper for an invitation in the shape of an advertisement, but in vain. I never go where I am not wanted."

A WEALTHY London merchant is reported as having said: "I always feel happy when I am advertising, for then I know that, waking or sleeping, I have a strong, though silent orator working for me; one who never tires, never sleeps, never makes mistakes, and who is certain to enter the households from which, if at all, my trade must come."

THE mere number circulated of a journal is not the only, nor always the best test that should guide an advertiser. Some journals, owing to the peculiar character of their circulation, would be far more profitable to an advertiser with a circulation of one thousand than others with a circulation of ten thousand. This is particularly the case with class journals.—Literary Year Book.

NOW, advertising is undoubtedly a very effective instrument. The power of this mode of gaining publicity is enormous. It seems, if we consult those who have been accustomed to work successfully this very extraordinary instrument, that it depends wholly upon producing an impression on the public mind by iteration, by repetition of the same thing.—The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone.

THE first utility of frequent and regular advertising consists in this: There is at all times a large class of persons, both in country and town, who have no fixed places for the purchase of certain necessary articles, and are ready to be swayed and drawn towards any particular place which is earnestly brought under their notice. Indifferent to all, they yield without hesitation to the first who asks.—Chambers' Journal.

OUR age has one gigantic advantage over its predecessors; WE ARE A PEOPLE OF ADVERTISERS. A few graffiti may defy the effacing fingers of Time, whereas millions of such legends are washed away, rubbed out, or perish with the walls that bear them. A similar fate may await the monstrous placards, posters, and slips which are plastered on the hoardings and the corner houses of this immense metropolis; but their indefinite multiplication by means of the printing press prevents their being involved in a common ruin. Malicious bill-stickers may paste over the advertisement placard in one district, but it reappears in another. Moreover, in the advertisement columns of the newspapers it is always safe from outrage, and defies concealment.—Daily Telegraph.

THE Press never sleeps. She has her ambassadors in every quarter of the world—her couriers upon every road. Her officers march along with armies, and her envoys walk into statesmen's cabinets. They are ubiquitous. Yonder journal has an agent at this moment giving bribes at Madrid, and another inspecting the price of potatoes at Covent Garden.—W. M. Thackeray.

ORIGIN OF THE WORD "NEWS."—Haydn's Dictionary of Dates says:—"The word news is not, as many imagine, derived from the adjective new. In former years (between the years 1595 and 1730) it was a prevalent practice to put over the periodical publications of the day the initial letters of the cardinal points of the compass, thus: implying that those papers contained intelligence from the four quarters of the globe, and from this practice is derived the term of newspaper."

THE LONDON DAILY PRESS.

It s not possible within the compass of such a volume as this to give anything like a history of the Press, but the following particulars relating to the London daily, morning and evening, newspapers we hope will be of interest :—

THE TIMES.

This Leviathan of the Pres first made its appearance in 1785, under the title of the Daily Universal Register, which, in 1788, was changed to that which it now bears. To describe the power, influence, and character of this remarkable paper is almost impossible; we can only attempt to do so in very general terms. In politics it has ever been marked by fearless independence, never hesitating to speak out its opinion boldly without regard to the party in power. This fearlessness of speech has on more than one occasion brought down upon it the wrath of the Government, but without in any way diminishing its independence. This course of proceeding gained for it the title of "Thunderer," which conveys some idea of the immense influence its pages wield. The best writers obtainable are engaged to supply the articles appearing in it, which are consequently models of polished and refined writing. Many of the greatest writers have been glad to contribute to The Times: Macaulay and D'Israeli are examples. In procuring the latest and most reliable news no expense is spared; it has correspondents in the principal cities of the world, and its "specials" are ever ready to proceed to any part of the globe, should necessity require. On religion its opinions are those of the Anglican Church; on other matters it expresses itself in serious and studied language; hence The Times is eagerly read by men of all shades of opinion, not only in England, but abroad. The "prestige" it enjoys is immense, and unapproached by any of its confréres. Owing to its importance, The Times is the usual channel for ventilating Government projects; political news often finds its way into its columns which is not communicated to any of its contemporaries. Hence The Times is semi-official in its tone, and all eyes are eager to peruse its contents. The disinterestedness of The Times has been demonstrated on more than one occasion, notably in 1840, when it laid bare a great mercantile swindle, and in 1848, when the railway mania was at its height, during which it warned the public against the inevitable ruin which must attend the speculation then prevailing.

As an advertising medium The Times has no rival, whilst the benefits gained by using its columns is clearly proved by the swarms of advertisements which appear from day to day. If advertisers gained no benefit from their persistent advertising, it is not to be supposed the stream would keep on with unabated force. The reason of the rush to The Times arises from the fact that the public are aware of its great influence, which lends some sort of countenance to advertisements appearing in it. The Times, besides, is the chosen medium for the insertion of Government and official notices, and its business columns on that account receive more attention than is bestowed on other papers. Again, the public peruse The Times' advertisements with a degree of confidence, which results from the well-known care and supervision which is exercised over them. All advertisements undergo the severest scrutiny, and any which appear to be the least questionable are rejected. The severity of the scrutiny is seen from the fact that no advertisements asking for a stamp to be sent for a reply is admitted; neither would anyone be allowed to offer her services as "housekeeper to a single gentleman." Advertisements of births, marriages, or deaths will not be inserted unless endorsed by a relative, or properly qualified persons; nor are money-lending advertisements accepted without a solicitor's guarantee. Such restrictions, though to some they may appear fastidious, confirm the high opinion generally entertained of the disinterestedness of The Times, while its independence is further shown by its persistent refusal to recognize, still less to obey, a positive order. When taking an order for a number of insertions, it is on the express understanding that the publishers may insert or omit the advertisement as it pleases them. It will frequently happen that an advertisement, the insertion of which should be daily, appears only at several days' interval. This arises from the desire of the publishers to accommodate other advertisers whose advertisements would be crowded out. On several occasions, to relieve the continued pressure of advertisements, The Times has been enlarged to 24 pages. On another occasion a simple advertisement appeared which occupied more than two of its pages. These few facts will illustrate far better than words the advantages to be derived by those who advertise in the Monarch of the Press.

THE DAILY TELEGRAPH.

This paper was started in 1855, and is remarkable for the immense progress it has made within recent years. Its political views are at the present time Independent Liberal and on special occasions it has given a strong support to measures of Political and Social Reform. The enterprise displayed by its proprietors has gained for it a great reputation, as important news is frequently printed in its columns long before it appears in any of its contemporaries. The boldness and dash of its correspondents in procuring the most interesting details of important events have been proverbial. To its enterprise in past years we owe the discovery of the Congo by Stanley, his undertaking having been originated in the offices of the Daily Telegraph, by which the expenses of his mission were borne. A similar remark applies to the Assyrian discoveries of Mr. George Smith, the results of which are now treasured in the British Museum. This and the generally lively and varied nature of its contents have rendered it extremely popular, which is proved by the enormous circulation (some 241,000 copies daily) it enjoys.

THE STANDARD.

This leading Conservative paper was started in 1827 as an evening paper, but afterwards, when it passed into other hands, a morning edition was published, whilst the evening edition was continued under the title of the Evening Standard. It has always been distinguished by its honourable and impartial conduct to friends and foes alike; it does not hesitate to give its political opponents credit when deserved; nor does it spare its criticism. This has won for it the golden opinions of the community, and its columns are daily perused by persons of every shade of opinion. Though far from being devoid of enterprise in procuring news, The Standard has always endeavoured to assure itself of the veracity of its reports before publishing them, and it is preferred by many to any other of the less accurate dailies on this account. In the fulness of its parliamentary and law reports it excels all its contemporaries, except The Times, and to that it approaches very closely.

Auctioneers have a great opinion of the benefit derived from Advertising in the columns of The Standard, as may be seen from the large numbers of their notices always appearing. As the combined circulation of the morning and evening editions exceeds 250,000, Advertisements inserted in The Standard fall under the eyes of an immense number of people of superior position.

THE DAILY NEWS

Was started in 1846, under the editorship of Charles Dickens, who remained connected with it for several months. This paper is the recognized organ of the Liberal Party; though its opinions of recent years have been somewhat more in agreement with the Radical than the Whig section of the party. It has a splendid circulation, partly owing to its being the organ of the Liberal party, and also by its great celebrity from publishing the earliest, and, as it has proved, most accurate foreign telegrams. The exploits of its numerous "specials" are fresh in our minds. Mr. O'Donovan's visit to Merv is one of the most remarkable events in connection with journalism.

To Advertisers the Daily News offers several advantages. It is the only "daily" which admits engraved blocks or displayed advertisements; it has a large circulation among publishers, who patronize its columns largely; and has great influence with bankers and merchants and city men, owing to the prominence it gives to financial matters and the reports of public meetings. This paper is true to its Liberal professions, and will generally be found more liberal in the treatment of its customers than some of its confrères.

THE DAILY CHRONICLE.

The Daily Chronicle strongly and consistently supports the Liberal interest, and has achieved a high reputation for the publication of the latest news from agricultural, commercial, and maritime centres, and from local and provincial markets. The contents of the paper daily include a vast variety of information, and all topics are dealt with in a remarkably complete and ample manner. In the Soudan War, the letters of the Correspondent of the Daily Chronicle were on all hands admitted to be so picturesque and striking that they were referred to by other journals throughout the kingdom, and greatly enhanced the reputation of the "special" columns of the paper. The advertisement columns of the Daily Chronicle are notable for clear and excellent arrangement, and though the number of advertisements is very great, and is constantly increasing, the practice is maintained of inserting every announcement the day after it is received. This is a great point for advertisers.

THE MORNING POST.

Dating its birth back to the year 1772, this paper can boast of being the oldest political daily newspaper existing in London. Its career has been a very distinguished and interesting one; and among its contributors it has numbered Southey, Wordsworth, Sir James Mackintosh, and others. Coleridge was for some time its editor, and Charles Lamb contributed witty paragraphs. From its commencement it has been most ably conducted, and its criticisms on plays, music, and books are excellent. The special features of the Morning Post are its fashionable and foreign news, to which it gives special prominence. Nothing of interest occurs in the upper circles of society that is not recorded in its columns, and everything which can interest the beau monde receives notice. The circulation of the Morning Post, though not so great as some of its contemporaries, is a very good one, being chiefly among fashionable and wealthy circles. This paper is consequently well adapted for the advertising of articles de luxe and goods possessing first-class workmanship and artistic merit, the sale of which is almost entirely confined to persons to whom the cost is of secondary importance. Compared with the other "dailies" the advertising charges of the Morning Post are moderate. Till within the last two years this paper was published at threepence, but now its price is the general one of a penny, a reduction which has already increased its sale tenfold.

THE MORNING ADVERTISER.

This paper was started in 1794 by a society of London Licensed Victuallers, its primary object being to raise a fund for "the relief of their decayed and distressed brethren and their families," and each member pledged himself to take in the paper. This arrangement has made the paper more than self-supporting from its birth, and as a consequence it has always displayed great independence and fearlessness in its conduct. It is the only London morning paper except the Times now charging the high price of threepence a copy. It is independent in politics. Among its past contributors it can boast of Lord Brougham and Sir David Brewster.

Being the recognized organ of the public-house trade, advertisers will find it the best medium for attracting the notice of publicans, hotel-keepers, and others connected with the trade.

THE SPORTING LIFE

Was first published on March 24, 1859, as a Wednesday and Saturday paper of general sporting news, it being supposed, as has, indeed, since proved to be the fact, that there was ample room for a penny paper embodying every class of sport. It gradually increased in popularity, and within a very brief period was enabled not only to hold its own against its bulkier and higher-priced rival, Bell's Life in London, but gradually to fairly outstrip it in the race for public favour. From Horse-racing, Pedestrianism, Coursing, Cricket, Aquatics, Swimming, and athletic exercises of all descriptions, it ranges down to the lower grades of amusements which are daily cropping up everywhere, and has firmly established itself as an authority upon all. The reports are not only considered to be generally accurate, but where criticism is requisite, such criticism is fairly and honestly bestowed without fear or favour. On April 19, 1881, the experiment—so large had grown the press of matter—was tried of publishing the paper four times a week; an experiment that proved so successful as to be perpetuated until on March 27, 1883, it was deemed expedient to develop into a daily paper, the success of which has exceeded all expectations. Subsequently, it was found necessary to increase the size of each Saturday's edition, and on April 24, 1886, the first double number was issued. The handing over of the title of Bell's Life in London (the oldest sporting journal), to be incorporated with the Sporting Life followed shortly afterwards, and the merging of the older paper in the younger one is one of the most notable events in modern journalism. The title of Bell's Life in London associated with that of the Sporting Life first appeared in print on Monday, May 31, of last year. As a general advertising medium, the Sporting Life offers very remarkable facilities on account of its having the largest daily circulation of any sporting paper in the world.

Digitized by Google

THE SPORTSMAN

Was first published on the 12th of August, 1865, and issued three times weekly. It was converted into a daily newspaper on March 20th, 1876. It is devoted to every description of sport, giving especial prominence to racing matters, whilst its coursing, cricket, football, rowing, angling, pedestrian, &c., reports are invariably most full and complete. The Sportsman has, in all the chief branches of sport, taken a decided lead of its contemporaries, and is now the organ of the coursing, billiard, and rowing worlds, as well as the acknowledged authority on all matters pertaining to racing. The journal is, moreover, the oldest daily sporting paper in existence. A noble feature of the paper is dramatic criticism, and current items of news are dealt with in a humorous style. On Saturdays the Sportsman is a double number of eight pages, and whilst a complete summary of the week's news is given, many interesting contributions are introduced. It may also be mentioned that the Sportsman originated the idea of a double number on Saturdays. The "Derby double number" is unique and has been issued with marked success for several years past. The paper is neutral in politics, and has a large circulation; not only throughout the United Kingdom, but in America, India, Canada, and the Colonies generally.

THE GLOBE.

Started in 1803, in opposition to the Morning Post, by the London booksellers, this paper has experienced many changes of fortune. For more than sixty years it was a liberal paper—in fact, the evening organ of that party—but owing to a change made in the proprietorship in 1866, its influence has since been used in favour of Conservatism, and it materially helped to bring about the political reaction in the Metropolitan area, which commenced at about that time. This paper is distinguished by the skilful manner in which the news is condensed, and by its late telegrams, which make it one of the most readable papers we have. Its original matter, in addition to light reading under "Notes of the Day," includes letters from the chief continental cities; and a special feature is the "Turnover" appearing on the front page, written on a social topic by writers who rank among the foremost litterateurs of the day. The Globe has a large and increasing circulation of an influential character, and is implicitly believed in by very many advertisers as an exceptionally good advertising medium.

PALL MALL GAZETTE.

This high class paper was started in 1865, by Mr. George Smith, of the firm of Smith, Elder & Co., and though it has passed through many changes, has at each stage maintained a marked individuality of its own, According to the original prospectus, the Pall Mall Gazette was to be "conducted upon Liberal principles," and it ran in this groove for some years, during which it was further distinguished by the contributions of writers like Mr. Justice Stephen, George Eliot, Anthony Trollope, to its columns. It gradually drifted, however, into bitter opposition to Mr. Gladstone; and when in 1880, its new proprietor insisted upon the original programme being carried out; the editor and one or two of the writers severed their connection with the journal, and Mr. John Morley, with a strong staff, was appointed to reign in their stead. It then became one of the most strenuous of Mr. Gladstone's supporters, and Mr. Morley soon after his election for Newcastle became a Member of the Liberal Government—the first instance, it is believed, of a promotion from a journalist's chair to a seat in the Cabinet. Under Mr. Morley's successor, the Pall Mall Gazette has been an independent exponent of the New Liberalism, and has been remarkable for the many new features, such as interviews, signed articles and illustrations, which it has introduced into London daily journalism, as well as for the many distinguished men in all walks of life who have selected it as the medium for conveying their views to the public. The demand for many of these articles has been so great that a series of "Pall Mall Gazette Extras"—amongst which those on General Gordon, Pictures of the Year, and the Best 100 Books may be mentioned—are published from time to time in order to preserve the contributions made to the paper on special subjects in a more permanent form. Out of London it is best known through its weekly edition, the Pall Mall Budget, which, costing only 3d., competes at great advantage with the other literary and artistic weeklies, and is widely read, not only in the Colonies, but in the United States.

ST. JAMES'S GAZETTE.

This paper was established in 1880, by Mr. Greenwood, who had resigned his position as editor of the Pall Mall Gazette, owing to the sudden change introduced in the political opinions of that paper. Printed in clear type and on very good paper, the St. James's Gazette has been remarkable from the commencement for the brilliancy and smartness of its articles. In opinion it is favourable to the Conservative policy generally, and is vigorously Anti-Radical. With a large circulation amongst the well-to-do classes of society, the advantages it offers to Advertisers are great.

THE ECHO.

This popular paper was started in 1868 by Messrs. Cassell, Petter and Galpin. It supports the Liberal cause with zeal, though its opinions are of a decidedly Radical turn. The thoroughness with which it treats and discusses all subjects brought beneath its notice is, indeed, unmistakable, and is no doubt the primary cause of its popularity. Being published at a half-penny, its circulation is very great—greater than is usually imagined. Its circulation on occasions reaches almost 200,000 daily. This, and its moderate advertising charges, should not be overlooked by advertisers.

THE EVENING NEWS.

Is a London evening half-penny paper with a nett circulation of from 70,000 to 150,000 copies per day. Great prominence is given in it to sporting news, and special articles appear regularly on the principal sporting events of the year. To suit the tastes of the general reader, one or two special articles are devoted to the topics of the day. Interviews with persons are a marked feature of this journal. The paper, too, is well-known for the accuracy of its reports of all celebrated cases occurring in the various courts of justice. The general politics of the paper are Conservative.

DAILY TELEGRAPH.

1d. Est. 1855. Liberal.

The enterprise displayed by its proprietors has gained for it a great reputation, as important news is frequently printed in its columns long before it appears in any of its contemporaries. The boldness and dash of its correspondents in procuring the most interesting details of important events have been proverbial. To its enterprise in past years we owe the discovery of the Congo by Stanley, his undertaking having been originated in the offices of the Daily Telegraph, by which the expenses of his mission were borne. A similar remark applies to the Assyrian discoveries of Mr. George Smith, the results of which are now treasured in the British Museum. This and the generally lively and varied nature of its contents have rendered it extremely popular, which is proved by the enormous circulation, (some 241,000 copies daily) it enjoys.

ST. JAMES'S GAZETTE. 1*d.* Est. 1880. Anti-Radical.

This paper was established by Mr. Greenwood, who had resigned his position as editor of the Pall Mall Gazette, owing to the sudden change introduced in the political opinions of that paper. It has been remarkable from the commencement for the brilliancy and smartness of its articles. In opinion it is favourable to the Conservative policy generally, and is vigorously Anti-Radical.

TIMES, THE. Daily, 3*d*. Est. 1788 (Weekly edition, 2*d*., est. Jan. 1877.) Independent.

This Leviathan of the Press first made its appearance in 1785, under the title of the Daily Universal Register, which, in 1788, was changed to that which it now bears. In politics it has ever been marked by fearless independence, never hesitating to speak out its opinion boldly without regard to the party in power. On religion its opinions are those of the Anglican Church; on other matters it expresses itself in serious and studied language; hence The Times is eagerly read by men of all shades of opinion, not only in England, but abroad. As an advertising medium The Times has no rival, whilst the benefits gained by using its columns is clearly proved by the swarms of advertisements which appear from day to day.

BOLTON WEEKLY JOURNAL. Saturday, Morning and Evening, 1*d.* Est. 1871. Liberal.

Circulates in Bolton, in all the 26 townships of the Bolton Union, and adjacent districts. The Bolton Journal is probably the English newspaper distinctively wedded to the publication of fiction, as a feature of the family newspaper. Among its contributors may be found Wilkie Collins, William Black, James Payne, B. L. Farjeon, Mrs. Oliphant, Miss Braddon, W. Clark Russell, and other distinguished novelists. Its Ladies' Column, Children's Hour, London Letter, and other special articles give it a front place in enterprising journalism. The usual features of a newspaper are not allowed to suffer; indeed the Bolton Journal deservedly ranks among the first weekly newspapers.

Dear Mr Sell

Your gift of a copy of "The Dictionary of the World" Press" has reached me safely - It will form a remarkable addition to Works of reference in Woburn Abbey library for which I am very grateful -

The World I first remember, was devoid of railways and telegraphs - and almost so - of steamships -

The change which your work brings before me is incredible

Believe me

HOW WILKINS RECOVERED.

I AM now, alas! a dweller in cockney land. It was not so always. Once I lived in the country, and loved it for its fresh air, its glorious springs, its magnificent autumns, its summer suns, and its winter snows. Its sports and pastimes were dear to me, and as there were a good many of us boys and girls we managed to have a good deal of fun most of us all the year round. My intimate friend—my alter ego—my second self, as it were, was a jolly lad of the name of Wilkins. His father was a flourishing shopkeeper, and did a large trade considering the limited field in which he had to work. The man was universally respected. Churchmen and Dissenters, Whigs and Tories (Gladstonians and Conservatives were alike unknown then), rich and poor all came to his shop. Wilkins senior was at the head of everything that was for the benefit of the growing and prosperous town in which he lived. He helped to get up the Reading Room and Mechanics' Institute, to procure an organ for the chapel he attended, to provide amusements for the people in the long winter evenings, and never was he more at home than when there was a Sunday-school treat or a gift of Christmas cheer to the less fortunate members of the community. When he was gathered to his fathers there was great lamentation, so they told me, for I was not living in the town then, and his funeral was quite an event, and Wilkins junior reigned in his stead.

It was only once in a way that I made my way to my native town. After I had left, my father, when I had mastered the rudiments of learning, had no trade to give me or no business to set me up in. I had consequently, as most of us have to do, to emigrate to London in search of fame and fortune. For a long time I had to struggle hard, and could afford no holiday worth speaking—nothing more than a cheap excursion for a day on the river as far as Sheerness, or a run to Brighton for nine hours by the sea-side. At length I got into better circumstances. Barker, of Milk Street, gave me a respectable position, and for once, having a little time and cash to spare, I determined to revisit Slocum as the town in which I was born was called. My old playmate Wilkins entertained me hospitably, and seemed in flourishing circumstances. He had a good house, a clever little wife, and certainly did a good business, as the shop was full of customers from morn till dewy eve. The town itself seemed unusually active. A great deal of building was going on. New houses and shops were being put up, and in a few weeks the line from Slocum to Mugby Junction was to be opened, and London would be separated only by a distance of three hours. "We are a thriving community," said Wilkins to me joyously, as I got outside the stage-coach, which was to carry me to town. "We know a thing or two down here," said he, "and the new line will make our fortunes, as a good many people will be glad to exchange the smoky air of London for our bracing atmosphere."

"I hope your expectations will be fulfilled," said I.

"Oh, I have no doubt on that point."

"Well, I am not quite sure."

"No, no," said he; "you always took rather a doleful view of matters—but you may depend upon it it will be all right."

"Let us hope so," I called out, as the coach bowled away from the Red Lion, where it had changed horses, to the distant town.

Time passed, and I forgot all about Slocum. I saw soon after I returned that the railway had been opened—indeed, I may say, that Wilkins had sent me the local paper containing full particulars of the important event, with his own speech, delivered at the tradesmen's dinner to celebrate the important day. He was as sanguine as ever as to the beneficial results to be derived from it—to himself and fellow tradesmen. But I soon forgot all about the matter as I had other things to occupy my mind. However, a year or two after the line had been opened, I found myself at Slocum once more holiday-making. Externally, indeed, the town had prospered. It had a new inn, a hall, an imposing railway station, old shops had been brightened up a bit and new ones had been built, and no end of private residences; but as I scanned the shops, it seemed to me that there was very little doing in them, and that all the stock was in the windows, and that the attendants seemed dull and listless. Now and then there was a little bustle in the streets as the trains were started or had returned from town with passengers and parcels; but there was an air of dulness in the town very different to that of my young days, and there were a good many shops to let.

"How is it?" said I, to Wilkins, as we sat smoking in his parlour an after dinner cigar.

"How is it," said he, in a tone of bitterness—"it is all owing to that cursed railway."

"The railway," I exclaimed, "which was to be such a good thing for the town?"

"Yes, the railway; it takes all my customers to town. I don't do half the business that I did. Almost all the tradesmen in Slocum are next door to bankruptcy; and I am thinking of selling off and retiring from business before I have lost all my money."

"You—a young man like you retire—and with your family; never," said I, indignantly.

"Why not?"

"Because the thing is absurd—quite out of the question."

"I tell you I can't stand it. It makes me sick to see my customers pass my shop and go up to town by the railway, and return laden with purchases they have made. Things get worse instead of better. At first I thought it would come all right after a little while—that it was natural for people to do a little shopping when in town—but I thought that they would soon tire of that, and we should go on as before; but I find it is nothing of the kind. I don't like to give up the business, but I fear I must. What am I to do?"

"Do," I said, "the thing is very easy. You have been going on in the old jog-trot way, and have been left behind. You must turn over a new leaf. You must move with the times."

"Ah," said he dejectedly, "that's easier said than done."

"Not at all," I replied. "You must advertise. It is the advertisements that fetch the public. The London people advertise, and they get all the country people, or the best of them, for their customers. You must advertise to protect yourself, to get new customers, and to attract old ones back."

"But my business," said Wilkins, "is an old-established one. Why should I spend money in advertising? My father never did."

"That," said I, "is the more reason that you should."

"It will cost such a lot of money."

"You could not spend your money to better purpose. Advertising is the life and soul of trade. If you don't advertise you may as well shut up shop at once."

"Well, I'll think about it," said he, reluctantly.

"Think about it," said I; "man alive, you have no time to spare. You must set to work at once. You have got a local paper, make up an advertisement, a column long, for next Saturday."

"Next Saturday," he replied, "and it is now Tuesday. That is quite out of the question."

"Nonsense, you and I can make a first-rate one in half-an-hour."

"Well," said he, "two heads are better than one. At any rate, we'll try. One advertisement won't cost much."

"But you must repeat it. One is no use. It will be only throwing money away."

"Well, I suppose I must," said he, in no delighted tone. "It is hard for me to have to advertise such an old-established family business as mine, My old dad would not have thought it respectable."

"Ah," said I, "we men of business have learnt a thing or two since his time. They did not know everything down in Judee. The long and short of it was that Wilkins, taking my advice, went wholesale into the advertising line; that he turned over a new leaf—in other words, that he left no stone unturned. When, a year after, I came for another holiday to Slocum, he was in quite another mood—enlarging his business instead of giving it up. In fact, as he said, he was doing a money trade, and all because he had taken my advice to advertise.

THE

South Australian Advertiser,

WEEKLY CHRONICLE AND EXPRESS.

THESE papers, the property of Messrs. F. B. Burden and J. L. Bonython, are published at Adelaide, the capital of South Australia, the population of which, with its suburbs, now amounts to over 100,000. The Advertiser, a daily morning paper, was started on the 12th July, 1858, and the first number of the Chronicle, a weekly paper, was issued on the following Saturday morning. The Express, an afternoon paper, was first issued some five years later. The Advertiser and Chronicle were started by a Limited Liability Company, of which Mr. J. H. Barrow was the managing director; the same gentleman filling the position of editor of both papers. On November 30 h, 1863, while the property was still in the possession of the original proprietors, the Express was issued as an evening paper, the development of the colony having shown that a want for such a journal existed. Shortly after this, in 1864, the company, as originally constituted, ceased to exist, and the property passed into the hands of a proprietory of eight gentlemen, who, in 1871, sold their interest to Messrs. Barrow and King, who became sole proprietors. Other changes followed, until the papers eventually passed into the hands of their present owners, Messrs. Burden and Bonython. The advance of the papers in public favour has been more than commensurate with the strides made by the colony, and all of them have been considerably enlarged as requirements demanded, and the price of the morning paper has been reduced from time to time, until in January, 1884, it was issued at a penny, it being then and still the only penny morning paper issued in the colony. At first the papers were printed on a small American machine, capable of printing only 2,000 an hour, but the increase of circulation speedily called for more rapid production, and a two-feeder Wharfeda'e machine was imported. This in its turn had to give place to a four-feeder Hoe machine, capable of throwing off 10,000 an hour. When this machine was started it was thought that the demand for papers could be easily met for many years to come. Not so, however. The circulation of the papers steadily and rapidly increased, and the Hoe had to be abandoned, web-printing machinery having to be imported in order to cope with the still increasing numbers required to satisfy the wants of subscribers. As an evidence of the large circulation to which these journals have attained, it may be mentioned that the issue of the Advertiser is treble that of any other daily paper printed in South Australia; that the circulation of the Chronicle is double that of any other weekly paper issued in the colony; and that the Express exceeds in circulation by thousands the number issued of any other evening paper published in the colony.

THE SOUTH AUSTRALIAN ADVERTISER.

Price 1d. Established 1858.

THE "ADVERTISER" consists of eight pages, and is now recognized as the Leading Daily Paper in South Australia. The circulation is treble that of any other daily morning paper published in South Australia.

THE SOUTH AUSTRALIAN CHRONICLE.

Price Fourpence. Established 1858.

THE "CHRONICLE" is a Weekly Paper of twenty-four pages, and is chiefly read by Farmers and Squatters. The circulation is more than double that of any other weekly paper published in South Australia.

THE EXPRESS.

Price One Penny. Established 1863.

THE "EXPRESS" consists of four pages, is published every afternoon, and has several editions Its circulation exceeds by thousands that of any other evening paper published in South Australia.

FRANCE.

EXTENT.—France is about three and half times larger than England and Wales, its area amounting to 204,092 square miles.

ISLANDS.—At the entrance of the English Channel, Ouessant (or Ushant); in the Bay of Biscay, Belle Isle, Ré, Oléron, and a few others. In the Mediterranean, the group called Iles d'Hiéres, near the coast, and the large island of Corsica, which forms one of the departments.

CLIMATE.—France is, on the whole, a warmer country than England, especially in the south. The air is generally drier than in our own country. In the north of France, however, the winters are often severe.

INHABITANTS.—In 1866 the population of France was 38,067,064, or 181 to the square mile; but in 1872, mainly owing to the cession of Alsace and Lorraine to Germany, the population numbered only 36,102,921, or 176 to the square mile. At the last census in 1885, the total number was 37,885,905, or 185 to the square mile, about two-fifths of the average in England.

INDUSTRIAL PURSUITS.—About three-fifths of the people are directly engaged in agriculture, but France is also a great manufacturing and commercial country, ranking only second to Britain in these respects.

1. Manufactures.—The silk manufacture is the distinguishing feature of French manufacturing industry; but woollen, linen, and other textile fabrics are also made on a very extensive scale. The silk manufacture is chiefly pursued in the south, at Lyons, Nismes, Avignon, &c.; the woollen manufacture principally in the north, at Rouen, Amiens, and elsewhere. Fine linens, lace, and cotton goods are also chiefly made in the north of France.

The making of gloves is an important branch of French manufacturing industry. Watches and clocks, ornamental china and glass, jewellery, perfumes, artificial flowers, and various articles of finery, are also characteristic of French taste and skill.

2. Commerce.—The foreign commerce is very considerable, and extends to the most distant parts of the globe, but is chiefly carried on with Great Britain, Belgium, Germany, and Italy. The ports of Marseilles, Bordeaux, and Havre are the chief seats of maritime trade. Bordeaux, especially, is distinguished as the emporium of the wine trade.

Imports.—The principal articles of import are raw cotton and silk, wool, timber, iron, coal, and colonial produce.

Exports.—The great articles of export from France are silks and ribbons, wine and brandy, gloves, and the various other articles mentioned.

BELGIUM.

Belgium is a small country in the west of Europe, and from 1814 to 1830 was politically united to Holland.

EXTENT.—Its area is 11,373 square miles, which is about one-fifth the size of England and Wales.

CLIMATE.—The climate resembles in most respects that of England. It is moist in the western, but drier in the eastern, provinces.

PRODUCTIONS.—Belgium is rich in mineral produce, containing extensive coalfields and abundant deposits of iron ore, which are very largely worked. Belgium supplies more coal than any other country in Europe, excepting Britain.

INHABITANTS.—Comparatively to its size, Belgium is the most populous country in Europe—probably the most populous in the world. It had in 1883 above 5,650,000 inhabitants—equal to an average of 497 persons to the square mile. The people of Belgium are properly Flemings, and the native dialect of the lower orders is the Flemish tongue; but the French language is uniformly spoken by the upper classes of society.

INDUSTRY.—The Belgian population are highly distinguished for their industry.

1. Agriculture.—Although the soil consists mainly of clay and sand, nearly every part of the country is well cultivated. Corn, flax, hemp, madder, tobacco, and clover are grown.

2. Manufactures.—The manufacture of woollen, linen, lace, cotton, and silk goods is largely carried on. The fine lace of Belgium (produced at Brussels, Mechlin, Antwerp, and elsewhere) is unrivalled in quality. Ironworks are numerous in the eastern part of the kingdom, towards the bank of the Meuse.

3. Commerce.—Colonial produce and wool are the chief imports; and coal, flax, iron, manufactured goods, and agricultural produce, the principal exports. The principal ports are Antwerp, Ostend, and Bruges.

Those marked with a "Fl." are printed in the Flemish language.

HOLLAND (The Netherlands). Pop. 4,060,578.

EXTENT.—The area of Holland is 12,648 square miles, which is somewhat less than one-fourth the size of England and Wales. Its greatest length is 196 miles; its greatest breadth, 109 miles.

CLIMATE.—Holland is rather colder than England, and the winters are of much greater severity. The air is generally moist, especially in the neighbourhood of the coast, but Luxemburg is drier.

The Zuyder Zee is occasionally, and the North Holland and other canals are always frozen over in winter.

PRODUCTIONS.—There are no metals and but few minerals. Both building stone and timber are scarce; the former is imported from Norway and the latter from Norway and Germany. The animals are similar to those of England. Water-fowl, swans, and storks are very numerous.

INHABITANTS.—In 1883 the population of Holland was officially estimated at 4,225,000, equal to an average of 334 persons per square mile. In England the density is 484.

The Dutch belong to the Teutonic or German race; but there are nearly 70,000 Germans, Flemings, Frisians, and Jews. The common language is Dutch. The Frisian language is spoken in Friesland.

INDUSTRY.—The Dutch (as the people of Holland are called) are distinguished for their industry, frugality, and cleanliness, and also by their devotion to maritime pursuits. They are among the best farmers and the most successful traders in the world.

1. Fisheries.—Extensive fisheries, in the North Sea and elsewhere, were formerly carried on by the Dutch; but these, though still considerable, are less important now than they once were.

2. Manufactures.—The principal are shipbuilding, woollen cloths, sugar-refining, and gin-distilling.

3. Commerce.—The possession of the mouths of several great rivers enables the people of Holland to command a large share in the transit of commodities to and from the countries of middle Europe. The Dutch have for centuries past been the masters of the great carrying trade. In the 16th and 17th centuries they were, in this respect, the carriers of the world. Though now less in amount than at a former time, the shipping and foreign commerce of the Dutch nation are still very large.

In 1882, the exports, consisting of butter, cheese, cattle, sheep, colonial produce, &c. were valued at £62,666,666; and the imports, consisting of manufactured goods, colonial produce, timber, &c., amounted to £82,666,666. The principal articles of exports to the United Kingdom are butter, live animals, and cheese. The mercantile navy of Holland consisted in 1884 of 797 vessels of upwards of 370,000 tons.

Ports.—The principal ports are:—Amsterdam, Rotterdam, Middelburg, and Flushing.

SWITZERLAND.

EXTENT.—Its greatest length from east to west is 208 miles, and its extreme breadth from north to south 156 miles. Its area is nearly 16,000 square miles—little more than a third part of the size of England and Wales.

CLIMATE.—The elevation of the country renders the climate of Switzerland cold on the whole, though in particular localities (and especially in the narrow mountain-valleys) considerable heat is experienced.

PRODUCTIONS.—1. All the ordinary domestic animals of Europe are found. The wild animals include the bear, wolf, lynx, chamois; and of the birds the most noted are the eagle, and the lammergeier or bearded vulture.

2. The produce of the soil is varied. The vine flourishes in the lower valleys and plains to a height of about 1,700 feet above the sea-level. Wheat and other grain are also grown. But Switzerland is rather pastoral than an agricultural country. Timber is abundant upon the mountain-sides.

3. Coal, iron, copper, lead, and rock-salt are found, but not much worked. Numerous mineral springs, especially in the canton of Berne.

INHABITANTS.—Switzerland, at the last census (December 1, 1880), had 2,846,102 inhabitants, which is a large population for so mountainous a country, being on an average nearly 180 persons per square mile. In 1882 the population was estimated at 2,872,902.

The Swiss (as the people are called) are not so much a distinct nation as an offshoot from the population of the three neighbouring countries—Germany, France, and Italy. There is no Swiss language. In the western cantons the people speak French; in the east the German language is the common tongue. In one of the Swiss cantons—that of Tessin, to the south of the Alps—the people are of Italian origin, and speak the Italian language.

INDUSTRY.—1. The Swiss are a frugal and industrious race. Within the mountain-region the people are chiefly shepherds and herdsmen. Their cows, sheep, and goats constitute their wealth, and furnish their principal occupation. In summer the cattle are pastured on the mountain-sides, in winter they descend to the valleys.

2. In the more level parts of the country (that is, in the north and west) manufactures are extensively pursued. Silk and cotton goods are made; so also are watches, musical boxes, and various articles of jewellery. A vast number of watches, the produce of Swiss industry, are annually exported to other countries. Geneva is the principal seat of this manufacture.

3. In spite of great natural disadvantages, the commerce of Switzerland is extensive. The imports are chiefly articles of food, colonial produce, and raw material for manufacture; and the exports, manufactured goods and farm produce.

The initials "F" and "G" signify whether printed in French or German.

GERMANY.

The name "Germany" generally denotes that portion of central Europe inhabited chiefly by German-speaking peoples. But the "German Empire," constituted in December, 1870, does not include the Germanic provinces of Austria or the Germanic cantons of Switzerland.

EXTENT.—The total area of the German Empire as now constituted is 212,028 square miles, or about three and half times that of England and Wales.

CLIMATE.—The climate of Germany resembles, in the main, that of the corresponding latitudes of Britain; it is, however, somewhat colder, and the winters are more severe.

PRODUCTIONS.—The forests are extensive, and give shelter to numerous wild animals, such as the wolf, wild boar, and various deer. The minerals include coal, with iron and other metals; these are chiefly found in the Rhine province, and in the neighbourhood of the Harz. Amber, precious stones, and some gold, silver, and copper are also found.

INHABITANTS.—The total population of the twenty-five states (and the Reichsland of Alsace-Lorraine) which are comprehended within the German Empire, was, according to the last census (1885) 46,840,587, or an average of 220 persons to the square mile, less than half that of England.

INDUSTRY.—Germany in general is rather agricultural than manufacturing. In many parts of the Prussian dominions, however, especially within the Rhine province and Silesia, manufactures flourish.

1. Agriculture employs two-fifths of the German population. The various grains, especially rye (which forms the chief food of the lower orders), are very largely raised; as also is flax, for the supply of the linen manufacture. The vine is extensively grown in Bavaria, Wurtemberg, and the Rhine provinces.

2. Manufactures.—North Germany, on the whole, is more manufacturing than its southern half, and Prussia takes the lead in this department of industry. The linen manufacture is extensively pursued in Silesia; the cotton, woollen, and silk manufactures, with various works in metal, in the western half of the kingdom. Berlin is especially noted for its glass, porcelain, jewellery, and fancy goods in general.

3. Commerce.—The trade of the German Empire is under the control of the Zollverein or Customs League formed in 1818, and renewed in 1865, and which at present embraces all the German states, with the exception of Hamburg and Bremen. The imports are cotton and woollen yarn and piece goods; iron, wrought and unwrought; coals, from Britain; hemp, tallow, &c., and colonial produce. The exports are corn, oxen, sheep, and horses; raw sugar, wool, timber, iron, linen, and provisions.

AUSTRIA.

EXTENT.—The area of Austria proper is 115,903 square miles, and of Hungary 125,039 square miles. Including Bosnia and Herzegovina, the empire has a total area of 265,189 square miles, about four and half times the area of England and Wales.

PRODUCTIONS.—The natural productions of the empire are extremely varied. Every plant indigenous to Europe is found in Hungary alone, and the mineral wealth of the two countries is said to be greater than that of any other European country.

INHABITANTS.—The Austrian Empire has above 38,000,000 inhabitants—a greater population than any other European state, excepting Russia and Germany. Over 22,000,000 inhabit the German provinces of the empire, but hardly more than 6,000,000 of them are of the German race, the remainder consisting of Czechs (who form the bulk of the Bohemian population) and other Sclavonic races. 5,500,000 Austrian subjects are Poles, and nearly 500,000 speak the Italian language. These latter inhabit the southern valleys of the Tyrol.

The remaining 15,500,000 of the Austrian population includes the people of Hungary and the adjacent territories, known under the general name of the Hungarian countries. In Hungary itself the Magyars form the dominant race; intermixed with them are Sclavonic races, together with Germans and others. Jews are numerously dispersed throughout the empire.

INDUSTRY.—The industrial produce of the Austrian empire is considerable. There are considerable manufactures, but agriculture is the principal, and in many parts the only, industry.

1. Agriculture occupies by much the larger proportion of the people, especially in Hungary and Galicia, which are the principal corn-growing provinces. Rye is the staple crop, and forms the principal article of food. Large quantities of barley and oats are grown in Galicia. Much wine is produced, that of Tokay being specially famed. Vast numbers of sheep and cattle are reared in various parts of the empire.

2. Manufactures are mostly pursued in the German provinces, where linen, woollen, and other fabrics are made. Bohemia is celebrated for its glass-works. Still Austria is not, on the whole, a manufacturing country, and manufactured goods are therefore largely imported.

3. The foreign Commerce of Austria is checked by its limited extent of sea-coast and by the mountain-chains which have to be crossed in order to reach the coast from the interior.

DENMARK.

EXTENT.—The present area of the kingdom of Denmark is 13,784 square miles—less han half the area of Scotland, and about one-fourth that of England and Wales. But if ve include Iceland and the Faroe Islands, the total area is 54,310 square miles.

PRODUCTIONS.—The chief sources of national wealth are found in the rich pastures, nd in the fisheries carried on in the adjacent seas. There are few wild animals, and no ninerals, except limited quantities of coal, marble, and building-stone in the island of Bornholm. Turf is generally used for coal.

INHABITANTS.—The Danes belong to the Scandinavian family of nations, and in 1882 were estimated to number 2,018,432, an average of 146 per square mile, less than a third of that of England. The Faroe Islands, Iceland, and Greenland have a total population of over 93,000.

INDUSTRY.—The industry of Denmark is chiefly devoted to the soil. The rearing of cattle, with the culture of the land, employ the greater number of the people. Oxen, with butter and cheese, and other farm and dairy produce, are largely supplied to other countries, and a considerable amount of maritime commerce is thus carried on. The Danes are good sailors, and have always been noted for their devotion to maritime pursuits.

SWEDEN.

EXTENT.—In size, Sweden and Norway are little short of 300,000 square miles, or considerably more than five times the area of England and Wales.

CLIMATE.—Sweden and Norway have a climate which is considerably colder than that England, owing to their higher latitude. But the air in both countries is generally ry and healthy, and the winters, though long, are less severe than in similar latitudes sewhere.

PRODUCTIONS.—The most valuable among the natural productions of Scandinavia are und in its mines, its forests, and its fisheries. Copper and iron are abundant in both ountries. The extensive forests furnish an inexhaustible supply of timber (chiefly pine, r wood properly known as deal), which is largely exported to other nations. The sheries among the Lofoden Islands and upon the Baltic coasts are an important source f national wealth.

INHABITANTS.—Sweden and Norway are thinly-peopled countries—necessarily so, rom the vast extent of their mountains and forests, and the severity of the climate owards their northern limits.

INDUSTRY.—It is only in the south of Sweden that agriculture is much pursued. But the people of both countries are expert seamen, and a great deal of maritime commerce is carried on. Their iron and copper, their timber, and the produce of their fisheries (dried and salted, for consumption by other nations), give the industrious Swedes and Norwegians a place in the general markets of the world. They export these things in return for the luxuries and various native produce of other lands.

SPAIN.

EXTENT.—In point of size Spain is above three times larger than England and Wales, and nearly as large as France—its area being 191,100 square miles, or including the Canary and Balearic Islands and Ceuta, &c., in North Africa, 197,767 square miles.

CLIMATE.—The climate of Spain exhibits great varieties. The north is temperate; the middle parts are liable to great extremes of heat and cold—parched in summer by intense heat, and piercingly cold in winter; the south and south-east are hot, like the countries of southern Europe in general.

PRODUCTIONS.—The natural productions of Spain are varied and valuable, but the deficiency of means of communication has hitherto hindered the development of its vegetable and mineral wealth.

INHABITANTS.—Spain is one of the least populous among European countries. In 1883 the kingdom, including the Balearic and Canary Islands, each of which forms a province, and the "Presidios" (Tetuan, Ceuta) in North Africa, had a population of 16,858,721, a smaller number in proportion to size than that of many other countries which are inferior in natural wealth, being on an average only 85 persons to the square mile. There are fewer foreigners in Spain than in any other European country. The Basques number 440,000.

INDUSTRY.—The pursuits of industry are not generally flourishing in Spain, which country exhibits, in nearly every regard, a great decline from its condition at a former period. Agriculture is less an object of national pursuit than the rearing of sheep, immense numbers of which are bred upon the extensive pasture grounds of the interior. The silk manufacture has flourished of late at Valencia and other places on the Mediterranean coasts. Some woollen and linen fabrics are also made, and leather is extensively prepared. Spain, however, is not generally a manufacturing country.

Commerce.—The chief articles of produce which Spain exchanges for the manufactures of other lands are wines, fruits (raisins, oranges, figs, &c.), wool, salt, barilla, quicksilver, lead, and cobalt; with leather, olive-oil, and cork-wood. The foreign trade carried on both with France and England is considerable. The sherry wines so largely consumed in the latter country are the produce of the south-west of Spain, in the vicinity of Cadiz.

PORTUGAL.

EXTENT.—Portugal has an area of 36,510 square miles, or nearly three-fifths that of England and Wales, and less than one-sixth the size of Spain.

CLIMATE.—The climate of Portugal is warm and equable. This latter quality is due to its maritime position. Lisbon, its capital, exhibits remarkably little variation of temperature throughout the year, and thus presents a remarkable contrast to Madrid, which is subject to great extremes of heat and cold.

PRODUCTIONS.—The natural productions of Portugal (in the vegetable kingdom) resemble those of the south and south-east coasts of Spain. The vine and the olive, the orange, lemon, citron, almond, fig, and the myrtle abound. There are large forests of oak, chestnuts, and cork. The mineral resources of the country, comprehend copper, lead, and numerous other metals, very few of them, however, being worked.

INHABITANTS.—In 1881 the population of Portugal was estimated at 4,306,554 (an average of 118 to the square mile), exclusive of the Azores (259,000) and Madeira (130,500).

INDUSTRY.—Every branch of industry is in a backward condition, and the abundant natural resources which the country possesses are turned to comparatively little account.

ITALY.

EXTENT.—The total area of Italy, including the islands, is estimated at 114,410 square miles, or nearly twice that of England and Wales.

CLIMATE.—The climate of Italyis warm, as is the case with all the countries that border upon the Mediterranean. Itis also, for the most part, dry and healthy. But in particular parts of Italy the air is very unhealthy, especially at some seasons of the year. This is the case in the low coast of Tuscany, and in certain parts of the Roman territory, to the south and west of the city of Rome.

PRODUCTIONS.—The vegetation of Italy is rich and luxuriant, in a degree which greatly surpasses that of countries that lie beneath a more northern sky. A rich evergreen foliage clothes the sides of the hills, and the plains are covered with the vine, the olive, the fig, and the mulberry, besides yielding abundant crops of the finest wheat and other corn. In mineral produce Italy is chiefly distinguished for the sulphur supplied by Sicily, and the iron worked in the island of Elba. Marbles and building-stones of the finest quality abound throughout the country.

INHABITANTS.—On January 1st, 1884, Italy was estimated to contain 29,010,652 inhabitants, equivalent to about 254 to the square mile, rather more than half the density in England. It is thus one of the most populous countries of Europe, estimated with reference to the comparative number of inhabitants to extent of surface.

INDUSTRY.—The industry of Italy is both varied and considerable. It is, on the whole, an agricultural rather than a manufacturing country. Yet there are extensive manufactures in some parts of Italy, and the amount of its foreign commerce is very large.

Commerce.—The total special imports were, in 1883, valued at £51,448,294, of which £7,121,948 were British goods; and the exports at £47,264,302, of which £3,392,446 were sent to Great Britain. The mercantile navy of Italy consisted, in 1884, of 7,500 sailing and steam vessels making long voyages, manned by 185,000 men.

Πᾶσα ἀνακοίνωσις ἐνεργεῖται ἐν Ἀθήναις.

Εἶναι ἀπίστευτος καὶ ἐξ ἀρχῆς μάλιστα περιεργείας ἡ ταχύτης τοῦ κ. Τρικούπη περὶ τὴν ἐπιψήφισιν τῶν νομοσχεδίων, τοῦ καὶ μάλιστα ὅταν ταῦτα φέρωσι ζωτικὰ τοῦ Κράτους συμφέροντα. Μεθ' ὅλας τὰς παρατάσεις τῆς ἀντιπολιτεύσεως ἐψηφίσθη εἰς τρίτην καὶ τελευταίαν ἀνάγνωσιν, αὐτὸ δὲ κατέστη νόμος τοῦ Κράτους, τὸ περὶ ἀποξηράνσεως τῆς Κωπαΐδος λίμνης νομοσχέδιον, ὡς ἤθελεν ἡ ἑταιρία, καὶ οὐχὶ ὅπως ἀπῄτουν τὰ ἐθνικὰ συμφέροντα. Ἡ στοργὴ αὕτη τοῦ κ. Τρικούπη πρὸς τὰ συμφέροντα τῆς Ἐθνικῆς Τραπέζης καὶ τῶν ἰδιωτικῶν ἑταιριῶν, ὅταν εἰς ταύτας ὑπάρχουσι πολιτικοὶ του φίλοι, δὲν πρέπει νὰ παρέλθῃ ἀπαρατήρητος. Ὁ λαὸς δοτις περιβάλλει διὰ τῆς ἐμπιστοσύνης του τὸν κ. Τρικούπην, ἔχει τὸν δικαίωσιν νὰ ἐπιτηρῇ πᾶν αὐτοῦ διάβημα καὶ νὰ ἐξετάζῃ πᾶσαν αὐτοῦ ἐνέργειαν.

Ὅταν ἔκουε τὰς ἐπαγγελίας τοῦ κ. Τρικούπη διαπαλαιόντος ἐν ἀντιπολιτεύσει καὶ τὰς ἐγγραίας αὐτοῦ ὄψεις κατὰ τοῦ προκατόχου ὑπουργείου, θὰ ἐπίστευε πράγματι ὅτι ὁ κ. Τρικούπης ἐξ ἀγανακτήσεως προβαίνει μίχρι τοσούτου, ὥστε νὰ παραβαίνῃ καὶ τοὺς ἁπλουστέρους κανόνας τῆς εὐρροσύνης, διότι ἠπείθη ὅτι τὸ προκάτοχον ὑπουργεῖον καὶ τὸν δημόσιον πλοῦτον ἐσκανδάλιζε, καὶ φαγεδαινικῶς ἐπολιτεύετο καὶ τὰ ἐθνικὰ συμφέροντα οὐχὶ τελεσφόρως ἐπροστάτευε. Καὶ ὁ εὐκίνητος λαὸς ἐπίστευεν αὐτὸν καὶ τὸν ἐθεώρησε σωτῆρα του. Τί ὅμως μίχρι τοῦδε, ἐπὶ τρεῖς σχεδὸν μῆνας, ἔκαμεν ὁ κ. Τρικούπης; Ἡ κατὰ τὰς ἐξελίξεις πορεία του, εὐθὺς ἐξ ὑπαρχῆς ἐδείκνυε πῶς ἤνθει νὰ κυβερνήσῃ ὅτε ἤθελεν ἀνέλθει ἐπὶ τῆς ἐξουσίας· αἱθυριστὶ δὲ καὶ φαρισαϊκὴ διαγωγὴ ἀνεζωπύρωσαν παλαιὰ πάθη, καὶ ἐπίτειναν τὴν τραχύτητα τῶν μεταξὺ τῶν πολιτευομένων σχέσεων. Καταλαβὼν τὴν ἀρχὴν μὴ τάχα προέτεινε μίτρα, ἅτινα ν' ἀνορθώσωσι τὴν δημοσίαν πίστιν καὶ νὰ θεραπεύσωσιν ἐλπίδες τοῦ τόπου ἀνάγκας; Οὐδέλως, ἀπεναντίας μάλιστα διὰ παντὸς τρόπου ἐφρόντισεν ὅπως προστατεύσῃ τὰ συμφέροντα τῆς Ἐθνικῆς Τραπέζης, καὶ τῶν φίλων του, πολὺ ὀλίγον φροντίζων, ἂν τὸ ἔλλειμμα θέλῃ ἐνέλθει εἰς 15,000,000 καὶ ἂν ὁ ἰδρὼς τοῦ λαοῦ θὰ σκανδαλίσῃ πρὸς ἐξυπηρέτησιν τῶν ἰδιωτικῶν συμφερόντων τῶν περὶ τὴν Ἐθνικὴν Τράπεζαν.

Τίνα σκοπὸν ἐπεδίωκε ἡ διὰ τοῦ περὶ τῆς ἀποξηράνσεως τῆς Κωπαΐδος λίμνης ἐπιψηφισθέντος νομοσχεδίου, προθυμία καὶ σπουδὴ τοῦ κ. Τρικούπη, τοῦτο πᾶς τις θέλει κατανοήσει, ὅταν ἀναμνησθῇ τὴν πρὸ διετίας σκανδαλώδη παραχώρησιν αὐτῆς πρὸς τὸν βουλευτὴν Σάμου κ. Σκουλούδην. Διὰ τῆς παραχωρήσεως ἐκείνης ἐξυπηρετοῦντο μεγάλως τὰ συμφέροντα τῆς φατρίας, διότι πολὺς πλοῦτος ἔμελλε νὰ συρρεύσῃ, ἀναγκαίστατος διὰ τὴν ἐπικράτησιν αὐτῆς. Ἡ ἀντιπολίτευσις διὰ τῆς προτάσεώς της ν' ἀναβληθῇ ἡ ἐπὶ τινας ἡμέρας ἐπιψήφισις τοῦ νομοσχεδίου σκοπὸν προὔβετο νὰ ἐξετασθῇ λεπτομερέστερον τὸ ζήτημα, διότι καὶ ἡ ἀναλαβοῦσα τὴν ἀποξήρανσιν τῆς Κωπαΐδος ἑταιρία ἦν ἐκτὸς τοῦ διαπιώματός της καὶ διότι ἦσι προτάσεις ἔμελλον νὰ γείνωσιν ὑπὸ ὅρους πολὺ συμφερωτέρους. Τοῦτο ὅμως δὲν συνέφερεν εἰς τὴν φατρίαν, οὕτω δὲ ἐξ ὑπερφαλαγγίσεως ἐπεψηφίσθη τὸ νομοσχέδιον τῆς τροποποιήσεως τῶν ὅρων τῆς ἀποξηράνσεως, ὡς ἀπῄτει τὸ συμφέρον τῆς ἑταιρίας καὶ οὐχὶ ὡς ἀπῄτει τὸ ἐθνικὸν συμφέρον καὶ ἰδίᾳ τὸ τοπικὸν, τῶν τοῦ περιλιμνίου ἐπαρχιῶν Θηβῶν, Λεβαδείας καὶ Λοκρίδος.

Ἡ ἀρπαγὴ μᾶλλον ἢ ἐπιψήφισις τοῦ νομοσχεδίου αὐτοῦ ἀντὶ νὰ γείνῃ πρόξενος ὠφελείας εἰς τοὺς περιοικοῦντας θέλει καταστρέψει αὐτούς. GREECE.

EXTENT.—Including the Ionian Islands, the total area of the modern kingdom of Greece is nearly 20,000 square miles—about a third of the size of England and Wales.

CLIMATE.—Greece has a warm and delightful climate, snow seldom lying on the lowlands. The mean annual temperature at Athens is 60° F., but in summer the temperature is frequently 100° F.

PRODUCTIONS.—Though much of the surface of the country is occupied by sterile rock, yet the vegetation is richly abundant wherever sufficient soil can be found for its growth. The vine and the olive—the orange, lemon, citron, fig, and mulberry—are amongst its native fruits. The cotton plant grows wild, as also does madder. The honey of Attica still preserves its ancient fame.

INHABITANTS.—The present population of the kingdom of Greece, including that of the new territory added in 1881, is about 2,000,000. The Greeks are quick, intelligent, and enterprising, and have made great progress since the successful insurrection of 1821-29, when they gained their independence.

INDUSTRY.—The industry of Greece is chiefly pastoral, but a considerable amount of trade is carried on from the various ports. Currants and other fruits, olive-oil, honey, tobacco, and cotton are the exportable produce of the country.

Only one-sixth of the land is actually under cultivation; and although agriculture is in a very backward state, the produce is considerable. Large quantities of various dried fruits are exported, but the corn grown is not sufficient for home consumption.

RUSSIA.

EXTENT.—In size Russia includes upwards of 2,000,000 square miles—more than thirty-five times the area of England and Wales. In distance from north to south it measures upwards of 1,700 miles, and about the same in the direction of east and west.

The Russian Empire has never been actually surveyed, but its area is officially estimated at 8,520,637 square miles, of which 2,041,402 square miles are in Europe.

CLIMATE.—Russia has great variety of climate, owing to its extensive range of latitude. Its northern part is cold compared with the climate of England, but towards the south it becomes warmer. The Russian winters are very long and severe, while the summers are intensely hot. These extremes of heat and cold are experienced throughout Russia, but more so within the steppe-region than elsewhere.

PRODUCTIONS.—The forests, which still cover more than one-third of Russia, furnish some of its most valuable productions—timber, tar, pitch, turpentine, and potash. Its mines of iron and platinum, within the district of the Ural, are also of high value. Copper, salt, marble, coal, and gold are also found.

INHABITANTS.—Russia is very thinly peopled, considering its vast size, though the total number of its population is large. Including Finland and Poland, the population is estimated at 86,486,959, an average of 42 to the square mile.

INDUSTRY.—The vast majority of the people are engaged in agriculture, for Russia is principally a corn-growing country. The central and southwardly portions of its great plains, with the exception of the steppe-region, are annually covered with crops of the finest wheat. Rye and other grains, and also hemp and flax, are very largely grown. Vast numbers of cattle are reared on the steppes.

The metal-works carried on within the valleys of the Ural display a high degree of manufacturing skill. But Russia is not, upon the whole, a manufacturing country. It has a great deal of foreign commerce, exporting corn, hemp, tallow, hides, and bristles; with timber, potash, and other productions of its vast forests.

TURKEY:

ترجمان حقيقت

THE TERJJOOMAN-I-HAKIKET, or Reporter of Truth, consists of 4
and is read from right to left.

TURKEY IN EUROPE.

EXTENT.—The area of European Turkey is estimated at 125,289 square miles, or more than twice the size of England and Wales. Only half of this area is now directly under Turkish rule.

CLIMATE.—Most parts of Turkey have a warm and delightful climate—much warmer than that of England, as is the case with all the countries that border on the Mediterranean. But to the north of the Balkan the winters are severe.

PRODUCTIONS.—The productions of the vegetable kingdom are exceedingly rich and varied. Evergreen foliage distinguishes the southern and south-western slopes of Turkey. The vine grows luxuriantly to the south of the Balkan, and the fig, olive, and mulberry are abundant; the orange also thrives. Corn is grown abundantly in the provinces watered by the Danube. Iron and other minerals abound in the hilly tracts adjoining the Balkan chain, but they are only worked to a limited extent.

TURKEY PROPER

EXTENT.—Turkey Proper extends south of Eastern Roumelia., Servia, and Montenegro, and, exclusive of the cessions made under the treaty of Berlin, has an area of 63,850 square miles. It is thus considerably larger than England and Wales.

INHABITANTS.—Before the Russo-Turkish war of 1877-78, European Turkey contained 8,315,000 inhabitants, but the present population is estimated at 4,490,000, of which less than a half are Turks.

INDUSTRY.—Turkey is a badly-governed country, and the pursuits of industry are hence at a low ebb. Its great natural capabilities—in soil, climate, and vegetation—are for the most part neglected. In the northern districts large numbers of oxen and sheep are reared on the rich natural pastures. In the towns, the preparation of morocco leather is pursued with considerable skill. There are works in metal upon a scale of some magnitude in the larger towns. In Albania and the other mountain districts the people are chiefly shepherds

TURKEY IN ASIA.

EXTENT.—The area is estimated at 729,170 square miles, or about twelve times greater than that of England and Wales.

CLIMATE.—The climate of Asiatic Turkey is for the most part warm, but is greatly varied by the inequalities of elevation and physical aspect which distinguish its different regions.

PRODUCTIONS.—Among the vegetable productions of Turkey in Asia are a variety of rich fruits and other valuable plants. The vine grows luxuriantly in the watered valleys, and the date-palm flourishes on the borders of the desert. Wheat, barley, rice, and maize, with tobacco, hemp, and flax, are articles of culture. The mineral produce includes coal (found on the north coast of Asia Minor, and also on the slopes of the Lebanon, upon the Syrian coast), together with ores of iron, lead, copper, and other useful metals.

INHABITANTS.—The present population of Turkey in Asia is estimated to amount to 16,100,000, an average of only 22 persons to the square mile.

INDUSTRY.—The pursuits of industry are generally at a low ebb. The bulk of the population are engaged in agriculture, which, however, is pursued in a very inefficient manner, and scanty harvests are of frequent occurrence. Some manufactures of silk and cotton fabrics, leather, and various articles of an ornamental description are carried on in the larger towns. The Turkey carpets are woven by the women of the Turkoman tribes in the interior of Asia Minor.

Commerce.—The amount of foreign trade is considerable. It is carried on chiefly with Britain and other European countries, from various ports upon the coasts of Asia Minor and Syria; and with the countries to the eastward of Turkey by means of caravans which cross the Syrian and Arabian deserts. Smyrna, on the coast of the Archipelago; Trebizond, on the Black Sea; and Beyrout, on the Syrian coast, are the principal seats of maritime trade. The cities of Aleppo, Damascus, Bagdad, Bassorah, and Erzeroum are the chief centres of the caravan traffic.

על ישוב ארץ ישראל.

ירושלם, תשעה עשרים יום לחדש האביב.

קנא קנא הנדון נמר לכבוד הברית כל ישראל הברים, ודריך במכתב וישלחהו לעורכי נלוני הרשות רבים, ויחשב כי במכתבו זה יפר פעם אחת את כל מחשבות האנשים המקנאים לישוב ארץ ישראל וכל עסקם ישית לאין והציל בזה את שם הקבוצה מכלמת עולם. אמם, אם מובת הציונה היתה מנת הנדון נמר, כי להציל בכוד הברה נחולה כחברת כל ישראל הברים לא דבר קטן הוא, הנה עוד לא ידענו אם הצליח ואם עשו דבריו הפרי אשר קוה הנדון נמר לעשות.

ואלה דברי המכתב הזה:

המובת ארץ ישראל לנגון מה מחשבות להוקי הרשת הישבות?

שם נשוב על השאלה הזאת עליני להקדי ולהודיע מה היה נדול המחשבה שמני לעשות בארץ הזאת בשנם השנים האחרונות. את הראשונה נתנו אנשי אמריקה לפני חמש עשרה שנה לפני שלשי שנים, ויהי בקנר שמנה עשר יחדים ושלש קטנות אחות הברית אשר באלמנגריה לחשב את מדי המשר שנוצרו ממשרתי המושבה לבחים לאמריקה. השנית נתנו אנשי דיסטבית לפני שנים עשרה שנה, ושתה הלק אחד מהם כאשרה אחת כיום נמצא, ושבעים על יד השני. הללו אנשי שני הקבוצה הצלה כי הם כל נשם

אשר תביאו אתם כארצם, ועקה הם חיים בדעת והשנה על נדבות הנאספות לשנם באסכנה אמריקה. השלישית כתנו לפני שנים יחדים באנגלית אירלנדים בארץ ישראל, ושמה על יד יפו בקרבת מקוה ישראל, ושני לרץ באחרית חשנה האחרונה.

שאלה הסכות אשר חסבו כי לא הצליחו כל הקבוצות הצלה:

א) רעת הקרקע הקנה בשנם אחד טוב.

ב) רעת האויר בשנים שהקרקע ריאה. בכל הקרקע הרחקת בכל המקומות בארץ אשר אנחם שב מאחו הקרקע ואין להקציאה בריאים.

ג) בבר על לילדי אנשי השנן לעבוד בעבודה חזקה שנם בחר בשנם.

ד) הקרקע אשר בחרתם מקנים מכרים את הבאת ירשלם מפחד קנן, אשר לא ישנון לרוכי אנשי אירופה.

ה) הקרקע אחרים לאנשים אחם הבאים לעבוד האדמה בארץ הזאת, אין מי ישמור עליהם מפני הערבים.

ו) הקרקע הם עשרי לחדשים את בקלי הקרקע, ואם לא יבחר בעל הקרקע לחנגן מפנחם וחקריהם הקרקעים לפני שנקנים אחרי קרקע.

כלבר הקרקע הצלה אמסף עוד מכות אחרות אשר הקבוצה רק את בני אמסתנו, הצלה הן:

ו) מכות הקרקע על עבודת אדמה בארץ ישראל. מקשי ומכשיר, הקרקע אשר אם כל יחשבי הארץ ישכחום, רקם לקוחי האדמה שם.

ז) החדשים אינם עובדי אדמה. ואם הינו מני מספר מחרים ומכרים שהי לקוחי אדמה בארצם לא יכל הקרקע הזה לחיות בארץ אשר כל עדות שונה באר מכנה אחי ארץ מלחם.

ח) הכסף אשר בידי הקרקע מקם אשר הבני יכבר עליהם לקנות אדמה לחשר בחרה, לבנות בתים, לקנות כלי עבודת האדמה וסקנה חיה, ולנלכל את בני בחים שהי השנים הראשונות להאחם. אשר אנחם לא חנן להם עד כל יכל. ומלבי זאת, למכרת יחדים ירדם בית הצלה, בית מרחץ, בית מפר מרפא, וכל הקרקע הקרשים לה.

יחבל לקות כי נצלה בקבוצה אם נחנן עם הקרקע שאחו בארץ ישראל מכל הבבים שכחכנו שהי לבנן יע להקרקע שאחו בארץ ישראל

PERSIA.

EXTENT.—According to the latest estimates Persia contains an area of 610,000 square ...les, or a little more than eleven times that of England and Wales.

CLIMATE.—The climate of Persia exhibits great extremes. The interior plateaux are ...ternately parched by the fiercest heat of summer, and swept by the cold winds of the ...posite season. The lower plains, along the Caspian Sea and the Persian Gulf, are ...tensely hot.

PRODUCTIONS.—In these elevated valleys, watered by numerous running streams, such ...its as the vine, fig, water-melon, and peach abound; a rich vegetation clothes the sides ...the hills, and a carpet of wildflowers (many of them such as constitute the choicest ...naments of our gardens, as the narcissus, iris, and asphodel) covers the ground. The ...ower plains are arid and comparatively unproductive, yielding only saline plants and ...ass. Among the minerals are the turquoise, found near Nishapur, and the fine white ...rble of Maraghah.

INHABITANTS.—Persia has about 7,650,000 inhabitants, only one-fourth of which are of ...e Persian race, dwelling mostly in the towns. The rest are Turks, Jews, Kurds, and ...rious other wandering tribes.

INDUSTRY.—Although the greater portion of the country is an absolute desert, yet ...st of the people are engaged in agricultural and pastoral pursuits. Rice, barley, ...heat, and various fruits are largely grown, and the mulberry, vine, and cotton-plant ...e extensively cultivated. There are few manufactures. Those of carpets, shawls, ...broidered silks, sabres, and firearms are the most important.

COMMERCE.—The commerce, carried on by caravans, is considerable, native produce ...d manufactures being exchanged for Indian and European goods. The trade by the ...aspian is mainly in the hands of the Russians, that by the Persian Gulf, &c., with ...ritish India, in those of the English. The total value of the imports and exports does ...t exceed £1,500,000. The internal trade centres at Tabreez, where the productions of ...orthern India and central Asia are exchanged for British and continental manufactures, ...ought by caravan fron the port of Trebizond, on the Black Sea.

EGYPT.

EXTENT.—The area of Egypt proper is officially estimated at 394,240 square miles, or arly seven times that of England and Wales.

CLIMATE.—Egypt has a warm and dry climate. Excepting in the Delta, rain seldom curs—in upper Egypt only at long intervals, which are sometimes of two or three ars' duration. The intense dryness of the air has been the means of preserving from 'ay the monuments of ancient art in which Egypt abounds.

INHABITANTS.—Egypt has upwards of 6,800,000 inhabitants, the vast majority of hich are of the Arab race, the offspring of the Arab settlers in Egypt within the period at immediately succeeded the Mohammedan conquest in the 10th century. The gyptian Arabs constitute the agricultural population, or fellahs, as they are called. e descendants of the ancient Egyptian (or Coptic) race are about 500,000 in number. ere are Turks (the ruling people), with Armenians, Syrians, Jews, and Franks, or uropeans, in the towns. The foreigners in Egypt number over 90,000.

INDUSTRY.—The industry of the Egyptian population is almost exclusively devoted the culture of the soil. The inundations of the Nile fertilize the land, and the limits ached by the waters of the river mark the extent of cultivation.

AFGHANISTAN.

EXTENT.—The boundaries of Afghanistan are somewhat indefinite and fluctuating, nce its area is variously estimated at from 220,000 to 278,000 square miles, or about ur times that of England and Wales.

CLIMATE.—The climate is distinguished by intense extremes of heat and cold; the mmer heat in some of the deeper valleys being almost intolerable, while the winters, pecially in the highlands, are intensely severe.

PRODUCTIONS.—The natural productions are like those of Persia, and the ground yields bundance of fruits and grain wherever water is sufficiently plentiful.

INHABITANTS.—The population is estimated at about 5,000,000, consisting of over 0 different tribes, of whom the Ghilzais and Duranis are the most powerful. Of the ther tribes the most important are the Taujiks in the west, and the Kahkars in the outh-east. The Cafirs or Kafirs Mohmuds, Afridis, Waziris, and other tribes occupy the mountainous regions which enclose the Punjaub on the north and west.

INDUSTRY.—The Afghans are mostly devoted to pastoral pursuits. There is little of manufacturing industry, but a considerable amount of transit trade passes through Afghanistan, owing to its intermediate position between India and the countries of western Asia.

BELUCHISTAN.

EXTENT.—The area of Beluchistan is estimated at 106,800 square miles, of which 60,000 belong to Persia. A straight line, from the port of Gwatar on the south to Quettah on the north, measures about 450 miles.

INHABITANTS.—The people of Beluchistan number probably 2,000,000, and belong to two entirely different races—the Beluchis proper, who are of Aryan origin, in the western part of the country; and the Brahuis, of Mongolian descent, in the eastern districts.

INDUSTRY.—Some agriculture is carried on in the immediate neighbourhood of the various towns, but the bulk of the people are nomads, depending entirely on their flocks and herds. Rice is extensively grown only in Gundava in the north-east. There are no manufactures of any importance. The commerce is in the hands of Hindus, and large numbers of horses, drugs, &c., are sent to India. The trade is carried on by caravans, there being no roads or navigable rivers.

CHINA.

The Chinese empire extends over more than a fourth part of Asia, and comprises an a which is considerably greater than that of all Europe But China itself constitutes ortion only of this widely-extended dominion. Tibet, Mongolia, parts of Manchuria Turkestan, with Corea, besides China proper, are included within the Chinese pire.

EXTENT.—The area of China is estimated at 1,537,000 square miles, which exceeds by nty-six times the magnitude of England and Wales, or nearly twelve times the entire a of the British Islands.

CLIMATE.—The climate of China is generally temperate, but it is one of great extremes opposite seasons. The summers are very hot, and the winters excessively cold. This the case all over central and eastern Asia.

PRODUCTIONS.—Of natural productions, the tea-plant is the most remarkable. It is shrub of moderate size, which grows abundantly in the south-eastern provinces of the untry (Kwangtung, Fo-kien, and Che-kiang), where it is cultivated with great diligence. e leaves are gathered at particular seasons, and according to the period at which they e picked, and the process of drying which they afterwards undergo, they form either e black or green teas of commerce.

INHABITANTS.—China is said to contain upwards of three hundred and sixty millions inhabitants, a number which probably equals a fourth part of the human race. It is no means certain that this is the case, but it is not improbable, and the amount—vast it is—implies a less ratio of population to the square mile than occurs in England.

INDUSTRY.—The industry of China embraces alike agriculture, manufactures, and mmerce. The mass of the population derive their subsistence from the soil, which is lled with extreme care, and the pursuit of agriculture is held in the highest esteem. ice is the chief article of food. Of manufactures, silk and cotton are the most important. he silkworm is a native of China, and is reared in vast numbers throughout the middle nd southern provinces.

Commerce.—The trade of China is immense. Tea is supplied thence in vast quantities, ot only to the different countries of Europe and the United States, which maintain a aritime intercourse with the Chinese ports, but also, by overland traffic, to the countries f northern and central Asia. Tea is not less a necessary of life to the Mongol shepherd nd the half-savage Kirghiz than to the civilized native of European lands.

Besides tea, the Chinese export silk and nankeen stuffs, porcelain, lacquered wares, vory, and various ornamental articles. They import the cotton and woollen cloths of Britain, nd the opium of British India, together with a great variety of articles from the islands f the East Indian Archipelago—as pepper, betel-nut, sandal-wood, ebony, ivory, mother-f-pearl, with edible birds'-nests, and tripang (or sea-slug), the two latter being highly valued as articles of food.

JAPAN.

EXTENT.—The whole area of Japan is 148,456 square miles, more than thrice the size England and Wales.

CLIMATE.—The climate of Japan is temperate and healthy—perhaps not differing aterially from that of Britain, excepting in its greater extremes of heat and cold at rticular seasons.

PRODUCTIONS.—Among its productions are included, in the mineral kingdom of nature, ld, silver, iron, copper, and tin; and, in the vegetable world, trees that yield valuable ms and resins, with the tea-plant and the mulberry. The last is extensively used as e food of the silkworm.

INHABITANTS.—The population of Japan, according to the latest official estimate 883), amounts to 36,700,118, which is in the ratio of 247 persons to the square mile. he country bears in general the appearance of populousness, and many of the cities are f large size.

INDUSTRY.—The Japanese are an ingenious and a civilized people—though their ivilization, like that of all Oriental races, differs in many respects from European ivilization. Their industry is displayed in the careful culture of the land, the good oads which connect the various towns and villages, their skilful manufacture of silk, otton, and japanned wares, and the commercial intercourse which they maintain with hina. Rice, cotton, tobacco, the tea-plant, and the mulberry are among the articles of ost extensive culture. The art of covering metals with varnish (japanning) derives its opular appellation from this country. Their porcelain displays much skill, and ossesses a beauty of its own peculiar kind.

TURKESTAN.

Turkestan is an extensive region of central Asia, reaching from the western limits of Mongolia to the shores of the Caspian Sea.

The total area of this vast region is probably not far short of a million and a half square miles, or about twenty-five times that of England and Wales.

CLIMATE.—The climate of Turkestan is one of great extremes. In the open and desert plains which stretch to the south and east of the Aral, the winters are excessively severe.

PRODUCTIONS.—Within the mountain-region many of the valleys are well watered and yield abundant harvests of grain and fruit. But great part of the country is desert.

INHABITANTS.—Most parts of Turkestan are thinly peopled, but the entire region is supposed to have from six to eight millions of inhabitants. They are of mixed origin and appearance; the majority appear to be of Tartar or Mongol race—members of the great family of nations that compose the bulk of the population of central Asia.

INDUSTRY.—Turkestan is largely peopled by nomadic tribes, whose habits are warlike, but the greater portion of the population occupy fixed places of abode and cultivate the soil. Silk is an article of extensive produce upon the banks of the Oxus, the mulberry being abundantly reared for the purpose. Large numbers of sheep and goats are reared, and camels are numerous.

INDIA.

EXTENT.—India embraces an area of over 1,500,000 square miles, a magnitude twelve times greater than that of the British Islands, and which exceeds by upwards of twenty-five times the area of England and Wales.

CLIMATE.—The climate of India is hot, excepting only in the higher mountain regions, where a cool temperature results from elevation above the sea. These elevated tracts are accordingly resorted to for sanitary purposes.

PRODUCTIONS.—The natural productions are rich and varied. The gold and gems for which India is traditionally celebrated are of less real value than the coal and iron which are found extensively diffused through large portions of the country. Good coal is worked to the north-westward of Calcutta, and iron is worked in many localities. Tin, copper and other metals also occur.

INHABITANTS.—The population of British India amounts to 254,000,000, of which nearly 200,000,000 (an average of more than 230 to the square mile) are under direct British administration; and the great bulk of the remainder, though with various native sovereignties, are virtually under the controlling power of Britain. But vast as is its population in numerical amount, India is yet less populous (relative to size) than several countries of Europe. Some parts of this country are much more populous than others. The provinces on the lower Ganges are the most densely populated; those in the north-west of India the least so.

INDUSTRY.—The industry of India is chiefly agricultural. Rice is the principal article of food consumed by the great mass of the population, who live most upon vegetable diet—not less from its superior economy and from the natural influences of the climate than from religious prejudices in its behalf. The culture of the poppy—for the purpose of extracting opium—is very extensively pursued in some of the provinces within the valley of the Ganges, and also on the plateau of Malva, to the northward of the Vindhya Mountains. Indigo, cotton, the sugar-cane, the coffee-plant, and the mulberry are the objects of culture in various parts of India. Fine silk and cotton fabrics, with shawls and other articles of ornamental attire, constitute the chief produce of Indian and manufacturing skill. The tea-plant is now successfully cultivated in Assam and Bengal.

Further India (or the Indo-Chinese peninsula) forms the south-easterly division of the Asiatic continent. It embraces the extensive peninsula which extends from the Bay of Bengal on the west to the China Sea on the east, and which stretches to the southward into the smaller and more elongated Malay peninsula.

Siam consists, physically, of two well-marked divisions—the main portion lying north of Cambodia, between Annam on the east and the Tenasserim provinces on the west; and a narrow strip of territory extending south and consisting of the isthmus and the north-easterly portion of the peninsula of Malaya. The area, including the semi-independent Shan (Hill) States in the north, is probably not far short of 250,000 square miles, or four times that of England and Wales. The latest estimates give the total population at 6,000,000, consisting of Siamese, 2,000,000; Chinese, 1,000,000; Laotians, 2,000,000; and Malays, 1,000,000.

The Brightest Sunday Newspaper published in Chicago.

IT TOOK THE LEAD.

It is a well-known fact that the CHICAGO DAILY TELEGRAM was the first daily newspaper to advocate the nomination and election of Grover Cleveland for President of the United States. The TELEGRAM is the only Democratic Daily Newspaper in Chicago and the leading one in the State. It also has a large circulation in the State of Indiana. Its Four Editions Daily and every Sunday morning are widely read. Its average circulation is over 50,000 daily.

THE EVENING BULLETIN,

San Francisco, California.

(ESTABLISHED IN 1855.)

THE leading Evening Journal in circulation and influence west of the Rocky Mountains. It is the recognised authority in all Financial and Trade Circles, and, at the same time, is found in every cultivated and refined home on the Coast.

It is distinguished for the brilliancy of its Editorial matter, accuracy, and completeness of local news, reviews of current literature, art, and theatrical criticisms, and extent of foreign news.

It is a fact worthy of mention that on account of the geographical location of San Francisco the evening field of journalism possesses unusual advantages. The difference of time between San Francisco and New York and San Francisco and London being three hours and eight hours later respectively, enables the BULLETIN's telegraphic correspondents to gather the world's news of each full day in time for publication at 4 p.m., thus spreading before its large constituency of readers the freshest incidents of every day twelve hours in advance of the morning newspapers.

The morning papers of the next day contain all the BULLETIN telegraphic news, with a few additions gathered while the millions in the Eastern States and in Europe are asleep.

The proprietors of the BULLETIN respectfully refer to the entire mercantile public, both importing and jobbing, as to the character of this Journal for Advertising purposes.

The BULLETIN is read by the wealth and intelligence of the Coast, while the masses consult its columns as attentively as the more cultured branches of society.

THE WEEKLY BULLETIN

Is a mammoth twelve-page paper, and reaches every town, hamlet, and mining camp west of the Rocky Mountains, and presents unequalled claims to the Advertiser who wishes to reach the masses of the interior

FARM AND HOME.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., U.S.A.

BY ACTUAL COUNT OF THE MAILING LIST, JAN. 1, 1887, FARM AND HOME HAD 177,175 Paid Subscribers!

A Circulation Map showing the Distribution sent on request.

LEADS THE AGRICULTURAL PRESS OF THE WORLD!

Of all the Agricultural Journals of the World only THREE claim a paid circulation of over 100,000 copies, and they are published in the United States. There are only two published in Europe, claiming over 50,000. Here is the List, an examination of which will show that FARM AND HOME leads them all:—

UNITED STATES.

FARM AND HOME, Springfield, Mass. (Semi-Monthly) -	177,175
FARM JOURNAL, Philadelphia, Pa. (Monthly) - - - - -	140,000*
FARM AND FIRESIDE, Springfield, Ohio (Semi-Monthly) - - -	140,000*

COMMUNICATIONS ABOUT AGRICULTURE, Berlin, Germany Weekly) -	70,000†
GARDENING ILLUSTRATED, London, England (Weekly)- - - -	50,000†

* Publishers' report, as given to Ayer's Directory. NOT SWORN TO.

A SIGNIFICANT FACT!

FARM AND HOME is the only paper in the above list that publishes regularly a sworn statement of its circulation, and the only one that publishes a Circulation Map showing just where its paid subscribers are located.

The constant patronage of leading Advertisers is the best testimonial of the value of FARM AND HOME as a paying Advertising Medium.

WHY

THE NEW ENGLAND FARMER

Is the Leading Agricultural and Family Paper of New England, with an immense circulation.

1. Because its Agricultural Editor is a practical farmer and an agreeable writer.
2. Because its Woman's Interests Editor is a practical housekeeper.
3. Because its corps of correspondents include the best writers on the topics treated of.
4. Because it neglects no department of farm or garden interest.
5. Because it has a good story and miscellaneous department every week.
6. Because of its general ability, including temperance, educational and news features.
7. Because it has the best market reports.
8. Because it has no competitor in trustworthiness and reliability.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

EXTENT.—This extensive dominion, previously about 3,000,000 square miles in area, was in 1867 increased by the acquisition of the large tract of country formerly known as Russian America, now the territory of Alaska, in the extreme north-west of the American continent. The total area of the United States, inclusive of the lakes and rivers (about 240,000 square miles), is estimated at 3,501,404 square miles, which exceeds considerably that of Europe.

CLIMATE.—So vast a territory as that of the United States necessarily comprehends great variety of climate and natural produce. In the southern portions of the Union—towards the peninsula of Florida and the shores of the Mexican Gulf—the heat is very great, and the productions of the soil are those of a sub-tropical region. In the middle and north the climate is temperate—the average heat not greater than that of the British Islands, though the extremes of summer and winter temperature are much more considerable. Intensely hot summers and severe winters characterize the cities on the Atlantic sea-board of the United States.

PRODUCTIONS.—The natural resources of this great territory are abundant and varied. The United States include many of the most productive and fertile portions of the American continent. Their mineral wealth is great, and their agricultural capabilities are almost boundless.

INHABITANTS.—The population of the United States amounted, in 1880, to 50,497,057 (an average of 14·5 to the square mile), above six-sevenths of whom are of white or European race. The great bulk of these are of British descent, and their numbers (besides the rapid increase from natural causes) are constantly increased by immigration from the British Islands and elsewhere. The English language is the prevailing tongue throughout the Union. There are, however, numerous settlers from Germany, Holland, France, and other countries of Europe.

INDUSTRY.—The culture of the soil forms the predominant pursuit with the population of the United States. The vast tracts of prairie-land are being rapidly brought under the plough, and the valley of the Mississippi is now occupied by an agricultural population. In the southern and south-western divisions cotton, rice, tobacco, and sugar—in its middle and northerly divisions maize, wheat, and other grains—constitute the objects of agricultural industry.

Manufactures.—The north-eastern states are the most manufacturing portions of the Union. It is there that population is most dense, and that the possession of coal and iron gives facilities for the pursuit of manufacturing industry.

Commerce.—The foreign commerce of the United States is immense, and is second in amount only to that of Britain. The American flag is seen in every part of the world, and American vessels still command a large share in the carrying-trade between distant regions. The exports of American produce—raw cotton being at the head of the list—employ a vast amount of shipping.

CANADA.

CLIMATE.—The climate of Canada is severe within the lower portion of the province, but is much more genial and temperate within its upper division. The portion of Upper Canada which is enclosed between the great lakes, in particular, enjoys a temperate and a delightful climate. In Lower Canada the winter is a season of intense and prolonged cold, which lasts through seven months of the year. The ice with which the St. Lawrence is annually covered does not break up until April, and rarely disappears before the middle of May. But during the greater part of this time the air is dry, the sky clear, and the cold healthy and invigorating. The seasons of spring and autumn are of exceedingly brief duration, summer and winter succeeding one another with a rapidity which is truly astonishing to the natives of countries that are differently circumstanced in such regards.

PRODUCTIONS.—Among the natural resources of the St. Lawrence valley the produce of the forest takes the first place. The forests (consisting chiefly of trees belonging to the pine tribe) are still of vast extent, notwithstanding the immense supply of timber which they have yielded for a long term of years. In fact, the supply of timber from the banks of the St. Lawrence and the Ottawa may be said, for all practical purposes, to be inexhaustible. The mineral resources of the Dominion are great, but as yet only partially worked, pending the extensions of railways and roads. Gold, coal, iron, lead, copper, and other metals and minerals are abundantly distributed throughout the country, and when properly utilized will surpass in value all the other productions.

INHABITANTS.—The "Dominion of Canada" had in 1881 a total population of 4,324,810, an average of 1·24 to the square mile. More than three-fourths of the number are in Canada proper, that is, Ontario and Quebec provinces, and it is within the former that the increase of population is most rapid. Newfoundland (in 1882) had a population of 185,000.

INDUSTRY.—The labours of the field and the forest are the prime objects of the Canadian settler's industry. The soil of Canada possesses surprising fertility, and, when cleared of the timber by which it is everywhere naturally covered, yields the most abundant crops.

ONTARIO lies between Quebec on the east, the North-West Territory on the north, and the great lakes on the south. Ontario is by far the most important province in British North America.

NEW BRUNSWICK borders on the western side of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and is bounded on the south by the Bay of Fundy, on the east by the state of Maine, and on the north by the extreme south-eastern portion of the province of Quebec.

NOVA SCOTIA is a peninsula lying to the south-east of New Brunswick, and nearly enclosed between the waters of the Atlantic, the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and the Bay of Fundy. The island of CAPE BRETON, which adjoins the eastern extremity of Nova Scotia, is politically attached to it, and forms part of the same colony.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND is within the southern portion of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, nearly adjacent to the shores of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, from which it is divided by Northumberland Strait.

BRITISH COLUMBIA, formed into a colony in 1858, is rapidly becoming one of the most important British territories in the New World. The discovery of gold within the valley of the river Fraser led to an extensive emigration thither. The colonial population, however, is at present fewer than 50,000; the native Indians are of about the same number.

The NORTH-WEST TERRITORY, formerly called the HUDSON BAY TERRITORY, embraces a vast region, which stretches from Canada to the Rocky Mountains and the Arctic Ocean. It includes the whole tract of country watered by the rivers that fall into Hudson Bay (of which the Nelson and the Churchill are the principal), besides the valleys of the Mackenzie, Coppermine, and Back rivers, in the direction of the Polar Sea. Lake Winnipeg is within the southern portion of the territory. The great river Saskatchewan, formed by the junction of two branches which rise in the Rocky Mountains, flows into this lake on its north-western shore, as a stream called the Red River does from the southward. The river Nelson issues from the northern extremity of the Lake, and connects it with Hudson Bay.

The tract adjoining the southern end of Lake Winnipeg, formerly known as the R River Settlement, was in 1870 formed into the province of MANITOBA, and annex to the "Dominion of Canada."

NEWFOUNDLAND is a large island which forms the eastern limit of the G of St. Lawrence, and is surrounded in other directions by the Atlantic Ocean. It has area which is about one-eighth greater than that of Ireland. The coasts of Newfou land are deeply indented, and form numerous bays. The south-eastern division of island is almost divided from the main body of the land by the deep bays wh penetrate its coast line.

MEXICO.

Mexico includes the larger portion of the isthmus which unites North and South America.

EXTENT.—The Mexican portion of the isthmus varies in width from 500 miles in the north to 140 in the south. Its area is estimated at 744,000 square miles, or more than twelve times that of England and Wales.

NATURAL PRODUCTIONS.—The natural productions are rich and varied, alike in the mineral and the vegetable kingdoms, but they are turned to little account.

INHABITANTS.—Mexico had in 1882 a total population of 10,006,882, of whom 3,765,00[illegible] are Indians, who are decreasing rapidly. The whites are almost exclusively of Spanish descent. About five millions are mestizoes, that is, of mixed Indian and Spanish blood.

INDUSTRY.—The social condition of the Mexican population is in every respect demoralized, the political state of the country disorganized, and all industrial pursuits are hence at low ebb. Indeed, industry, upon a scale of national importance, can scarcely be said to exist. Some export of precious metals, and to a limited amount, of cochineal, indigo, hides, mahogany, and sugar, takes place. But the trade has for the past few years been steadily increasing in amount.

CENTRAL AMERICA.

Five distinct States and one British Colony are included within Central America. These are Guatemala, San Salvador, British Honduras, Honduras, Nicaragua, and Costa Rica.

EXTENT.—The area of this territory is estimated at 185,627 miles, or about three times that of England and Wales. Its breadth varies from 300 miles in the centre to 70 in the south.

CLIMATE and PRODUCTIONS.—The climate and natural productions of Central America bear a general resemblance to those of Mexico. The coasts are hot and unhealthy, while the elevated interior is comparatively temperate. The productions of the native forests are of high value.

INHABITANTS.—The total population of Central America is estimated at about 2,950,000, an average of 15 to the square mile.

INDUSTRY.—The agriculture of these countries is in a backward condition, and the produce of trifling amount, comparatively, to the capabilities which the whole region possesses. This is in great measure the result of political insecurity and frequent revolutionary changes.

THE WEST INDIES.

The West Indies are an insular region of large extent, situated amidst the waters o the Atlantic Ocean, and occupying a like place in the western half of the globe to that which the East Indian Archipelago fills in the eastern hemisphere.

EXTENT.—The total area of the West Indian Islands is estimated at 95,000 square miles, of which the Greater Antilles include 80,000 square miles.

CLIMATE.—The climate of the West Indies is thoroughly tropical. With the exception of a part of the Bahama chain, the entire archipelago is within the Torrid Zone, and exhibits the usual characteristics of that belt of the globe. But the average temperature is not so high as in the correspondent latitudes of the eastern hemisphere.

PRODUCTIONS.—The most valuable productions of this region are those which belong to the vegetable world.

INHABITANTS.—The population of the West Indies probably amounts, in the total, to nearly three millions, an average of over 30 persons to the square mile.

INDUSTRY.—The chief commercial productions of the West Indies are sugar, rum, molasses, and coffee; with cocoa, tobacco, cotton, spices (chiefly pimento and ginger), to a smaller amount.

BRAZIL.

EXTENT.—The area of Brazil is estimated at 3,275,000 square miles, thus compris[illegible] nearly half of the South American continent, and not much less than Europe.

CLIMATE.—The climate of Brazil is thoroughly tropical. With the exception of th[illegible] extreme southern provinces, the whole country is within the Torrid Zone.

PRODUCTIONS.—The diamond and other precious stones, with gold, silver, iron, copp[illegible] lead, are among its productions. But the mineral wealth of Brazil is greatly inferi[illegible] importance to the vegetable produce of its soil, and to the inexhaustible treasures of [illegible] forests.

INHABITANTS.—The population of Brazil is upwards of 12,000,000, more than a thi[illegible] of whom are whites, almost exclusively of Portuguese descent.

INDUSTRY.—Brazil is chiefly an agricultural country. Its soil possesses the high[illegible] fertility, and yields the most abundant harvests. Coffee, sugar, and cotton are its stap[illegible] of produce, and the first-named has become increasingly important within recent ye[illegible] Rice, cocoa, maize, and tobacco, with the manioc and other articles of native growt[illegible] are also extensively produced. The manioc yields the cassava-bread, the chief artic[illegible] food to the native Indian population.

Commerce.—Brazil carries on a great foreign trade with Britain. Coffee, cotton, a[illegible] sugar, with hides, tallow, ornamental woods, and some gold and diamonds, are its artic[illegible] of export. In 1883, the total amount of trade (including the inter-provincial) has bee[illegible] Imports, £22,286,860; exports, £26,989,020. The chief ports are Rio Janeiro, Bahi[illegible] Pernambuco, and Para.

GUIANA.

Guiana, an extensive region in the north-eastern part of South America, is bounded [illegible] the north and north-east by the Atlantic Ocean, on the south by Brazil, on the west [illegible] Brazil and Venezuela.

BRITISH GUIANA has a population of 252,000, five-sixths of whom are negroe[illegible] There are still a few thousand native Indians, whose number undergoes a gradua[illegible] decrease. The white settlers are chiefly of British origin.

The capital of British Guiana is Georgetown (population, 36,500), which is situated o[illegible] e river Demerara, a short distance above its mouth. The only other town of any not[illegible] is New Amsterdam, on the river Berbice

The Commercial Productions of British Guiana consist chiefly of sugar and coffe[illegible] with cotton, tobacco, and a few other tropical staples to a less extent. Timber is als[illegible] largely exported. The mouth of the Demera river is the chief locality of commerce.

DUTCH GUIANA has about 70,000 inhabitants, mostly negroes. Its chief tow[illegible] is Paramaribo (population, 20,000), on the river Surinam, the name of which is ofte[illegible] applied to the entire province.

The Commercial Productions of Dutch Guiana are chiefly sugar, coffee, and cotton.

FRENCH GUIANA, or Cayenne, has a population stated to number (includin[illegible] the native Indian race) about 32,000. The labours of the field, however, as in other part[illegible] of Guiana, are performed by negroes. The chief town is Cayenne (population, 5,000), situated on an island which nearly adjoins the coast.

The Commercial Productions of French Guiana are, besides sugar and coffee, pepper, cloves, cinnamon, and nutmegs.

AUSTRALIA.

NEW SOUTH WALES occupies part of the east coast of Australia, and stretches inland for a distance of nearly 600 miles. It is bounded on the north by Queensland, on the west by South Australia, on the south by Victoria, and on the east by the Pacific. It includes an area of 309,175 square miles, and has a population estimated (1884) at 869,310, an average of 2·8 per square mile.

QUEENSLAND comprises the north-eastern portion of Australia, and is bounded on the north by the Gulf of Carpentaria and Torres Strait, on the west by South Australia, on the south by New South Wales, and on the east by the Pacific Ocean.

VICTORIA is divided from New South Wales by the river Murray. It is bounded by New South Wales on the north and north-east, and by South Australia on its western side. On the south and south-east it has the channel of Bass Strait and the adjoining ocean. Victoria has an area of 87,884 square miles (one thirty-fourth part of the entire continent), and a population (1884) of 945,703, of whom the aborigines only numbered about 760.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA comprises the central portion of the continent, and is bounded on the north by the Arafura Sea, and the Gulf of Carpentaria; on the south by the Southern Ocean; on the east by Queensland, New South Wales, and Victoria; and on the west by West Australia. The total area is 903,690 square miles, of which about 250,000 square miles are more or less occupied, mainly for pastoral purposes. The population, according to the latest estimate (1883), was 304,515.

WEST AUSTRALIA (in so far as its settled portion is concerned) is limited to the south-western corner of the Australian continent, from the neighbourhood of Swan river, on the western coast, to that of King George Sound, on the southern coast-line. It is the least important of the Australian colonies, and, though established in 1829, has only about 31,000 inhabitants.

TASMANIA (or Van Diemen's Land, as it was, until recently, called) is an island lying to the south of the Australian continent, and divided from it by Bass Strait. It has an area of 26,215 square miles, which is nearly half the size of England and Wales.

NEW ZEALAND.

EXTENT.—The entire area of New Zealand is about 104,000 square miles, whi nearly twice the size of England and Wales.

CLIMATE.—The climate of New Zealand is temperate and healthy, presenting material difference from that of England, excepting in a somewhat greater humi of the air, and in the frequent occurrence of high winds. Its perfectly insular pos fully accounts for this.

PRODUCTIONS.—The indigenous vegetation of New Zealand includes several kin valuable timber (chiefly from trees of the pine tribe), but, like that of Australia, th perhaps in a less degree, is deficient in food-plants. New Zealand has neither gr grains nor fruits. The taro and the sweet potato are cultivated as their chief artic diet by the natives. The native flax (phormium tenax) is capable of furnishing a val cordage.

INHABITANTS.—New Zealand was colonized by Britain in 1839, and has since re an appanage of the British Crown. The population, on June 30th, 1884, was 56 exclusive of Maories—now reduced to 44,000—by far the greater number of whom found on the North Island.

INDUSTRY.—The colonists are mostly engaged in sheep farming, agriculture, mi and trade.

The Accrington Gazette, circulating in the Accrington Parliamentary Division, which comprises the populous towns of Accrington, Church, Clayton-le-Moors, Oswaldtwistle, and Rishton. These towns are largely engaged in cotton, mining, ironworks, calico-printing, and agricultural industries. It is the recognised Conservative organ throughout the division, and is read by the most influential residents of the borough and neighbourhood, and is so conducted as to give all the news of the day, besides the fullest local intelligence.

Copies are supplied to a number of reading rooms in many of the large provincial towns, thereby coming in constant contact with all who attend.

Two Editions are published each Saturday, and Special Editions as occasions demand.

Advertisers generally, in making their selection of those mediums specially adapted to meet their requirements, would do well by noticing the Gazettes, as the facilities, together with the advantages derived from advertisements appearing in them, are such as can seldom be met with.

Advertisements inserted in "Accrington Gazette" and "Haslingden and Rossendale Gazette" for one charge. If ordered for the "Echo," a special charge will be made.

THE AGNOSTIC ANNUAL.

If those who want to know what Agnosticism stands for cannot find out from the pages of the AGNOSTIC, they are to be pitied, for it would be impossible to desiderate a fuller or more refined exposition of the deductions arrived at by the pupils of a by no means new school of thought than is given in this conscientiously-edited magazine. —Owl (Birmingham).

The AGNOSTIC is a monthly Journal devoted to liberal thought, in which Agnosticism in its various aspects is learnedly discussed. All England's capital is gathered there. . . . One of the best publications of the day.—Truthseeker.

The magazine will, no doubt, be popular among Agnostics. Its literary character is vouched for by the names of its contributors.—Nottingham Daily Guardian.

Eminently a journal for thoughtful persons interested in the great problems of the spiritual and secular life.—Northampton Guardian.

The articles are from the pens of the ablest Liberal writers in England, and are calculated to stir thought to the foundation. It is a journal that thinkers can ill afford to be without.—American Nonconformist.

WATTS & CO., 17, JOHNSON'S COURT, LONDON, E.C.

Admiralty and Horse Guards Gazette.

SATURDAY, SIXPENCE.

Established 1884, New Series 1886, under distinguished Naval and Military patronage.

Is the recognised organ of the Naval and Military Services of Great Britain, written by officers of all branches of Her Majesty's Services, under the editorship of Captain R. H. Armit, author of "Light as a Motive Power," and other scientific works, and Special correspondent of the Manchester Guardian in 1870-71 with the German Head Quarters in France.

The ADMIRALTY AND HORSE GUARDS GAZETTE devotes its attention to matters of national defence, dealing with those questions from a patriotic point of view, uninfluenced by political bias or personal interests. It is to be found in every Naval and Regimental Mess at home and abroad, in all the Service Clubs and Government Departments, in all Naval and Military Reading Rooms, and Sailors' Homes.

The ADMIRALTY AND HORSE GUARDS GAZETTE has also the honour of being admitted to every European Court, and is to be found in the Ministries of Foreign Affairs, War, and Marine of all Foreign Governments. It is also on the Special List of the British Admiralty and War Office, and exchanges with all Foreign Service Journals.

The ADMIRALTY AND HORSE GUARDS GAZETTE is acknowledged to be the leading Service paper in England and throughout the world.

The Alliance News:

THE ORGAN OF THE UNITED KINGDOM ALLIANCE FOR THE SUPPRESSION OF THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY. PRICE ONE PENNY.

THE ALLIANCE NEWS contains Leading Articles, Reports of Meetings, Correspondence, and other valuable information bearing on the question of "Local Option," the agitation on behalf of the Prohibition of the Liquor Traffic, and the progress of the Temperance Movement in England, Scotland, and Ireland. Tales, Extracts from Good Books, Anecdotes, Poetry, and Miscellaneous Paragraphs are also given. Established in 1854, it has attained a very large circulation—10,000 copies being posted to subscribers in all parts of the Kingdom from the office every week, in addition to the ordinary sales by Booksellers, Newsagents, etc. It is also supplied to Reading and News Rooms, Institutes, Temperance Hotels, and Coffee Houses; and is therefore seen and read by all classes of society. The ALLIANCE NEWS, being the organ of a Society entirely unsectarian and non-political, is not a party journal; and its usefulness as an Advertising Medium is thereby greatly enhanced. A new and important feature has been introduced in the advertising columns of the paper. Illustrated and Displayed Advertisements are received, and advertisers may rely on their announcements being effectively and tastefully arranged.

THE "AD."

THE ad., when first looked at, is not seen at all,
And again on the floor it unnoticed will fall;
The third time it assumes a familiar face,
And the fourth time is seen in its own proper place;
The fifth time it's looked at, the looker half reads it;
The sixth time says, "Pshaw! why nobody needs it."
The seventh, the ad. is a source of great pain;
At the eighth he blurts out, "There's that darned thing again!
The ninth time he wonders if there's "anything in it?"
The tenth time he reads it in less than a minute.
At the eleventh he says he will ask 'cross the way,
If he sees it a twelfth, how such stuff can pay?
Thirteen times makes him think it may be a good thing;
While a fourteenth perusal the longing doth bring.
Fifteen times he has read, and thinks he will try it;
His wife, on the sixteenth, entreats him to buy it.
The seventeenth day 'tis the theme of the home;
On the eighteenth he's told that pay day is come.
The nineteenth comes round, it is ordered and paid for,
And this, gentle reader, is what ads. are made for.

Exchange.

A MAN intending to do business must first prepare himself to meet the requirements of his customers; next he must let every possible or probable customer know that he is so prepared. In a very small place he may TELL all the people what he can do. In a larger sphere of action a printed handbill, poster, or circular, properly distributed, will be efficacious; but WHOEVER IS IN A PLACE LARGE ENOUGH TO SUPPORT A NEWSPAPER WILL FIND THAT TO BE THE CHEAPEST MEDIUM THROUGH WHICH TO ADDRESS THE PUBLIC.—"Publicity," by an Adept of 35 years' experience.

THE BANBURY GUARDIAN

AND GENERAL ADVERTISER,

FOR THE COUNTIES OF

OXFORD, NORTHAMPTON, WARWICK, BUCKINGHAM, WORCESTER, & GLOUCESTER.

REGISTERED FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

The BANBURY GUARDIAN is a first-class FAMILY NEWSPAPER, is the RECOGNISED BUSINESS ORGAN of a very extensive and densely-populated district, composed of large portions of the above Counties, and it enjoys the LARGEST CIRCULATION amongst all classes in Banbury, and in every Town and Village in the neighbourhood.

It contains the fullest and most reliable Reports of all matters transpiring in the Town and the important District through which it circulates.

The present immense, and still rapidly increasing circulation of the BANBURY GUARDIAN renders it the Best Medium for Advertisements.

The value of the BANBURY GUARDIAN as an Advertising Medium is secured by its GUARANTEED CIRCULATION amongst all classes; the peculiar situation of the Town of Banbury, surrounded as it is by a vast and important population, by whom a newspaper is seldom received, except through its special Agents, or by the numerous carriers who attend the Banbury Market, renders the GUARDIAN of far greater advantage to Advertisers than most newspapers.

The peculiar local position of Banbury, the Town standing in Two Counties and within a few miles of Four others, together with the rapidly rising importance of the place, renders the GUARDIAN an eligible medium for Advertisers; in many instances superseding the necessity of Advertising in Five County Papers, with the additional advantage to Advertisers of circulating largely amongst those classes that have money to spend.

('The Banner and Times of Wales')

NORTH AND SOUTH WALES GENERAL ADVERTISER.

Published on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Price 2d. and 1d.

The "BANER" is a first-class FAMILY PAPER; and, as it partakes of a National rather than of a Local character, its circulation is not only general throughout DENBIGHSHIRE, and the adjoining Counties of FLINT, MERIONETH, ANGLESEY, and CARNARVON; but there is scarcely a Town throughout the whole of NORTH AND SOUTH WALES where regular Agents are not appointed for its sale, or a Village or Hamlet where it is not read.

It is the Oldest and Leading Welsh Newspaper, having been established in the year 1843—and the Publishers feel assured that if Advertisers, who are not acquainted with the Principality, will make enquiries, they will find that it stands pre-eminent as a Medium for Advertisements of all classes.

BAYSWATER CHRONICLE.

Established June, 1860. Saturday, Price 1d.

A WEEKLY JOURNAL FOR BAYSWATER, HYDE PARK, PADDINGTON, NOTTING HILL, AND KENSINGTON.

EDITED BY HENRY WALKER, F.G.S.

The BAYSWATER CHRONICLE sustains the character of a High-class Local Newspaper, free from vulgarity, and acceptable in the family circles of the district. The long standing of this journal and its circulation among the well-to-do classes of West traders as well as the public generally, have made it the Best Local Medium for Advertisers. AND Penistone, Mexbro', Wath, & Hoyland Journal.

ESTABLISHED 1858.

Published every Friday Evening and Saturday.

CONTAINS 56 LARGE-SIZED COLUMNS. PRICE 1d.

The CHRONICLE gives all local and district news and items of public interest to the inhabitants of Barnsley and South Yorkshire in the fullest possible manner.

Having no connection with any political party or sect, and being free from those influences which shackle the action of any journal established for party purposes, the CHRONICLE enjoys the confidence of all classes. It has secured a circulation of from 13,000 to 14,000 weekly,

And therefore stands unrivalled as an Advertising Medium for the centre of South Yorkshire. In consequence of Redistribution of Seats' Bill, Barnsley is placed in the centre of no less than four Parliamentary Divisions, viz., Doncaster, Normanton, Barnsley, and Holmfirth.

In order to meet the constantly-increasing demands made upon its advertising space, it has been found necessary to enlarge the paper to the extent of eight columns, which, together with the employment of new type and machinery, render it one of the largest, as well as the best printed provincial weekly Journals.

BELFAST is the COMMERCIAL CAPITAL of Ireland, and ULSTER is the most enterprising and flourishing of its provinces. The population of Belfast is now 210,000. The population of Ulster is 1,743,075.

The entire population of Belfast, and of every town and village in the Province of Ulster, is embraced by the circulation of the NORTHERN WHIG, Established in 1824, and long known as the leading Irish Liberal newspaper. THE NORTHERN WHIG also commands a large circulation in Dublin, and has subscribers in every part of the South and West of Ireland. It is therefore almost unnecessary to point out to Advertisers of all classes that no other journal in Ireland can offer superior advantages as an Advertising Medium.

THE WEEKLY NORTHERN WHIG.

IMPORTANT SERIES OF LANCASHIRE NEWSPAPERS.

Circulation exceeds 5,250,000 Copies per annum.

The attention of Professional and Commercial Classes, Parliamentary Agents, Solicitors, Public Companies, and General Business Advertisers, is respectfully called to the following Series of Penny Weekly Newspapers, which are the best possible media of bringing Announcements before large, influential, and populous parts of South-East and South-West Lancashire:—

BOLTON WEEKLY JOURNAL.

A First Class Newspaper, spiritedly conducted, and influentially and extensively circulated.

ECCLES & PATRICROFT JOURNAL.

Leading Newspaper for these districts, and circulates largely in these important Manchester Suburbs.

FARNWORTH JOURNAL & OBSERVER.

The only Newspaper published in this thriving and populous manufacturing community.

LEIGH JOURNAL & TIMES.

The most extensively circulated Newspaper in the district.

PENDLEBURY & SWINTON JOURNAL.

Admittedly the representative organ of all classes in these places.

TYLDESLEY WEEKLY JOURNAL.

The oldest Newspaper published in this important colliery district.

Each of the above Newspapers consists of eight large pages, sixty-four long columns; each has its separate Publishing Office, its Resident Managing and Reporting Staff; each has its Local Advertisements and Local News, and is, in the fullest sense, a distinctively Local Newspaper. All the Offices are connected with each other by special Telephonic Wires.

Parliamentary and Legal Notices, Announcements of Public Companies, and General Business Advertisements not of a local description, are inserted for one reasonable charge in all the above Newspapers, and thus publicity is given to them over a wide area and among all classes in the important towns and districts in which they are published, which are centres of Agriculture, Manufactures, and Mining.

The introduction of Stories by eminent novelists, including Walter Besant, William Black, Miss Braddon, Rhoda Broughton, Wilkie Collins, Thos. Hardy, Mrs. Oliphant, James Payn, and Clark Russell, with Illustrations of local and national interest, in addition to all the best features of a first class Family Newspaper, has rendered the above series highly attractive, and secured for each large and constantly growing circulation.

THE BOLTON EVENING NEWS.

(First and oldest English Halfpenny Evening Paper, published daily.)

The area of the Bolton Poor Law Union is upwards of 70 square miles, whilst the population exceeds 200,000. Throughout this large and populous area the BOLTON EVENING NEWS has an extensive circulation, surpassing the combined issues of all other Local Newspapers (Daily and Weekly) put together.

Having been spiritedly conducted for twenty years (established 1867), the NEWS has the reputation among all classes of being the Best Newspaper. Its Local Reports are full, its General News carefully digested, and, publishing five editions during the day, it gives the Latest Telegraphic News, Markets, and Sporting, up to the hours of going to press. It is read at the Clubs, the Libraries, the Newsrooms, the Counting-houses, and Public and Private Offices, and in the homes of all classes of the community.

It is unrivalled as an Advertising Medium for Bolton and surrounding towns and districts.

16,000 of these Papers are printed and folded per hour by our "Victory" Machine

Bolton is the Third Town in Lancashire in point of Wealth, Industry and Population.

Intending Advertisers are requested to apply for copies of the series of Newspapers and for Advertising Scale to

THE BRADFORD TELEGRAPH

IS THE

OLDEST DAILY JOURNAL IN BRADFORD.

(THREE AND FOUR EDITIONS DAILY.)

The TELEGRAPH was the first daily journal printed in Bradford, and the first to successively introduce the Rotary Printing Presses of Hoe and Co., of New York, and the Rapid Web-Printing Machines of The Victory Co.

The TELEGRAPH was first issued in July, 1868, and in the interval the following Bradford newspapers have ceased to exist:—

The BRADFORD REVIEW, The BRADFORD TIMES AND NORTHERN TRIBUNE, The BRADFORD DAILY CHRONICLE AND MAIL, and The BRADFORD DAILY POST.

The present Printing Power of the Office is 44,000 Copies an hour; and Mr. J. S. Colefax, of Bradford, Fellow of the Inst. of Chartered Accountants, has from year to year officially certified the circulation of the TELEGRAPH. On the 1st January, 1887, he certified that the Average Increase each year since 1882 has been 592,597 Copies.

The bona-fide issue of the TELEGRAPH is believed to be more than double that of the only other Bradford daily newspaper, and it is, with one exception, the only journal in Yorkshire that has its issue regularly certified by a Public Accountant.

The circulation effectually covers the whole of the Northern Division of the County, including Bradford, Halifax, Shipley, Keighley, Skipton, and the surrounding Townships, a district possessing altogether a Parliamentary representation numbering Fifteen Members. Over 200 Town and Country Agents are supplied with papers daily direct from the Office.

Office:—NEW POST OFFICE ROAD, SMALL STREET, BRISTOL.

London Office: 150, FLEET STREET, E.C.

The BRISTOL TIMES & MIRROR is printed in eight pages, containing 48 long columns. The Saturday edition of the TIMES & MIRROR contains 56 columns, with a Supplement of 28 columns, the price being Twopence.

In the arrangement of the BRISTOL TIMES & MIRROR great care is taken to render it interesting and attractive to the general reader; and to effect this object neither trouble nor expense is spared.

Conservative in politics, the BRISTOL TIMES & MIRROR is warmly attached to the Church of England, and to the cause of true liberty, civil and religious.

TO ADVERTISERS.

FELIX FARLEY'S JOURNAL (established 1714) was incorporated with the BRISTOL TIMES in April, 1853; and the BRISTOL TIMES & JOURNAL with the BRISTOL MIRROR in January, 1865. By this union a most important accession of support has been acquired. The BRISTOL TIMES & MIRROR, and especially its enlarged Saturday Sheet, as vehicles of publicity for sales, addresses, &c., reach the readers of every class of society in the city of Bristol and the adjoining counties of Somerset and Gloucester, and not only traverse the area over which two leading papers circulated, but command a greatly increased territory and connection, thus obviously possessing advantages equalled by few journals in the United Kingdom, and certainly unsurpassed by any newspaper west of the metropolis.

THE BROAD ARROW

AND

NAVAL & MILITARY GAZETTE.

ESTABLISHED 1833.

The Broad Arrow and Naval and Military Gazette has the largest circulation of all the Military Papers. This results from the reputation it has acquired for early and exclusive intelligence as to Appointments and other service News, from the high character of its articles, and the independent course of its staff of writers, and for its earnest support of all measures for the good of the Services. Articles on specially interesting subjects appear from week to week written for the most part by officers of rank and experience, or by men of note in literature who have made the Naval and Military affairs of the country their special study.

A series of Illustrated Articles is appearing weekly on Regimental Badges and History; when completed this series will form a concise and unique history of the whole of the British Army. Each weekly article embodies the History of One Regiment, and any issue of The Broad Arrow and Naval and Military Gazette may be bought separately.

The ordinary weekly issue of The Broad Arrow and Naval and Military Gazette contains fully one-fourth more matter than the other Service Journals, even with their frequent "supplements."

The Broad Arrow and Naval and Military Gazette circulates largely throughout India and the Colonies. It is supplied direct to the Army and Marine bureaux of the French, Russian, and other Governments, and it is read extensively by Officers of Foreign Services, especially of the German, French and American Armies, who desire to acquire a true impression of facts and public opinion in England regarding Military affairs.

N.B.—The Broad Arrow and Naval and Military Gazette may be obtained at the Railway Bookstalls and of the leading Newsvendors early every Saturday morning, price Sixpence. Should any difficulty be experienced in obtaining the paper in due time, it can be obtained direct from the Publisher. Subscribers will thus receive it by first post on Saturday morning.

A THIN-PAPER EDITION IS ISSUED FOR FOREIGN POSTAGE.

This Journal, which is the only Conservative and the only Penny Paper in the District, has a larger circulation throughout the greater part of West Suffolk, and the borders of Norfolk and Cambridgeshire than any other; and in a considerable part of the district it is guaranteed to have a more extensive connection than ANY OTHER TWO PAPERS COMBINED. Being thus extensively read by all classes, it is the most desirable Advertising Medium in West Suffolk.

J. MERRELL, Proprietor and Publisher,

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.

WHEN TRADE GREW SLACK, and bills fell due, the tradesman's face grew long and blue; his dreams were troubled through the night, with sheriff's bailiffs all in sight. At last his wife unto him said, "Rise up at once, get out of bed, and get your paper, ink, and pen, and say these words unto all men:—'My goods I wish to sell to you, and to your wives and daughters, too; my prices are so very low, that all will buy before they go.'" He did as his good wife advised, and in the paper Advertised. Crowds came and bought of all he had; his bills were paid, his dreams were glad; and he will tell you to this day how well did printers' ink repay.

THE ONLY PAPER PRINTED IN CASTLEFORD.

CASTLEFORD GAZETTE,

AND DISTRICT ADVERTISER.

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY MORNING,

PRICE ONE PENNY.

Is a first class Family Newspaper, and enjoys a large and influential connection in the extensive and rising district South of Leeds and North of Doncaster.

It presents an ample digest of all the news of the week, and, from the extent of its circulation, presents an eligible medium for Advertisers. All matters affecting the interests and improvement of Agriculture, the extension of Commerce, the welfare of the Manufacturing and Mining communities, are consistently advocated and duly published.

It is Liberal in Political and Religious questions, and much attention is paid to Social and Moral improvements, while the Local News of the district is extensively and carefully collected. The state of the leading Markets of the week is fully reported.

Publisher's own Statement.

"Without exception the best publication of its class. As a record of religious thought and work it has no rival."—Edinburgh Daily Review.

PROMINENT FEATURES OF THE CHRISTIAN LEADER.

I.—It is a High-Class Family Newspaper and Miscellany, uniting the vivacity and general interest of the best secular journals with a distinctly religious character.

II.—It is bright and cheerful, seeking to diffuse healthy, fraternal feeling, and to promote union among the Churches.

III.—It gives the earliest intelligence of all the most significant religious and philanthropic movements at home and abroad.

IV.—It gives reports of Evangelistic and Temperance Work.

V.—It gives Sermons by great living Preachers.

VI.—It gives Pen-Portraits of Eminent Divines and Christian Laymen.

VII.—It gives original Serial Stories by eminent authors, Essays, Sketches, and Poems by many of the most popular authors of our time.

VIII.—It gives Literary Table Talk, and Reviews of the New Books.

IX.—It contains, in its Open Council, a section specially set apart for well-written Correspondence.

X.—It contains a Corner for the Young Folk.

The LEADER is an established favourite in thousands of Christian homes all over the country, and has been welcomed with equal cordiality by ministers and members of all the evangelical Churches, who have generously recognised the catholic spirit in which it is conducted.

The NEWS OF THE CHURCHES gives a weekly conspectus of all that is transpiring in every section of the Church; and the pains taken to make it complete in substance, yet brief in form, is greatly relished by busy men, whose time is of even greater value than money. More especially on account of this feature, the CHRISTIAN LEADER is extensively despatched to missionaries in foreign lands, and to natives of the old country resident in the United States, and also to India, Canada, and other dependencies of the British Empire.

"Certainly first-class. A sprightly, brilliant, and versatile paper. The richness of its variety is marvellous as well as opulent."—Christian at Work (New York).

"Does for the religious world what Chambers's Journal did for the world of general readers fifty years ago."—Freeman.

THE COLONIES & INDIA.

ESTABLISHED OVER A QUARTER OF A CENTURY.

Read by all interested in the Colonies and India.

The Best Markets in the World for British Manufactures.

THE COLONIES AND INDIA is the only Paper published in this country which contains Summaries of News of intrinsic importance alike to Shippers, Merchants, and Manufacturers, and the general reader from all the Countries allied with the British Empire. Not the least prominent feature of this Journal is that it contains official reports of the sessional meetings of the Royal Colonial Institute—an important and influential body—and that between 50,000 and 60,000 copies of the Paper circulate yearly among its Members, who for the most part have trade relations with all the Colonies in the Empire. It is generally conceded that the Paper contains news of great practical value to all who are engaged in Trade between the Mother Country and her Colonies.

News is given under the following heads:—

AUSTRALIA.

New South Wales, Victoria, South Australia, Queensland, Western Australia.

NEW ZEALAND. TASMANIA. BRITISH NORTH AMERICA.

SOUTH AFRICA.

Western Province. | Midland Province. | The Orange Free State.
Eastern Province | The Transvaal. | Natal.

LEEWARD ISLANDS: Nevis, St. Kitts, Montserrat, Dominica, Antigua, Virgin Islands.
WINDWARD ISLANDS: St. Lucia, St. Vincent, Grenada, Tobago.
Barbados, Trinidad, British Guiana.

CEYLON AND INDIA. CENTRAL ASIA.

In addition to the above, THE COLONIES AND INDIA contains Original Articles and Notes dealing with the progress and extension of the Trade between Great Britain and her outlying dependencies.

THE COLONIES AND INDIA is read by the bulk of the Merchants and others doing business abroad.

THE CORNUBIAN AND REDRUTH TIMES.

ESTABLISHED APRIL, 1863.

Published at Redruth, Fridays, by J. JENKIN.

PRICE 1d. Politics—Radical.

The district of which Redruth is the centre embraces a population of nearly 80,000, and the circulation of the CORNUBIAN therein is greater than that of the other county papers combined.

The large and constantly increasing circulation of the CORNUBIAN in the district renders it a capital Advertising medium.

CORNISH TELEGRAPH.

ESTABLISHED 81 YEARS.

The CORNISH TELEGRAPH is an old-established Eight-page Family and County Newspaper.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, PRICE ONE PENNY.

It enjoys a very large and increasing circulation throughout the county; and in many parts of the United Kingdom and abroad, particularly in the Colonies. It is, therefore, an excellent medium for every class of advertisements. Being read by many thousands of tourists and others who annually visit this famous watering-place from all parts of Great Britain, &c., its value for advertising purposes is very largely increased.

EVENING TIDINGS.

An Evening News-Letter, containing several columns of Intelligence, Telegraphic, General, and Local.

Through various telegraphic services, and from its own correspondents, it receives the latest news up to the hour of going to press, and by this means the public in the West are informed of the most important events occurring during the day up to 6 p.m.

CONGLETON & MACCLESFIELD MERCURY.

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY EVENING. PRICE ONE PENNY.

This Paper, since its establishment in 1855, has increased its Circulation more than fourfold and is the most influential and generally recognized Newspaper in the district. Its large circulation in the agricultural districts of South Cheshire, as well as in the coal and iron localities of North Staffordshire, render it a very superior Advertising Medium.

Terms for Advertisements forwarded on application to the Proprietor,

ROBERT WILLIS CLARSON, High Street, Congleton.

THE ONLY PAPER PRINTED IN CONGLETON.

The BIDDULPH MERCURY circulates in the Potteries and North Staffordshire. All advertisements ordered for either Paper gratuitously inserted in the other, thus giving an amount of publicity to all announcements only attained by the oldest and best Papers.

CIRCULATION 48,000 PER ISSUE.

The Cotton Factory Times.

This Newspaper has already a larger sale than any of the morning newspapers in the North of England. Until the circulation had been secured, advertisements have not been sought. For Announcements relating to Cotton Mills, Mill Machinery, Mill Furnishing, &c., there can be no Advertising Medium equally calculated to produce the same results, because its large circulation is distributed entirely among those engaged in the cotton trades—among operatives, their managers, and employers. Moreover, only a limited number of advertisements will be accepted, and the announcements which will appear will not, therefore, be crowded into obscurity by a multitude of similar advertisements. No advertisement will be accepted unless it is of a legitimate trading character.

The Advertising Charges of the COTTON FACTORY TIMES will compare favourably, per thousand copies sold, with those of other leading newspapers. This is the only basis on which the value of an advertisement can be estimated.

The COTTON FACTORY TIMES is by far the Cheapest Advertising Medium in the country.

COVENTRY HERALD & FREE PRESS.

ESTABLISHED 1806.

This Journal is published every Friday morning. Its subscribers include the Gentry, Professional, Agricultural, and Trading Classes in the Northern Division of Warwickshire, and it has also a large popular connection. In addition to a circulation in Coventry unsurpassed by any contemporary, it has a special and extensive sale among farmers and others in the surrounding rural districts; and it is a RECOGNIZED MEDIUM FOR AUCTIONEERS' ADVERTISEMENTS, AND ALL PUBLIC, OFFICIAL, AND BUSINESS ANNOUNCEMENTS. The total Weekly Circulation, which is steadily increasing, is believed to be superior to any paper in Warwickshire (the Birmingham papers alone excepted). As an Advertising Medium, therefore, the COVENTRY HERALD AND FREE PRESS offers great and peculiar advantages.

AND EAST SURREY ADVERTISER.

ESTABLISHED 1855.

In addition to the usual District News; SPECIAL REPORTS are given of all matters occurring in CATERHAM, MITCHAM, CARSHALTON, WALLINGTON, SUTTON, and MID-SURREY.

"Reports fully all matters connected with the district, and claims, by the careful selection of its contents, and the exclusion of all objectionable advertisements, &c., to be an acceptable family paper."—Newspaper Press Directory.

The CROYDON CHRONICLE has now been established upwards of thirty years, and during that lengthened period it has enjoyed the confidence of the public and the patronage of Advertisers. Having no connection with any political party or sect, and being free from those influences which shackle the action of any journal established for party purposes, it assiduously maintains the privileges of independent criticism in all local matters, and therefore enjoys the support of ALL CLASSES, which renders it

ADVANTAGES TO ADVERTISERS

WHICH THE

CRAVEN HERALD

AND WENSLEYDALE STANDARD

POSSESSES OVER ALL OTHER LOCAL PAPERS.

The Herald is one of the largest and most widely circulated of country newspapers, its district extending to ten Parliamentary constituencies, and throughout which it is distributed by nearly one hundred and fifty resident agents, in addition to a numerous body of newsmen.

The Herald is the oldest eight-page newspaper, and the only Conservative organ having a general circulation in the Skipton and Richmond Divisions, whilst it circulates largely in the Divisions of Keighley, Clitheroe, Ripon, Otley, Lancaster, Kendal, Accrington, and the Borough of Burnley.

The Herald publishes only one edition, therefore subscribers can rely on having a complete paper from week to week, and on this account it has a very large circulation by post.

The Herald rigidly excludes "quack" and medical advertisements, stero. blocks, and other objectionable features: it has therefore the appearance as well as the character of a respectable family newspaper.

The Herald makes no feature of sensational stories, yet its circulation in Craven and Wensleydale is equal if not superior to that of any other paper.

The Herald, being conducted on popular Constitutional lines, has all classes amongst its numerous patrons—the Clergy, Gentry, Landowners, Farmers, and the working people.

No announcement can have proper publicity in the district which is not advertised in the Herald, because all other local papers are of opposite politics, or cater for a different class of readers.

THE CYCLING BUDGET.

A CYCLING AND DOMESTIC JOURNAL.

This paper is really two papers combined. The first Seven Pages give all the News Topics relating to Cycling in a spicy and epigrammatic manner. The remaining Nine Pages, called "Leisure Hours," are short sketches of the brightest gems of literature, forming sixteen pages, of solid reading matter, all for One Penny.

We have decided to conduct this paper as much as possible upon a co-operative basis, and to allow our readers to share in the money that would be expended in the ordinary way of advertising in making it known. In order to induce our subscribers to get others to subscribe, we will give One Hundred (£100) in CASH to the one who will procure the largest number of annual subscribers up to APRIL 30, 1887, upon the following conditions:—

FIRST.—Each competitor must first be a subscriber, and unconnected with the Retail Newspaper Trade.

SECOND.—The number of subscribers obtained must be at least TEN.

THIRD.—Each name sent in must be a bona fide subscriber.

FOURTH.—Only one name of the same family at the same address will count.

To every subscriber desirous of entering this competition a book of ELEVEN subscription forms will be sent, and when TEN are paid for a receipt will be given for the eleven; in other words, the fee received for the eleventh subscription may be retained as commission. This will be giving each canvasser 10 per cent. commission for his trouble, besides the chance of winning the £100.

All communications must be addressed to Wm. Bolton, Manager of the CYCLING BUDGET, 170, Fleet Street, E.C.

TO THE TRADE.

As we have debarred the Newspaper Trade from the above Competition, we will give the following offset. £100 cash will be given to the Firm that will sell at retail the largest number of CYCLING BUDGETS from one stand, stall or shop, up to April 30, 1887.

Competitors for this prize must send in a weekly statement of the number received and sold, and keep their books in such a manner that our accountant will have no difficulty in investigating them. Should any difficulty occur in procuring copies or show bills, communication should be sent to Wm. Bolton, the Manager of the CYCLING BUDGET, 170, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

NOTICES.

The CYCLING BUDGET is published every Wednesday morning at 170, Fleet Street, London, and may be obtained of all newsvendors, cycling depôts and agencies, or delivered first post Wednesday morning at the following rates:

	s.	d.	United States.		s.	d.	United States.

Six Months ..	3	3	.. ·90	Single Copy	0	1½	.. ·05

To all parts of Europe at English rates.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

Advertisements will be confined to the four pages of the cover, and in no instance will this rule be departed from. Price, Whole Page, Ten Guineas; Half Page, Five Guineas; Quarter Page, £2 15s. Terms monthly, or in advance where there is no ledger account.

Editorial matter and general queries should be addressed to the Editor of the CYCLING BUDGET, 170, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

Advertisements and business communications should be sent to the Manager of the CYCLING BUDGET, 170, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

Communications should be written on one side of the paper only, and all which contain statements of fact must be authenticated by the names and addresses of the writers, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith.

ESTABLISHED 1774.

Published at 69, Lowther Street, Whitehaven, every Thursday Morning.

PRICE ONE PENNY.

The CUMBERLAND PACQUET is the oldest established Journal either in Cumberland, Durham, or Westmoreland, and has an extensive circulation among the leading Gentry, Clergy, Agricultural, Shipping and Commercial Classes; also among Capitalists, Miners, Manufacturers, &c. In the County the PACQUET is a "household word," the date of its first publication being 1774. Its circulation, however, is by no means confined to the county, the PACQUET having from its first publication, 115 years ago, many regular subscribers in Lancashire and Yorkshire, in the Metropolis and other large towns; and likewise in the Colonies. It was despatched regularly from Whitehaven to the North American Colonies before the Declaration of Independence, 1776.

The DAILY CHRONICLE is noted for its Special Telegrams and Correspondence. During the late war it was acknowledged far in advance of any other newspaper. The following notices are selected from the thousands of newspapers which quoted and expressed most commendatory opinions:—

"The palm for description must be given to the Correspondent of the LONDON DAILY CHRONICLE, whose despatch is not only much the longest, but also the most vivid in its colouring and realistic in its narrative."—Pall Mall Gazette.

The New York Tribune of February 1, relating to General Stewart's brilliant success: "Among the press telegrams the next morning the LONDON DAILY CHRONICLE was the only good one."

"The first authority for the information of the Fall of Khartoum was the LONDON DAILY CHRONICLE, which has been conspicuous for excellent accounts of recent battles in the Soudan."—Bolton Evening News.

"The Correspondent of the LONDON DAILY CHRONICLE, whose telegrams are excellent, has a knack of getting them off in time."—Spectator.

"The LONDON DAILY CHRONICLE has undoubtedly scored by its War Correspondence. Its messages have been prompt, graphic, and reliable."—Portsmouth Evening Mail.

"All authorities are agreed that the LONDON DAILY CHRONICLE takes the palm for its masterly description of the battle before Metammeh."—Newport Echo.

"The LONDON DAILY CHRONICLE has again outstripped its competitors in the excellence of its account of the fighting."—Evening News.

DAILY IPSWICH JOURNAL,

And Suffolk, Norfolk, Essex, and Cambridgeshire Advertiser.

Most efficient Advertising Medium in the Eastern Counties.

PRICE ONE PENNY.

From the date of its establishment, nearly 170 years ago, down to the present, the IPSWICH JOURNAL and Suffolk, Norfolk, Essex, and Cambridgeshire Advertiser, has been recognised as the most influential Newspaper in the Eastern Counties, and by its development into a Daily Issue its popularity and influence have been largely increased, whilst its circulation has been greatly extended, not only in Suffolk, but also in the adjoining counties of Norfolk, Essex, and Cambridgeshire.

The columns of the DAILY JOURNAL contain a full telegraphic supply of the latest Foreign, Parliamentary, Sporting, General, Local, and Special News, despatched up to the moment of going to press. A large and efficient staff of local correspondents and special reporters is constantly engaged in collecting and forwarding news for publication in the JOURNAL, and arrangements have been completed by which the Paper is promptly delivered in the most distant parts of the extensive area over which it circulates.

The DAILY JOURNAL is thus the most valuable medium in the Eastern Counties for Daily Recorder of Commerce.

This journal contains a greater variety of purely commercial matter in a condensed form than any other publication; each separate item of its contents is accurate and authentic; the extent and importance of its intelligence has secured for it the reputation of being "the most complete commercial journal of the day," and placed it at the head of that class of journals which represent the interests of commerce.

The DAILY RECORDER OF COMMERCE is the oldest established, the highest class, and the most complete journal of its particular nature. It is the recognised commercial authority at Her Majesty's and the various foreign government offices, and is subscribed to by the leading mercantile firms throughout the world, by whom it is filed and kept for constant reference. It is also filed in the Chambers of Commerce, and in the principal Exchanges and News Rooms, and other important business resorts, at home and abroad, and is delivered to town subscribers early on the day of publication, while a special mail edition is despatched to all parts of the world, and received everywhere, including the provinces, Scotland and Ireland, by the first London morning post of each place: thus distributing all the important commercial intelligence before any other London daily paper arrives. Its particular information is altogether more extensive and complete than that contained in any other publication.

CONTENTS.—Full and accurate reports of the public and private transactions in all the commercial markets of the United Kingdom; private commercial telegrams and reports from the chief business centres abroad, a carefully-compiled London Prices Current; a daily statement of imports and exports of British and Foreign duty paid and free goods; vessels entered inwards and cleared outwards; arrivals and sailings; list of vessels afloat from the principal ports of the world, their destination and particulars of their cargoes; vessels loading at London and Liverpool, &c., homeward bound vessels from all parts of the world; dates of arrival and despatch of mails, &c.

Leading articles on the commercial topics of the day. Commercial law—the principal current decisions of the week. A list of the steamship lines to all foreign ports from every port in the United Kingdom. New public companies, city intelligence, &c., &c.

CIRCULATION.

The Areas of Circulation of this Journal of Commerce, as per margin, are the Future Fields of Business for English Manufacturers.

The Circulation is DIRECT to leading Importers, by Post or through first-class Merchants, of whom the following are Distributors: Messrs. McLean, Brothers, and Rigg. Jeremiah Lyon & Co., G. H. Penney & Co., Anthony Gibbs & Sons, James McEwan & Co., Bull, Bevan & Co., Limited, The South African Loan, Mortgage and Mercantile Agency, Limited, H. P. Welch & Co., William Briscoe & Co., &c. It will thus be obvious to Manufacturers that the Journal enjoys an influential circulation, and comes under the notice of responsible buyers throughout the world.

This Journal has in twelve months secured by simple merit the leading position in the ranks of Commercial Literature as the fullest, most varied, most useful, and the best printed publication of its kind yet issued.

This important matter of CIRCULATION receives constant attention from the Publishers. A collection of 40,000 selected Names is in course of compilation. This will be open to examination and reference by ADVERTISERS

If PRINTING, PUBLISHING, and Circulation are unchallengeable for EXCELLENCE, EFFECTIVENESS and ECONOMY, I submit that you should favour the Publishers with an order for Subscription (16s. per annum, post free), or an Advertisement, should you desire an extension of your Trade for 1887.

IMPORTANT TO ADVERTISERS.

THE EASTBOURNE REVIEW

Has attained so great a success, that it is well worth the attention of ADVERTISERS.

ITS CIRCULATION EXCEEDS

That of most of the other local papers. It is read by all the BEST FAMILIES in the town and neighbourhood, as well as by the MIDDLE and WORKING CLASSES.

ADVERTISERS WILL OBSERVE

That their trade and other notices are so displayed as to attract the attention of

EVERY READER,

And are not lost in a crowded page which no one cares to look at, as is the case with most newspapers.

Terms for short and long standing Advertisements can be had on application at the OFFICE,

THE ECHO.

LARGEST LONDON CIRCULATION.

The ECHO is a daily newspaper and review, containing, in a condensed form, all the news of the day, in anticipation of the following day's morning paper.

The ECHO is now most essentially a City paper, as a great deal of its space is devoted to City matters. It gives telegraphic details of all business done on the Stock Exchange, with the closing prices of the various markets, &c.

The ECHO, Price One Halfpenny, can be obtained of any newsagent in town or country, or a copy will be sent post free to any address in the United Kingdom at the rate of One Penny daily, viz., 26s. for twelve months; 13s. for six months; or 6s. 6d. for three months.

The ECHO is now acknowledged to be one of the best mediums for Advertisers. In addition to its having the largest London circulation, its convenient size, and the excellent arrangement of its advertisements, ensure all the announcements appearing in its columns being brought directly under the notice of its very large number of readers. Again, its enormous postal circulation gives it an exceptional value, as by it advertisers are able to bring their announcements before a section of the public that, up to the introduction of the ECHO and the halfpenny post, they found it almost impossible to reach.

For a century and a quarter the ESSEX COUNTY CHRONICLE has maintained its reputation as one of the best Journals extant for the use, information, and amusement of the Country Gentleman and Practical Farmer. It has long been recognized as THE COUNTY PAPER OF ESSEX—a position its able Articles, impartial bearing, and exhaustive Reports of all matters of interest in the County enable it to hold unchallenged. It is unrivalled either as a family or business paper.

The ESSEX HERALD is essentially an Agricultural Paper. Giving special information of the latest London and Local Markets, it is indispensable to Farmers over a large area of this and the surrounding Counties. It has also an extensive circulation among the Clergy, Gentry, and others throughout Essex. The care with which it is conducted, and the immense mass of Local information it gives, makes this one of the best family papers in the Kingdom. It is the second oldest in Essex.

AN EDITION OF THE ABOVE PAPERS, ON SUPERIOR PAPER, FOR POSTAL CIRCULATION ONLY, IS ALSO PRINTED.

THE PRICE OF WANTED ADVERTISEMENTS (PAID IN ADVANCE) HAS BEEN REDUCED to 6d. for 20 Words; Three Insertions, 1s.

MORE ADVERTISEMENTS THAN ANY OTHER ESSEX PAPER.

ESSEX WEEKLY NEWS.

THE LEADING COUNTY PAPER FOR ESSEX.

With a bona fide Weekly Issue of 20,000 Copies.

Published at Chelmsford (the county town) every Friday; sold by over 250 agents, and circulated throughout every town and village in Essex, as well as in the counties of Kent, Middlesex, Herts, Suffolk, Cambridge, &c.

The circulation of the ESSEX WEEKLY NEWS is larger than the combined issues of all the other Essex County Papers, and the proprietors are prepared to support the statement by such proofs as are available. The machine-room is open to the public on publishing nights, so that the circulation can be tested; whilst the fact that it has been necessary, at a cost of £2,000, to erect a "Victory" Web printing and folding machine which prints and folds over 8,000 perfect copies per hour, testifies at least that the circulation of the ESSEX WEEKLY NEWS has passed beyond the capacity of the ordinary fast two-feeder machine as used in other newspaper offices in Essex.

This "Victory" Printing Machine is the only one erected in the whole of the Eastern Counties, and there are but two or three other county weekly newspapers in the kingdom that require, by reason of their large circulation, such powers for rapid production.

Communications should be addressed—

THE FALKIRK EXPRESS,

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED

THE GRANGEMOUTH GAZETTE.

ESTABLISHED { As the "Grangemouth Gazette," 1875.
As the "Falkirk Express," 1880.

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY MORNING. PRICE ONE PENNY.

Circulates widely in the Counties of Stirling, Linlithgow, Dumbarton, and Clackmannan.

No expense is spared by the Proprietors to make the EXPRESS a first-class News paper. All events of Local and Provincial importance are fully and accurately reported in its columns, with a carefully selected epitome of the week's intelligence.

Fiction, by Leading Novelists of the day, is published in serial form, as also Short Stories by Local and other authors; while interesting selections from current Literature are given from time to time.

A feature of the EXPRESS hitherto has been the publication of specially prepared articles by qualified writers on Social, Industrial, Scientific, and Historical subjects. These have met with a large amount of public approbation, which has resulted in materially increasing the circulation of the paper. A series on the history of the Town and District compiled from old documents dating back, in some cases, nearly three hundred years, and which for the most part have been previously unapproached, has been prepared and will be published during the present year.

In its leading columns the EXPRESS advocates the claims of no class at the expense of another, and to its tone of fairness, honesty, and independence is chiefly due its success as an organ of public opinion. On Local and Provincial matters it eschews a servile following of popular clamour, and consistently adheres to an advocacy of all measures pertaining to the material prosperity of the community as a whole.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The readers of the EXPRESS include all the principal County Families, Professional Gentlemen, Agriculturists, Employers of Labour, Merchants, &c Among the upper and middle classes generally, throughout the populous district of which Falkirk forms the centre, it circulates more widely than any other local paper, while among the Industrial population it is extensively read. Advertisers have thus the assurance that announcements appearing in the columns of the EXPRESS will reach that class of readers whose attention they are chiefly interested in securing.

ADVERTISEMENT SCALE.

Government Advertisements, Prospectuses of Public Companies, Parliamentary, Municipal, and all Election Announcements, 9d. per line of space. Burgh Notices, County Road Board, Parochial Board, School Board, Railway Advertisements, Debtor and Creditor, and Legal Notices, 6d. per line of space. Properties for Sale and to Let, Farms, Grass Parks, Contracts, Bazaars, Money, &c., 4d. per line of space. Amusements, Lectures, Book Notices, Auction Sales, Public Meetings, &c., 3d. per line of space. Trade and Business Announcements, 1 or 2 insertions, 1s. 6d. per inch; 3 to 6 insertions, 1s. 3d. per inch; 7 to 12 insertions, 1s. per inch; 13 to 26 insertions, 9d. per inch.

THE FALKIRK HERALD AND LINLITHGOW JOURNAL

Published every Wednesday and Saturday Morning, Price One Penny.

Has a greater circulation than the combined circulations of all the other newspapers published in the counties of Stirling and Linlithgow. The special attention of Advertisers is directed to the pre-eminent position and circulation of the HERALD AND JOURNAL in the Central Counties of Scotland. The HERALD AND JOURNAL is the largest and cheapest bi-weekly issue in the Midlands, and is the recognized local organ of the Liberal party in the large and populous district lying between Edinburgh and Glasgow, containing a population of over 100,000. Advertisements appearing in its columns practically command the notice of the entire community within which it circulates, and it thus affords a substantial and bond fide value to Advertisers not to be obtained through any other local medium within the Midland Counties of Scotland.

The Wednesday edition of the HERALD AND JOURNAL is of old and well-known standing as a first-class County Newspaper, and has long enjoyed the largest and most influential circulation among the Landed, Farming, and the Upper and Middle Classes in the Midland Counties, affording an unequalled Medium for Advertising SALES OF FARM AND HOUSE PROPERTY, FARM STOCKING AND CROPS, LIVE STOCK, CONTRACTORS' PLANT, LETTING OF HOUSE AND FARM PROPERTY, and generally all other Announcements of Interest to Proprietor, Farmer, Capitalist, and Merchant.

The Saturday edition of the HERALD AND JOURNAL has, with one or two distant exceptions, a larger circulation among the general public than any other provincial paper in Scotland, being the organ of Local News and Public Opinion for the populous districts between Edinburgh on the East and Glasgow on the West.

FIFE FREE PRESS.

ESTABLISHED JANUARY, 1871.

PUBLISHED ON SATURDAY. PRICE ONE PENNY.

Was the first Penny Newspaper to successfully establish itself in Kirkcaldy, and, in the most populous district of Fifeshire, it now commands by far the largest circulation of the local penny journals, being read by all classes from the highest to the lowest. No expense has been spared in the conduct of the journal in the past, and, as the result, the PRESS is recognised as the Best Commercial and Family Newspaper published in the district.

Advertisers whose announcements do not appear in its columns fail to address the Public.

THE FIFESHIRE JOURNAL.

PRICE ONE PENNY.

Established in 1833, and Published every Thursday Morning, in time for the earliest Mails.

Has a wide and very influential circulation. It has a place in almost all the County Houses in Fife, and is universally read amongst the Professional, Agricultural, Commercial, and the Upper and Middle Classes generally.

The Journal, which is well known as of high literary character, and which circulates also in Glasgow, Edinburgh, London, throughout the Country and Abroad, has been called the finest County Paper in Great Britain; and it is admittedly conducted with great energy and ability.

The Journal gives more County News than any other paper circulating in Fifeshire; and its columns devoted to the County Sport form a marked and very popular feature.

A page of the paper is set apart for light literature. Reviews of New Books, along with Literary, Artistic, Social, and Political Gossip, appear from week to week. Articles are occasionally contributed to the Journal by some of the most eminent writers of the day.

Letters as to Advertisements, or as to the Scale of Charges, should be addressed to the Commercial Manager; Literary Communications to the Editor.

THE GAS WORLD.

(FORMERLY "GAS AND WATER.")

The only weekly journal in the United Kingdom entirely devoted to Gas matters. Established in 1884, this journal has speedily attained a prominent position among class journals, and it now circulates extensively at home and abroad among gas engineers and others engaged in industries connected with the manufacture of gas. It is, therefore, an exceptionally valuable advertising medium.

THE OLDEST EVENING PAPER.

"The Globe."

ESTABLISHED 1803. ONE PENNY.

Six Editions are published Daily from One to Seven p.m.

"THE GLOBE" gives an independent support to the great Conservative party. Great energy is manifested to obtain the latest news, and it has always the character of receiving the latest official intelligence.

Its circulation is very large and rapidly increasing. In London it is largely sold at all bookstalls; at the principal newsagents, and in the provinces its subscription list is very considerable, and the Paper can be also had from newsagents in the principal towns, and at all important railway stations in the provinces. It is also much read in clubs, hotels, and reading-rooms throughout the United Kingdom and Continental Cities.

"THE GLOBE," from the reliability and excellence of its news and reports—parliamentary, law, and general—its latest telegrams, money market intelligence, &c., has the reputation of being the LEADING as well as the OLDEST EVENING PAPER. Its original matter, in addition to light reading under "Notes of the Day," includes letters from the chief Continental cities; and a special feature is the "Turnover" appearing on the front page, written on a social topic by writers who rank among the foremost litterateurs of the day. "THE GLOBE" has also added to its other features a complete Sporting Service. The SPECIAL EDITION, published at 7 p.m., gives the full results and description of all events.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—By the operation of the Postal Union, "THE GLOBE," being under 2 ozs., can be sent by book post at the minimum rate—one halfpenny; so that the subscription for all parts of Europe, Canada, and the United States is now the same as for the United Kingdom, viz.:—

Fifth Edition, published at 5 p.m. - - 9s. 9d. per quarter.
Special „ „ „ 7 p.m. - - 13s. „ „

Country Subscribers can receive either Edition by the first delivery the following day.

"THE GLOBE" will be sent for short periods on a remittance pro rata being sent to the publisher.

The Special Edition on Saturdays only (posted in time for DELIVERY IN THE COUNTRY on Sunday morning), forwarded for 8s. 8d. per annum.

"The largest circulation in the county."—Vide Printers' Register, Nov. 4, 1874.

The STROUD NEWS is a Liberal-Conservative Newspaper, and was established in 1867. It is replete with well-arranged and selected local and general news, which from its fulness and impartiality cause this paper to be regarded as the leading and most influential and reliable of any journal in the neighbourhood. It circulates throughout the county generally, and more extensively in Stroud, Nailsworth, Brimscombe, Bisley, Stonehouse, Minchinhampton, Painswick, Chalford, Oakridge, Avening, Newnham, Cinderford, Frampton-on-Severn, Dursley, Berkeley, Rodborough, Amberley, Littleworth, Wheatenhurst, Gloucester, Cirencester, and Cheltenham. Taking into account the important sphere of its circulation, which embraces the agricultural districts of the county, the mining neighbourhood of the Forest of Dean, and its central position in the manufacturing districts where that staple article of trade, the West of England cloth, is produced, it is by far the best advertising medium. The NEWS has a larger and more influential circulation than any local contemporary, the superior class of its subscribers, and its constantly increasing popularity, stamp it as a first-class organ.

The GLO'SHIRE ADVERTISER and EVENING NEWS is the largest and best Evening Paper in the county, and contains the fullest supply of the latest telegrams it is possible to obtain. A splendid Advertising medium.

The GLOUCESTER TIMES is the ORIGINAL PENNY NEWSPAPER in the City and County of Gloucester, and is guaranteed to have the largest circulation.

The GLOUCESTER TIMES finds its way into nearly every home; and by the healthy tone of its Serial Stories, and its well-selected General News, together with its full and accurate Local Reports, it is exceedingly popular in nearly every town and village in the county, while it enjoys a very large sale in the counties adjoining.

The GLOUCESTER TIMES' Leading Articles are written with much spirit and ability, and being Independent in politics, it is read equally by all parties.

The GLOUCESTER TIMES is essentially a Family and Commercial Newspaper, and is found upon the tables of the Middle Classes, the Clergy, Professional Men, Capitalists, the Landed and Agricultural Gentry, &c.

The GLOUCESTER TIMES is published at Six o'Clock every Friday Evening, and circulated with the utmost expedition throughout the city by newsboys and duly appointed agents; and is despatched to agents in the villages and towns of the adjoining counties, and in Gloucestershire, by midnight mails, and circulated with all possible speed in a general manner by post.

The GLOUCESTER TIMES is also extensively circulated throughout the United Kingdom, in the British Colonies, in North and South America, in the East and West Indies, on the Continent, and in other parts of the world.

The GLOUCESTER TIMES is, therefore, as a medium through which to make known Public Announcements, unsurpassed.

The GLOUCESTER TIMES inserts Blocks of Advertisements of an approved character.

GOOLE & MARSHLAND WEEKLY TIMES.

1d. PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY MORNING.

Goole—the only port of West Yorkshire—has increased considerably in population of late years: and as the navigation of the river Ouse is being improved and additions are being made to the lock, dock, and warehouse accommodation, still greater increase is regarded as probable. It is also the most important town in the populous Parliamentary Division of Osgoldcross.

The Goole Weekly Times has been established since 1863, and enjoys a large and constantly increasing circulation, not only in Goole itself, but also in the important agricultural district by which it is surrounded. It is read by everybody and is acknowledged to be the best medium for bringing before the public announcements respecting Public Companies, Shipping, Trading, Agriculture, &c., &c. It also has a large postal circulation.

GOOLE SATURDAY JOURNAL.

½d. EVERY SATURDAY EVENING.

This sheet is devoted especially to Football and other Sports which now form so prominent a feature in Yorkshire and elsewhere of the Saturday's proceedings. By special arrangements with correspondents in various parts of the great county of Yorkshire and elsewhere, it is published at an early hour on Saturday evening and enjoys a large circulation. It has already found favour with local and other advertisers.

SELBY EXPRESS.

1d. EVERY FRIDAY MORNING.

The Selby Express is the only paper wholly printed in the district. It is the recognised organ for official and other announcements in the locality, and has a large circulation in and around the neighbourhood.

Selby, one of the most important markets held in Yorkshire in the early part of the week, is the central polling place of the Parliamentary Division of Barkston Ash. It is also one of the stopping places for the express trains running northwards on the Great Northern line of railway, and is the principal station on the Hull and London Branch of the North-Western Railway.

HOWDENSHIRE GAZETTE.

1d. EVERY FRIDAY MORNING.

Howden, the principal station on the Hull and Barnsley Railway, between Hull and Cudworth, is an agricultural town in the East Riding of Yorkshire, at which a large horse fair is held twice a year, under a charter granted by King John in 1200. The Howdenshire Gazette is the only paper printed in Howdenshire, and has a large circulation throughout the whole district.

THE GRANTHAM TIMES

AND

SOUTH LINCOLNSHIRE GAZETTE.

EIGHT PAGES. SIXTY-FOUR LONG COLUMNS.

EVERY FRIDAY MORNING. ONE PENNY.

The GRANTHAM TIMES is a full-sized splendidly printed Weekly Newspaper, with a very large circulation throughout South Lincolnshire, North Leicestershire, Rutland, North Northamptonshire, and East Notts.

DISTRICT REPORTERS are stationed at Bourn, Spalding, and Boston; and the GRANTHAM TIMES has its own correspondents and agents at Sleaford, Newark, Lincoln, Donington, Ancaster, Bottesford, The Deepings, Stamford, Buckminster, Corby, and nearly every village.

In order that no place shall be not supplied with the Paper, traps with men and boys are despatched from the GRANTHAM TIMES Office into those districts (including the Vale of Belvoir) inaccessible by any other means. It thus enjoys a very large circulation, and is, in many places, the only Newspaper extensively read.

NEWS.—The GRANTHAM TIMES supplies all the local and district news, together with able leaders and jottings on current topics.

REVIEWS.—Special columns are devoted to the review of new publications, magazines, and music.

NOVELTIES.—Manufacturers' novelties are also critically noticed.

SPORTING.—Special attention is paid to sports of all kinds.

BOURN EDITION contains all Bourn news, fully reported.

ADVERTISEMENTS are inserted at charges commensurate with its popular and rapidly increasing sale. As a Medium for all classes of Advertisements the GRANTHAM TIMES is recognised as being first-class. Its large number of small "Wanted," &c., Advertisements is a safe indication of a popular sale.

It is published in the parish of Spittlegate, near to the world-renowned Spittlegate Ironworks.

All Communications should be addressed, and Cheques and Post Office Orders made payable to the Publisher:

GRANTHAM JOURNAL,
MELTON MOWBRAY, OAKHAM AND UPPINGHAM JOURNAL.

ESTABLISHED 1854.

SATURDAY, ONE PENNY.

THE GRANTHAM JOURNAL

Has attained considerable popularity throughout South Lincolnshire, North Leicestershire, Rutland, and South Notts, and is one of the BEST ADVERTISING MEDIUMS in the district. Being strictly neutral and impartial in political and denominational matters, it is extensively read by all classes. In order to meet the increasing demands upon its space, the result of the wide circulation which the JOURNAL enjoys, it has been found necessary to enlarge the paper by the addition of eight columns, besides lengthening the pages, and to put down one of the latest improved Web Printing and Folding Machines, capable of printing and folding 12,000 copies per hour. The chief publishing offices are at Grantham, Melton Mowbray, Oakham, and Uppingham; and there are few places of importance in the counties already named at which the JOURNAL has not correspondents and agents.

THE "JOURNAL" IS THE ONLY NEWSPAPER PRINTED IN GRANTHAM.

GRAVESEND AND DARTFORD REPORTER,

THE PEOPLE'S PAPER.

To Advertisers.—The Hackney Mercury is the only Conservative organ throughout the Boroughs of Hackney, Bethnal Green, and Shoreditch (formerly constituting the Borough of Hackney), containing a population considerably over half a million. It represents, as will be seen from above returns of the recent election, 16,736 voters—the majority in fact—15,807 only having voted for the Liberal and Radical Candidates. The Mercury being, therefore, the representative organ of the parishes of Hackney, Shoreditch, Bethnal Green, Stoke Newington, &c., offers greater advantages to advertisers in the East, North, and North-East of London than any other local paper.

The HALIFAX GUARDIAN is the oldest established Weekly Paper in the extensive parish of Halifax, having a population of nearly 200,000, and extending over the large area of 75,000 acres. It was established in 1832. It is the recognised organ of the Conservative party, and strongly supports the Church of England. It has for a period of fifty years been closely identified with the numerous and varied industries of the Borough and surrounding townships, and is therefore a first class medium for Auctioneers' and Solicitors' Advertisements, Prospectuses of Public Companies, and all General Notices, Wants, &c. Its sale also extends to the surrounding towns of Huddersfield, Bradford, Todmorden, &c. Its columns are devoted to full reports of meetings, and comments on all local and county questions, and the HALIFAX GUARDIAN is therefore an old and well-known Family Paper.

THE HARWICH & DOVERCOURT NEWSMAN

ESTABLISHED 1870.

Recognised as the Leading "Local" for the Borough and the surrounding Villages. It is read (with scarcely an exception) by every householder, so that Announcements intended for residents in Harwich or Dovercourt are sure to be read if inserted in the NEWSMAN, and do not require to be inserted in any other paper—which much reduces the cost for advertising. It is impossible to secure the same publicity for Announcements in Harwich, Dovercourt or the Villages through any other medium, however cheap the Advertisements may be taken. In advertising, the sale of the paper and the class of readers should be the first inquiry. The NEWSMAN has a good postal sale.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—The offices of the HEREFORD TIMES—which are among the largest and most complete in the kingdom—are always open to the inspection of visitors and the public from 10 a.m. until 10 at night. Printing and stereotyping in all their branches may be seen in full operation. Since the alterations and the erection of the new machinery, upwards of 20,000 persons have visited the establishment.

Publisher's own Statement.

NOTICE.

Owing to the great and unprecedented increase of the circulation and advertisements of the HEREFORD TIMES, the proprietors have introduced into their offices the most modern web-printing perfecting machinery, several new folding machines, Kemble's stereotyping apparatus, and an entirely new fount of type. The result has been that in the past year, the increase of the circulation and advertisements of the HEREFORD TIMES has again been without precedent in the life of the paper.

The HEREFORD TIMES (established 1832), the great advertising and family newspaper for the west midland counties of England, and the whole of the Principality of Wales. The circulation of the HEREFORD TIMES is of the soundest character, which renders its columns peculiarly eligible as an advertising medium; whilst it is pre-eminently the local paper for the city and county of Hereford, wherein its circulation is guaranteed to exceed several fold that of all the other local papers put together. It has also an extensive circulation throughout the United Kingdom, in the British Colonies, in North and South America, in the East and West Indies, on the Continent, and in all other parts of the world.

The HEREFORD TIMES is one of the leading advertising mediums in the United Kingdom.

The HEREFORD TIMES is the largest newspaper in the World.

The HEREFORD TIMES is not only passed from hand to hand, but from family to family, and the total number of its readers is enormous, probably upwards of 200,000 of each publication.

The HEREFORD TIMES is generally read in the following counties:—Herefordshire, Gloucestershire, Warwickshire, Worcestershire, Somersetshire, Shropshire, Staffordshire, Monmouthshire, Radnorshire, Breconshire, Glamorganshire, Montgomeryshire, Carmarthenshire, and Cardiganshire.

The HEREFORD TIMES is now, on account of its large number of advertisements, and their multifarious character, regularly referred to by capitalists and others in all parts of the United Kingdom.

The HEREFORD TIMES is published every Saturday; two full sheets, 16 octavo pages, 112 columns, with frequent supplements and engravings, unstamped 2½d., free through the post to any part of the United Kingdom, 3d.

THE HEREFORD JOURNAL is the third oldest Provincial Paper in the Kingdom, being in the 173rd year of its publication.

THE HEREFORD JOURNAL is the Largest Penny Paper in the United Kingdom.

THE HEREFORD JOURNAL, since its reduction in price to One Penny, has increased its circulation Ten-fold.

THE HEREFORD JOURNAL has now a much Larger Circulation than the whole of its Local Contemporaries combined.

THE HEREFORD JOURNAL is the recognised organ of the Conservative Party as well as of the agriculturists in the important, influential, and wealthy Counties of Hereford, Brecon, Monmouth, Radnor, Salop, Worcester, and Gloucester, and constitutes at once a Local and County Journal, having experienced reporters in all the largest towns, and correspondents in every village.

THE HEREFORD JOURNAL, being read by all classes of the community, is the most advantageous medium for giving publicity to Advertisements addressed to the Nobility, Clergy, and Gentry, as well as to the Agriculturist and Trader; indeed no announcement can be properly brought under the notice of the public of the Counties named unless inserted in its columns.

THE HEREFORD JOURNAL is published every FRIDAY for SATURDAY. Sixty-four long columns. Eight Pages. Price ONE PENNY.

Head Offices: HITCHIN.

Proprietor and Publisher: W. CARLING.

THE HERTFORDSHIRE STANDARD.

COUNTY CONSERVATIVE ORGAN,

Now devotes the whole of its space (eight pages) to County Intelligence. It has accredited correspondents in almost every town and village in Hertfordshire, thus securing a widespread circulation. Besides its copious and reliable reports, the feature of the paper is the attention it gives to original articles on local and imperial subjects. The paper is therefore unequalled for placing advertisements before the public. It also enjoys a high reputation for the ability and fairness of its comments, as well as for the fulness and reliability of its reports.

The COUNTY NEWS, though it has been in existence but a comparatively short time, has achieved a remarkable success. Huntingdonshire had, until its existence, been without a thoroughly representative Newspaper. The county now possesses one. The COUNTY NEWS is rather of a unique character. It consists of 16 pages—occasionally of 18—Graphic size, the whole being sold for One Penny. As a result of its success, every public body in the county, with but few exceptions, has adopted it for the insertion of its official Advertisements. Its reports are very full and accurate. Liberal in politics, it has received many public compliments from its opponents for its accuracy. In every village it has an agent and correspondent, and the result of its success is that already it is in request in neighbouring counties.

HULL & EAST RIDING CRITIC.

The only Satirical and Independent Paper circulated in Hull and District.

GUARANTEED CIRCULATION 10,000.

FOURTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.

ITS ADVERTISERS INCLUDE:

The Hull Corporation,
The Hull School Board,
The Hull Board of Guardians,
The Hull Dock Company,
The North Eastern Railway Co.,
The Hull and Barnsley Railway Co.,
Trinity House,
Hull Savings Bank,

And every leading Tradesman and Shopkeeper in Hull.

THE ARCHBISHOP OF YORK writes as follows:—"The Archbishop of York presents his compliments to Mr. Richard Cooke, and thanks him for his kindness in sending the numbers of the CRITIC. He cannot but feel the kindly and genial tone of the several criticisms of himself. Apart from the kind intention of the Editor, he thinks he may fairly take them as an index of good feeling towards himself from the town and people of Hull. In that point of view they are extremely gratifying."

Her Majesty's Chaplain of the Hull Gaol (THE REV. ASPINALL ADDISON) writes:—"I was so much pleased with your admirable 'Pulpit Sketch' of the service in the Hull Gaol—an article which will do immense good, for it was a sermon in itself—that I sent some CRITICS to friends of mine in all parts of the world, amongst them three to Bombay and one to the Bishop of Adelaide. So your paper circulates from Pole to Pole."

THE REV. DR. JAMES, Vicar of St. Thomas's, said at a School Board Meeting, when referring to an advertisement, "I can understand an advertisement in a daily paper escaping observation; but it should have been advertised in the CRITIC, and then it would have been seen, for everybody in Hull and suburbs reads the CRITIC."

CHARLES GARRETT, the President of the Wesleyan Conference, writes:—"I thank you for your kind and generous pulpit sketch of me. You have given great pleasure and satisfaction to all my friends. You evidently had a good many sympathetic readers, for as I passed through Warrington one of the ticket collectors caught sight of me, and as the train was moving ran with great excitement and thrust the CRITIC into my hand, and said, 'See what they say about you!' When I reached home I found a copy from Hull, and another from Bridlington. Your own copy I put amongst my treasures."

THE EDITOR OF THE LIVERPOOL DAILY POST says, "The HULL CRITIC is a very superior looking, well conducted, and ably written publication. I am glad to find it has taken such a high tone."

THE INSURANCE GAZETTE

AND

PROVIDENT SOCIETIES CHRONICLE:

A JOURNAL OF FREEHOLD LAND, BUILDING, PROVIDENT, AND CHARITABLE INSTITUTIONS.

16 Pages Folio Fcap. Price 2d.; Post free, 2½d.

THE THIRTY-SECOND YEAR OF PUBLICATION.

THE INSURANCE GAZETTE is a Monthly publication devoted to discussing the principles and reporting the meetings and progress of Insurance, Freehold Land, Building, Provident, and Philanthropic Societies.

To AGENTS this publication is especially valuable. Success in agency depends solely upon an amount of intelligence, address, and perseverance which, if not possessed by, is yet within the reach of every man of ordinary capacity. To be successful, an agent must be intelligent and well-informed. It is one of the chief objects of the GAZETTE to communicate valuable information of the kind he requires, and this point receives the most careful attention.

To the general public the GAZETTE conveys most reliable intelligence, for it contains in a condensed form all current information as to Insurance business of every description, Land and Building Societies, and similar Provident Institutions.

INVENTION.

With Supplement—"INVENTORS' MART."

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY. ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION, £1 8s.

Circulates largely amongst Engineers, Manufacturers, Scientists, Capitalists, Financiers, and the Commercial Classes of all kinds interested in Inventions and New Processes.

"INVENTION" contains a digest of New Inventions and Discoveries, a résume of the Scientific information of the day, Illustrated Descriptions of Recent Improvements in Engineering, Mechanics, Electricity, Telegraphy, Photography, and every noteworthy Novelty in Art and Trade. The general reader will find in it much information of interest conveyed in a popular and attractive form. To the Commercial Classes and all others interested in or affected by the inventive ingenuity of the time, the distinctive value of the Journal lies in the comprehensive and varied character of its records and reports, and in the special facilities afforded in the "INVENTORS' MART" for investigating and acquiring new inventions bearing upon every phase of industrial enterprise and representing every form of inventive skill.

THE INVENTORS' MART

is an important department connected with this journal, and has for many years formed the principal feature of the "INVENTORS' RECORD." It is a Special Organisation for the commercial advancement of New Inventions and Discoveries. In the "INVENTORS' MART" will be found a thoroughly-established direct and successful system for the sale of Inventions, and for obtaining Financial, Professional, and Commercial Assistance for Inventors. Associated with it is a large and special connection of private Capitalists, Financiers, Manufacturers, Business Firms, and others in this country and abroad prepared to invest in or to purchase, to make advances on, to exploit or work on license, inventions of utility and commercial value; or to enter into co-operation with Inventors. With this special and constantly increasing connection, the conductors of the "INVENTORS' MART" negotiate direct the sale of inventions and other business when advertised in its columns.

A PATENT AGENCY

is also connected with the Journal, conducted by experienced and thoroughly competent men.

THE

Investors' Guardian Newspaper.

Established 1863.

OFFICE:

1, ST. SWITHIN'S LANE, KING WILLIAM STREET,

LONDON, E.C.

PRICE SIXPENCE,

Or Annual Subscription, payable in advance, 15s.

THE INVESTORS' GUARDIAN NEWSPAPER, published weekly (Established 1863), is one of the best Mediums for Advertising, and is considered the most reliable and substantial "Financial" Journal established in London. In its columns will be found the latest prices of all Securities dealt in on the Stock Exchange, and the return per cent. yielded to an Investor at the current quotations.

One of its main features of public interest consists in its having access to the Registration Deeds, and the Registered List of Promoters of every Public Company. Through this ordeal each Company must pass, and THE INVESTORS' GUARDIAN stands by to note and comment upon them. The price to be paid as promotion money, the arrangements for special appointments and particular salaries of Directors and others, the privileges pertaining to certain offices, are all made known, so that the reader can judge for himself the boni fides and honesty of such contracts, and the probabilities of profits arising under such circumstances.

A Reporter attends all Meetings of Public Companies, and a full report will be found in its columns.

Annual Subscribers or Advertisers requiring special information respecting Securities can obtain it by letter addressed to the CITY EDITOR, 1, St. Swithin's Lane, King William Street.

The AMERICAN AGENCY for the INVESTORS' GUARDIAN NEWSPAPER is established at No. 17, Nassau Street, New York, where copies of the Paper can be obtained and orders received for Advertisements.

Correspondence and Books for Review to be addressed to the EDITOR, and all orders and business communications to the PUBLISHER, 1, St. Swithin's Lane, King William Street.

Advertisements intended for insertion in the Saturday's issue must reach the Office early on the preceding Friday.

Stamps will be received for small amounts, but remittances over 15s. to be made by Cheque or Post Office Order, payable to D. W. DOWLING, at the Lombard Street Post Office.

Orders for the insertion of Advertisements, except through recognised Agents, must be accompanied by a remittance.

PRICE 6d. "IRON." WEEKLY.

AN ILLUSTRATED WEEKLY JOURNAL OF SCIENCE, METALS, AND MANUFACTURES IN IRON AND STEEL.

ESTABLISHED IN 1823 AS THE "MECHANICS' MAGAZINE."

Edited by PERRY F. NURSEY, C.E.

The foremost object and purpose of "IRON," is to survey from week to week the scientific and commercial aspects of the great staples of Britain's commerce—IRON and STEEL; and the staff of correspondents stationed in all the chief trade centres ensures the thorough and complete performance of this task.

In this survey especial notice is taken of, and prominence accorded to, all new inventions and improvements attempted or proved valuable by experience, and these subjects are treated by writers of practical experience and recognized authority.

Mining, Metallurgy, Smelting, Engineering, and all the varied interests connected with the production or manufacture of iron and steel have special attention.

While the larger interests of the producer occupy the chief share of attention, the merchant is not overlooked, and to him the price lists and trade reports will prove of great benefit and utility.

THE FOLLOWING ARE AMONG THE SPECIAL FEATURES OF "IRON":

Original Articles on the Manufacture and use of Iron, Steel, and other Metals.
Descriptive Notices of Iron and Engineering Works, and other Manufactories.
Trade Reports from all the centres of production of Metals and Hardware in Great Britain, and reports of the state of the Metal and Hardware Trades Abroad.
Price Lists of Birmingham and District and Sheffield Manufactured Hardware Goods.

The Weekly Illustrated

ISLE OF WIGHT GUARDIAN

IS THE

ONLY NEWSPAPER PRINTED & PUBLISHED AT SHANKLIN.

The Offices of the Paper are in the Parish of Brading, which, with Shanklin, has a PERMANENT POPULATION OF ABOUT 10,000, and this is DOUBLED IN THE SEASON. The season's population being of a changing character, hundreds of thousands of the well-to-do classes may be regarded as among the temporary residents of the district in the summer; the MANIFOLD ADVANTAGES OF ADVERTISING in such a District and in a Paper in which Visitors cannot fail to take especial interest ARE THEREFORE OBVIOUS.

48 COLUMNS. ONE PENNY.

ADMITTED TO BE THE MOST INTERESTING JOURNAL ON THE ISLAND.

ORIGINAL ARTICLES. "TIT BIT BEE" COMPETITIONS.

PRIZE AWARDED WEEKLY.

EXCEPTIONAL POSTAL CIRCULATION.

The GUARDIAN is conducted by Journalists of well-known talent, and is a centre of attraction among the gentry and learned of the Island, owing to the high-class contributions inserted from time to time. It is published in time for Friday night's post, and issued throughout the district about 14 hours before imported local weeklies, so that its Local News is read with special interest and zest.

THE ONLY SOCIETY JOURNAL FOR THE ISLAND.

Club Register. Fashion Intelligencer.

The Illustrations are a special attraction to Visitors, and the Visitors' Register is carefully revised from week to week; consequently large numbers are sent and taken to various parts of the country, and the circulation of the Paper through the post is exceptionally extensive. The GUARDIAN thus enjoys a valuable general, as well as a peculiarly influential, local circulation, and there are few Provincial Papers which can offer greater advantages to Advertisers generally, as wherever the Paper is taken it is prized and exhibited as a memento of a pleasant visit.

JACKSON'S OXFORD JOURNAL.

ESTABLISHED IN MAY, 1753. PUBLISHED ON FRIDAY EVENING, IN TIME FOR THE MAILS TO ALL PARTS, BY HUGH HALL, AT THE OFFICE, 66, CORN MARKET STREET, OXFORD.

PRICE TWOPENCE.

The OXFORD JOURNAL is one of the very few Papers in the United Kingdom that can boast of an existence of more than 130 Years. It is an Agricultural, Commercial, and Family Newspaper, which enjoys a very influential and extensive circulation in the University, City, and County of Oxford, as well as in the adjoining Counties of Berks, Bucks, Northampton, Gloucester, Warwick, Worcester, and Wilts.

It has a very large Business Connection, being the

as its Columns sufficiently testify, and it has long been the leading and most widely circulated Paper in the County. As it devotes a large portion of its space to Agricultural Matters, and contains the Advertisements of Every Auctioneer and Land Agent in the District, it is much read by Land Owners and Farmers.

It is also extensively patronised by Solicitors and Auctioneers generally, London as well as Local, and by the English and Scotch Insurance Companies; and its circulation in all parts of the Kingdom renders it a very desirable medium for Advertisements. Whilst it is supported by the trading community generally, it circulates, especially, among the wealthy and professional classes; and is likewise to be found in most of the Hotels, Reading Rooms, and places of public resort in the District. It is sent to many of the Clubs, Literary Institutes, and News Rooms in London and the large Towns in the Kingdom, and is regularly filed by the following London Agents:—Messrs. Barker and Sons', Mr. R. F. White; Mr. Deacon; Messrs. Reynell and Co.; Messrs. Knight and Co.; Messrs. G. Street and Co.; Messrs. Street Brothers; Messrs. Mitchell and Co.; Messrs. Clarke, Son, and Platt; Messrs. C. H. May and Co.; Mr. H. Sell; Mr. T. B. Browne; Mr. H. Green; Mr. F. Algar; Messrs. F. L. May and Co.; and Messrs. Crossley and Co., by whom Advertisements are received.

THE ARMY AND NAVY.

JACKSON'S WOOLWICH JOURNAL,

AND ARMY AND NAVY GAZETTE.

Published at Woolwich on the First Day of every Month.

PRICE 6d., OR 6s. PER ANNUM, POST FREE.

Is the only paper which contains the Stations and Seniority Lists of the Royal Artillery, Royal Engineers, and Royal Marines, in addition to the Stations of Cavalry and Infantry Regiments; the Gazettes of the previous month; a List of her Majesty's ships in Commission, with their Stations and Commanders; Naval Promotions and Appointments; and a Summary of Naval, Military, Local and General Intelligence, forming altogether a complete register of events in the United Service. This Journal offers advantages to advertisers which no other publication possesses, as it is extensively circulated in the Military and Naval Circles throughout the British Empire, its Colonies, and every Quarter of the Globe.

Published every Friday at ONE PENNY.

THOS. ROBINSON, Proprietor.

The Jedburgh Gazette and Border Courier.

ESTABLISHED SEPTEMBER, 1870.

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY MORNING. PRICE 1D.

The GAZETTE circulates extensively in the important Manufacturing Towns and Agricultural and pastoral districts of Roxburghshire, Berwickshire, Selkirkshire, and on both sides of the English and Scottish Borders, and thus offers the greatest possible advantages in these counties and districts to Advertisers. It is a leading Liberal organ in the Border Counties and Burghs of Scotland, and its circulation is treble that of the other Local Paper. It is therefore recognised by Merchants, Tradesmen, and others in the district, as the most valuable and most remunerative Advertising Medium. Special attention is given to all local matters affecting the interests of a Manufacturing, Agricultural, and Pastoral community, all classes of which are reached through its pages.

"Deservedly the most influential, as I certainly believe it to be the most widely-circulated of our local papers."—Speech by Provost HILSON, at a Public Meeting in Jedburgh, June 22, 1880.

THE JEWISH CHRONICLE.

Offices: 2, FINSBURY SQUARE, LONDON, E.C.

ESTABLISHED 1841.

THE ORGAN OF THE ANGLO-JEWISH COMMUNITY.

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY. PRICE 2D.

GUARANTEED SALE at least FIFTY PER CENT. LARGER than that of any other Jewish Journal.

The JEWISH CHRONICLE is the oldest-established Jewish Journal, and owing to its world-wide circulation among all classes, both Jews and the large number of Christian Clergymen and others interested in the modern Jew, affords an excellent medium for Trade, Financial, and Commercial Advertisements of all descriptions. The approximate number of Jews in the United Kingdom is upwards of 60,000, and the JEWISH CHRONICLE is the Official Organ for Jewish intelligence and the favoured Journal for Family Announcements. Being a Family Paper, which appears on Friday, and is read on Saturday and Sunday, two days of leisure, it is very suitable for announcements relating to Domestic Appliances, Patent Foods and Beverages, Drapery, &c.

Besides enjoying a large sale in London, it is also widely read in the Provinces, in Scotland, Wales, and Ireland. It has a large circulation on the Continent, the United States, Canada, and the Colonies, and in this latter respect is invaluable as an Advertising Medium for EXPORT HOUSES and FOREIGN and COLONIAL BANKS.

On account of the large proportion which Jews form of Investors in Leasehold and Freehold properties, it is the Best Medium for Advertising SALES by AUCTION.

To LIFE INSURANCE OFFICES it affords a peculiarly suitable Advertising Medium, it having been proved that the death-rate among Jews is much lower than among the general population. Jews are also known as a provident class and favourable to insurance.

THE

KENT EXAMINER, ASHFORD CHRONICLE,

Maidstone, Canterbury, Faversham, Tenterden, Cranbrook, & Hawkhurst News

Circulating in over 70 Towns and Villages in East and Mid Kent.

The Kent Examiner and Ashford Chronicle is an ADVERTISER'S Journal. Published at the seat of the South-Eastern Railway Works, and possessing features of unusual variety and interest for a county newspaper, it is largely used by London firms of standing, and by local advertisers. To these special features is its popularity in the wide agricultural districts of the Southern, Medway and other divisions of Kent mainly due, and to its departure from the dull, prosaic line of journalism so common in the provinces.

No fabulous statements of circulation are put forward. A specimen copy of the EXAMINER, with its columns full of local advertisements, is the best proof of its popularity as an advertising medium, and of the estimation in which it is held by those who have the fullest opportunity for forming an impartial judgment.

The EXAMINER has a bonâ fide circulation in over 70 towns and villages in Kent and Sussex.

THE KILMARNOCK HERALD
AND NORTH AYRSHIRE GAZETTE.

PUBLISHING AND GENERAL PRINTING OFFICE:

32, DUKE STREET, KILMARNOCK.

THE KILMARNOCK HERALD

IS PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY (KILMARNOCK MARKET DAY).

PRICE ONE PENNY.

Chief Industries of Kilmarnock are Engineering, Carpet Weaving, Shoemaking, and Bonnetmaking; and a very Populous, Mining, Lace Making, and Agricultural district.

The HERALD is recognized as the Best Paper in North Ayrshire, and those who fail to advertise in it fail to make their wants sufficiently known in the district.

The HERALD circulates extensively amongst the Farmers and People attending the Market. It also enjoys a large and increasing circulation in Kilmaurs, Stewarton, Fenwick, Galston, Newmilns, Darvel, Beith, Dunlop, Dalry, Fairlie, Largs, West Kilbride, Kilbirnie, Kilwinning, Irvine, Dreghorn, Warwickhill, Crosshouse, Gatehead, Dundonald, Prestwick, Troon, Old Cumnock, Mauchline, Muirkirk, Glasgow, &c

The KILMARNOCK HERALD OFFERS PECULIAR AND EXCELLENT ADVANTAGES TO ADVERTISERS. It is eagerly sought after on the Market day, GIVING AS IT DOES, THE NEWS OF THE DISTRICT occurring during the week in a concise and interesting form.

KINGSTON & RICHMOND EXPRESS AND WIMBLEDON COURIER.

Head Offices: St. James' Road, Kingston-on-Thames.

Branch Offices: Hill Street, Richmond; Hartfield Road, Wimbledon.

THE ONLY LIBERAL PAPER IN THE DISTRICT.

Has a rapidly increasing circulation in Kingston, Surbiton, Richmond, Wimbledon, Norbiton, Coombe, Malden, Teddington, Hampton Wick, East Molesey, Ditton, Barnes, Mortlake, and Kew.

Its 80 columns of original composition probably entitle it to claim to stand first in the District for quantity, whilst the quality is not unjustly pronounced by leading political men to be "the best that the neighbourhood has ever seen or is ever likely to see." It is thus calculated to carry advertisements in a style superior to any rival for effectiveness.

ADVERTISE

IN THE

Kingsbridge Journal

AND THE

Salcombe Times,

The best Advertising Mediums in the important Agricultural District of the South Hams.

THE LATEST LOCAL, GENERAL, COMMERCIAL AND SHIPPING NEWS.

A portion of a SERIAL TALE of great interest appears weekly.

The KINGSBRIDGE JOURNAL is the only Liberal Newspaper published in the Southern or Totnes Division of Devonshire, which contains a population of about 54,000. In its columns will be found full reports of all local meetings, a careful selection of the local and district news of the week, and a record of all the important events of the South Hams District of the County of Devon. The proceedings of the police and county courts are fully reported, and there is a careful compilation of general news. In local matters it deals fearlessly and impartially with all questions affecting the rights of the public.

The SALCOMBE TIMES is published at Salcombe, a sea-port on the South Coast of Devon, with a large shipping connection. It is also much used during several months in the year as a watering place, offering many advantages to visitors by its beautiful scenery and unrivalled climate. The town is also on the borders of a rich agricultural district. The SALCOMBE TIMES is neutral in politics and unsectarian in religion, and circulates largely amongst all classes in the town and throughout the Kingsbridge Union, and it will be found, therefore, a good Advertising Medium.

☞ Advertisements appear in both Papers at one charge

THE KIRKINTILLOCH HERALD,

AND LENZIE, KILSYTH, CAMPSIE, AND CUMBERNAULD PRESS.

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON. PRICE ONE PENNY.

KIRKINTILLOCH is a rising Burgh, with a population in the parish of over 10,000, and is the centre of a large Commercial and Agricultural community. Around it, in the Celvin and Blane Valleys, and within a radius of about seven miles, are KILSYTH, with a population of over 5,000 in the parish; CAMPSIE, over 6,000; CUMBERNAULD, over 4,000; and MILTON, STRATHBLANE, BLANEFIELD, KILLEARN, CHRYSTON, TORRANCE, WATERSIDE, TWECHAR, AUCHINLOCH, BISHOPBRIGGS, &c., containing a large aggregate population. LENZIE, part of the Burgh of Kirkintilloch, is inhabited by Glasgow Merchants, retired gentlemen, and such well-to-do families. The people of the other towns and townships engage extensively in Mining (Coal, Iron, and Lime-Stone), Iron-Founding, Chemical and Textile Manufactures, and the usual domestic trades. The Agricultural part of the population is large and enterprising.

The KIRKINTILLOCH HERALD is the only Local Newspaper Printed in the District, and the other papers that circulate in it are from a distance, and do not devote much space to Local News, which the KIRKINTILLOCH HERALD makes a speciality.

GUARDIAN Office, Fishergate, Preston.

Branch Offices at Blackburn, Accrington, Burnley, Clitheroe, Darwen, and Nelson.

The GUARDIAN is one of the Largest Newspapers in England. The COUNTY JOURNAL for the MANUFACTURING, AGRICULTURAL, and MINING INTERESTS.

Its superiority over all other organs of publicity in the district, as an effective Medium for Advertising, is now more striking than ever, the GUARDIAN being the official medium for the great majority of the Corporations, Local Boards, Unions, and other public offices in the county.

The sale of the GUARDIAN is double that of any other Preston paper, and many Thousands more than the combined sale of the three. It has the largest corps of reporters and correspondents for the supply of local and districts news, and throughout the whole of North, North-East, and a great portion of South-West Lancashire, its exertions have placed and keep it at the head of the whole press of the district.

MOST ADVERTISEMENTS.

This fact can easily be ascertained by comparing the advertising columns of the GUARDIAN with those of any other local paper, and this fact affords the best proof of the high estimation in which it is held as a commercial organ by the Solicitors, Auctioneers, Land Agents, and mercantile community of the county.

The GUARDIAN Circulates extensively in each of the following places:—

PRESTON	CHORLEY	LANCASTER	Stacksteads

TESTIMONIALS FROM ADVERTISERS.

Messrs. Cordingley & Co. 63, Fore Street, London, E.C., February 25th, 1887.

Dear Sirs,—Replying to your inquiry about our current advertisement in the LAUNDRY NEWS, continued since its first issue, we have pleasure in saying that we are well satisfied with the results obtained by it—they are known to the trade as well as to ourselves.—With best wishes, Yours truly, THE BLACKMAN AIR PROPELLER VENTILATING CO., Limited.

M. SHILLETO, Manager.

Messrs. Cordingley & Co. 8, Delahay Street, Westminster, February 19th, 1887.

Gentlemen,—We are in receipt of your letter referring to our advertisement in the LAUNDRY NEWS. In reply, we beg to state that the results of the advertisement have quite reached our expectations. We are perfectly satisfied with the publicity obtained and with the enquiries resulting therefrom, communications having reached us from correspondents in the most distant parts of the kingdom, and of whose existence we knew nothing. We wish you every success, and beg to remain, Yours obediently, W. H. DAVEY & SONS.

15, George Street, Mansion House Place, London, E.C., Fe 22*nd*, 1887.

C. Cordingley, Esq.

Dear Sir,—In reply to yours of the 18th inst., I am very glad to say to you that the advertisement in the LAUNDRY NEWS has paid for itself over and over again many times. I consider the LAUNDRY NEWS the best medium I have ever advertised in.—Yours, C. H. FELTON.

Messrs. Cordingley & Co. Rood Lane Chambers, London, E.C., 24th December, 1886.

Dear Sirs,—With reference to the advertisement of Lamb's Patent Carpet Beating Machine, appearing in the columns of the LAUNDRY NEWS, I beg to express my entire satisfaction with the publicity which has been afforded to the invention through the above medium. Since the insertion of the advertisement I have received enquiries not only from all parts of Britain, but from France, Germany, Austria, and America. I consider your paper an excellent medium for bringing before the trade anything relating to the laundry business.—Yours truly D. M. KING.

Messrs. Cordingley & Co. 74, Southampton Row, Holborn, W.C., February 12th, 1887.

Gentlemen,—In reply to yours of the 5th inst., we are perfectly satisfied with results from our advertisements in your paper, i.e. the LAUNDRY NEWS, and when our advertisement is out shall renew the same.—Yours most truly, C. BURRELL & CO.

Messrs. Cordingley & Co. Park Street Works, Islington, N., February 8th, 1887.

Gentlemen,—Before the publication of the LAUNDRY NEWS it was a constant worry to us, as the manufacturers of the Invicta Ironing Machine, to know how to bring our invention before the laundry trade. We were among the first to avail ourselves of the advertising medium of your paper, and we have continued to do so ever since, feeling that in so doing we are as favourably before the public as possible. Wishing you further success with your paper than you have already obtained.—We remain, yours truly, FABIAN BROTHERS.

Messrs. Cordingley & Co. 48, North Frederick Street, Glasgow, April 7th, 1886.

Gentlemen,—Herewith I forward you alteration of my advertisement, and I have great pleasure in testifying to the value of an advertisement in the LAUNDRY NEWS, I have received a large number of applications in refererence to my gas irons, and I am perfectly satisfied with the results.—Yours truly, JAMES RITCHIE.

Messrs. Cordingley & Co. Creek Road, Deptford.

Gentlemen,—I have pleasure in enclosing cheque to balance your account. I am glad to say that the advertisement was successful beyond my expectations, and I could have sold much of the machinery three times over. Even apart from the fact that the machinery is the machinery of the future, this speaks well for the influence of your journal.—A. E. HIDDEN.

C. Cordingley, Esq. Starch Works, Wormwood Scrubbs, N.W., August 24th, 1885.

Dear Sir,—Yours to hand; I have much pleasure in stating that I am quite satisfied with the way in which my advertisement appears, and the results obtained. My starch business has greatly increased during the past fifteen months.—Yours faithfully, W. R. HATTON.

LEAMINGTON SPA COURIER

And Warwickshire Standard.

ESTABLISHED 1828

TEN PAGES, "TIMES" SIZE.

PRICE TWOPENCE.

AS A COUNTY PAPER

It commands the support of the resident county families and also of the agriculturists. Its reports are full and complete and its sketches of Local and County History give the COURIER a permanent character which few other county newspapers possess.

AS A FASHIONABLE JOURNAL

The COURIER has the best circulation in the large and fashionable community of Leamington, and is widely circulated in other fashionable localities amongst the nobility, gentry, clergy, and wealthy classes. A special weekly supplement gives a list of Residents and Visitors, together with a Guide for Tourists.

AS AN AGRICULTURAL NEWSPAPER

It gives greater prominence to Agricultural, Sporting, Hunting, and other topics than any other Warwickshire Newspaper. It is well known to the farming and landed interests of the Midlands, and its Agricultural Advertisements give to it a special value.

AS AN ADVERTISING MEDIUM

It is without a rival, and enjoys the confidence of all classes.

The only Official Organ and Independent Paper published representing the large body of Traders associated with the Licensed Victualling interests is

THE

Licensed Victuallers' Gazette,

AND

HOTEL COURIER,

Which has a guaranteed circulation of over 46,000 copies weekly (see Messrs. Quilter, Ball, and Co.'s certificate below), being six times larger than all the other papers representing the same trades combined. Attention is called to the fact that in all the principal hotels and licensed houses throughout England, Scotland, Ireland, and Wales is the

LICENSED VICTUALLERS' GAZETTE

Taken in, because its well-known literary features form an attraction to the proprietors' customers themselves. Consequently, to the members of the trade, their own official organ is of such value to them that they cannot do without it in their houses. It being the means of drawing customers, hence the popularity of the

LICENSED VICTUALLERS' GAZETTE

Which is the only paper published giving in its news columns each week an authentic list of all the hotels, inns, and taverns, with their leases, rentals, &c., which are for sale, not merely in London but throughout the United Kingdom, and the result of the London sales appear also in the following week. This, together with the variety and interest of those articles which are intended solely for trade reading, amply accounts for the great and increasing success of the

LICENSED VICTUALLERS' GAZETTE

Among the immense class it circulates. By practically 46,000 copies a week does the

LICENSED VICTUALLERS' GAZETTE

Exceed any other so-called trade journal, and therefore its value as a medium for advertising the sale or letting of breweries, hotels, restaurants, inns, taverns, and all other kindred properties, will be evident. Persons who have such to dispose of will find that the

LICENSED VICTUALLERS' GAZETTE

Is the best, and indeed the only true medium for bringing the announcement before notice of the entire trade everywhere.

The ordinary business advertiser may be sure of his announcements being read by multitudes of the general public, as the LICENSED VICTUALLERS' GAZETTE lies about all the week in the licensed houses throughout the kingdom. Messrs. Quilter, Ball, and Co.'s certificate subjoined will show that it is necessarily one of the finest advertising mediums of the day.

"We hereby certify that we have again examined the books of the* LICENSED VICTUALLERS' GAZETTE AND HOTEL COURIER, *with a view of ascertaining its circulation, and we find that during the quarter ending June 26th, the number issued amounted to 606,434 copies, Giving an average of 46,650 weekly.

This exceeds our previous certificates, and is the largest number to which the paper has yet attained.

A TRIPLE SERIES OF STAFFORDSHIRE NEWSPAPERS.

THE LICHFIELD MERCURY, THE RUGELEY MERCURY, THE CANNOCK AND HEDNESFORD MERCURY.

THE LICHFIELD MERCURY,

ESTABLISHED 1814, PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY, PRICE ONE PENNY,

Is recognised by Conservatives and Liberals alike as the organ of Constitutionalism for the Lichfield Parliamentary Division of Staffordshire. Its circulation is, therefore, among the highest of Staffordshire weekly newspapers. In the principal hotels, the free libraries, the news-rooms, and the clubs—in the populous mining communities of Staffordshire, and in the important trading centres of Lichfield, Rugeley, Walsall, Stafford, Derby and Tamworth—the LICHFIELD MERCURY is familiar to all newspaper readers. It contains, in addition to a carefully compiled summary of the week's news, a large variety of original matter, political, literary, and social sketches, and other interesting specialties. At a meeting of the Lichfield Diocesan Conference, held in 1886, the LICHFIELD MERCURY was adopted as the lay organ of ecclesiastical communication in the Diocese, and some of the leading Clergy in the See are among the contributors to its columns. It is the best Advertising Medium in South Staffordshire.

PUBLISHED AT THE OFFICES, BIRD STREET, LICHFIELD.

THE RUGELEY MERCURY,

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, PRICE ONE PENNY,

Contains every week a capital serial story, ladies' column, and a full résumé of the latest news, local and general. It circulates extensively among the miners of the collieries adjacent to Rugeley, and is specially adapted to the taste of the working classes. It is, therefore, a capital organ for Advertisers who desire to reach a numerous body of readers, and the tariff of charges is low.

PUBLISHED AT RUGELEY.

THE CANNOCK AND HEDNESFORD MERCURY,

SATURDAY, ONE PENNY,

Has a large circulation in the densely populated districts of Cannock, Hednesford, Brownhills, and the collieries of Cannock Chase. PUBLISHED AT HEDNESFORD.

ADVERTISERS are offered special facilities for cheap and efficient advertising in this triple series of Staffordshire Newspapers, as Advertisements sent to either Paper will, if desired, be inserted in the other two for a nominal additional charge. As will be seen by the appended scale, the rate of charges is exceedingly low.

SCALE OF CHARGES FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.

Advertisements are inserted in these Papers on the following terms. (A line contains on an average eight words):—FOURPENCE PER LINE: Parochial and other Notices, Theatrical and other Amusements, Furniture and Farming Stock Sales. SIXPENCE PER LINE: House and Land Sales, Partnerships, Professional and Medical, Legal Notices, Contracts, Public Companies. NINEPENCE PER LINE: Municipal Addresses and Notices. ONE SHILLING PER LINE: Election Addresses, Parliamentary Notices, and other Advertisements of an exceptional kind.

Trade, Paragraph, and Miscellaneous Advertisements per contract.

Situations and Servants Wanted, and any other short Announcements.—FOR CASH IN ADVANCE, Advertisements of this class are inserted on the following terms:—

The whole number of insertions must be ordered and paid for at one time.

WHAT IS THE CIRCULATION OF THE LIVERPOOL PAPERS?

The following certificate, granted by Messrs. Harmood Banner and Son, after a most rigid and lengthened examination of our books, will be interesting to the public. The increase in the circulation in one year, it will be observed, is nearly 150,000 copies a week.

"24, North John Street, Liverpool,
March 18, 1885.

"THE PROPRIETORS, 'LIVERPOOL DAILY POST.

"Gentlemen,—We hereby certify that we have examined the books of the Printing and Publishing Departments of the LIVERPOOL DAILY POST, and we find that for the period commencing the 29th January and ending 4th March, 1885, the number of copies published and circulated of the LIVERPOOL DAILY POST, the LIVERPOOL ECHO, and the LIVERPOOL WEEKLY POST was showing an average per week of 650,092

3,250,461

The highest number in one week (from the 11th to the 17th February) was 753,080.

"The last certificate granted by us in March, 1884, for a period of four weeks, showed an average weekly circulation of 516,498, the highest number in one week being 566,018 copies.—Yours truly,

"HARMOOD BANNER AND SON, Chartered Accountants."

It is only necessary to add that, if the above figures were tested by comparison, it would be shown that "The Liverpool Daily Post" now exceeds by several thousands the circulation of any other Morning Paper in Liverpool; and that "The Liverpool Echo" has more than double the Circulation of the other Liverpool evening paper.

THE LARGEST PENNY WEEKLY PAPER IN THE KINGDOM.

THE

MANCHESTER WEEKLY TIMES.

PUBLISHED ON SATURDAY by A. IRELAND & CO., MANCHESTER.

IS BY FAR THE OLDEST and most widely circulated Weekly Newspaper published in Manchester.

HAS A GUARANTEED CIRCULATION of over 60,000—steadily increasing.

IT IS THE LARGEST PENNY WEEKLY PAPER in the Kingdom, being equal to eighty full-length columns.

IT IS PRE-EMINENTLY A FAMILY NEWSPAPER.

Besides a full digest of the Week's News, Local, Domestic, and Foreign,

A LITERARY SUPPLEMENT of Eight Pages is devoted to high-class serial stories and contributions of an original and interesting character, adapted to family reading.

NEW FEATURES AND ORIGINAL SERIALS, including "Hearth and Home," "Country Life," "Gossip with the Children," and a Lawyer's Column—together with the increase of Advertisements—have recently necessitated the permanent addition of eight columns.

IT CIRCULATES—not only in Manchester and the surrounding districts, but throughout Lancashire, Yorkshire, Cheshire, Derbyshire, Staffordshire, and the North of England generally.

FOR THE COLONIES it is the favourite paper for posting, and large numbers are sent.

LONDON OFFICE, 61, FLEET STREET.

TO PRACTICAL ADVERTISERS GENERALLY.

The MANCHESTER EXAMINER

WAS THE FIRST ESTABLISHED Penny Daily Paper in the Kingdom.

NO OTHER NEWSPAPER is at present so extensively read throughout the Manufacturing Districts—proverbially a monied constituency.

ITS VERY INFLUENTIAL POSITION as a leading Political and Commercial Journal has been long recognised.

ITS LARGE CIRCULATION—not only in Manchester, but in every important town of Lancashire, Yorkshire, Cheshire, Derbyshire, Staffordshire, &c.—secures to Advertisers throughout the Manufacturing and Agricultural Districts of the North of England a publicity beyond that which any other Newspaper can give.

MANX SUN.

ESTABLISHED IN 1821.

The longest-established and most respectable as well as extensively-circulated Newspaper in the Isle of Man. Its circulation comprises all the Insular Authorities, Clergy, and almost every respectable family in the island, besides an extensive circulation in the counties on the opposite sides of the Channel, and amongst Manxmen in all parts of the World. Is the Local Government Gazette.

The MANX SUN was enlarged on the 21st of July, 1857, by one-third its former size, and again in July, 1859, and July, 1878, by eight additional columns on each occasion, to meet the wants of advertisers. On the 1st of July, 1870, the price was reduced from 3d. to 2d., thus increasing its value as an advertising medium.

THE MEATH HERALD AND CAVAN ADVERTISER

Is, strangely enough, the only Newspaper printed in the County Meath. It was established in the year 1845, and, probably on account of its never having taken any violent partisan side, it has always been read by all parties. During its lifetime several so-called Popular or National Papers have been started in Meath; but each one, after a short period of existence, succumbed to fate.

Advertisers will find no difficulty in making Terms with the Proprietors on applying to the Publisher, ESTABLISHED SEPT. 4, 1886.

This Journal has been established in the interests of the Liberal Party in the South West portion of Middlesex and Surrey lying in the Valley of the Thames, between Windsor and Kew, a district in which hitherto the Liberals have been almost unrepresented. Independent of Politics, the EXPRESS gives full, impartial reports of all public meetings of every description to which reporters are admitted, and several new features are introduced which render it one of the most readable newspapers extant. The result is that it has already attained a large circulation, and Advertisers will find it an advantageous vehicle of communication with the large well-to-do population of the Thames Valley.

FIFTEENTH YEAR.

"MONEY."

A WEDNESDAY JOURNAL FOR INVESTORS, SPECULATORS, AND BUSINESS MEN,

AND GENERAL RECORD OF THE MONEY MARKET.

ESTABLISHED IN 1872.

Annual Subscription, Nineteen Shillings and Sixpence, Post Free.

"MONEY," the only Mid-Weekly Financial Paper, circulates widely amongst the investing classes in all parts of the United Kingdom and Abroad.

"MONEY" contains leading articles upon all financial topics of importance by writers of trained ability and wide experience. Its aim is to review, without fear or favour, the pretensions and prospects of financial undertakings of every description, whether proposed or established; to expose in the one case the fallacies of the mushroom growth of yesterday, and in the other the weaknesses often hidden by the accumulated dust of age. Its endeavour is to be not only frank and fearless, but popular, thoroughly readable, and, above all, trustworthy.

"MONEY" has been instrumental in exposing numerous attempts to launch enterprises of unsound character, and its trenchant and fearless criticisms have prevented thousands of readers throwing away their savings.

"MONEY" is the Best Financial Journal, and is 33 per cent. cheaper than that of any of its recognised weekly contemporaries, and therefore the best medium for circulating the proceedings of Shareholders' Meetings.

"MONEY" can be obtained of all Newsvendors; also at the Railway Bookstalls. Single Copy, post free, 4½d.

THE OLDEST NEWSPAPER IN THE PROVINCES, and has a very large circulation. Its agricultural information and special reports of markets and fairs are highly valued by the landowners and farmers of the North; its literary matter, consisting of local and other tales—written expressly for the COURANT, and appearing in no other paper,—extracts from new books and magazines, antiquarian and other sketches, articles on household matters, and reviews, together with an able condensation of the news of the week, make it the leading Family Newspaper in the district.

It issues four editions weekly (on Friday and Saturday). It circulates chiefly throughout Northumberland, Cumberland, Durham, and Yorkshire, and gives to first-class Advertisements the most extended publicity, no other provincial weekly newspaper circulating over so wide an area.

NORTHAMPTON DAILY CHRONICLE & EVENING HERALD.

ESTABLISHED FEBRUARY, 1880.

The NORTHAMPTON DAILY CHRONICLE, commenced seven years ago, at once became a popular favourite. Year by year it has increased in popularity, and is still rapidly advancing in public esteem. The CHRONICLE possesses now a commanding circulation, unequalled by that of any local daily paper in Northampton, Northamptonshire, and adjacent districts, amongst all classes of the community. The NORTHAMPTON DAILY CHRONICLE, owing to pressing demands on its Advertising space, a year ago underwent enlargement for the fourth time, and now publishes four pages of 24 closely-printed long columns per diem. No enterprise is spared by the proprietors in making the contents of this popular paper acceptable to the general public. An efficient editorial and reporting staff is employed, and a full telegraphic service secured to provide the latest news by road, rail and wire, to the moment of going to press. Local news, general news, sporting news, foreign news, the latest market, stock exchange and parliamentary intelligence, with high-class fiction, &c., combine to render the NORTHAMPTON DAILY CHRONICLE an interesting and indispensable daily companion throughout Northampton town, county, and district, whilst furnishing business men and others with a quick and efficient Advertising Medium at a moderate cost.

Advertisements received direct, or through all the London advertising agents. Advertisements inserted in all editions at one charge. Several editions daily. Price One Halfpenny.

Published by BUTTERFIELD & SON, "Daily Chronicle" Office, Market Square, Northampton.

NORTHAMPTON HERALD.

ESTABLISHED 1831.

The NORTHAMPTON HERALD, established upwards of fifty years, is a Conservative journal, taking high rank amongst weekly county newspapers. A two-page Supplement is ordinarily published with the HERALD, which then consists of seventy long and closely-printed columns. Whenever necessary, the two-page is expanded into a four-page Supplement, increasing the number of columns to eighty-four, and constituting the HERALD one of the largest newspapers in the kingdom. The HERALD enjoys, too, the largest and most influential circulation of any weekly newspaper in the county, reaching not only throughout Northamptonshire, but covering a considerable area beyond its borders in the neighbouring Midland Counties of Huntingdonshire, Bedfordshire, Buckinghamshire, Oxfordshire, Warwickshire, Leicestershire, Rutland and Lincoln. The HERALD is to be found in the hands of all classes—the landed proprietors, the clergy, agriculturists, merchants, tradesmen, artisans, and labourers—to whom its copious and varied contents, supplied by a large and efficient staff of writers and reporters, render it peculiarly acceptable. Thus the advantages to Advertisers offered by the HERALD are unusually great, and widely appreciated.

Price Twopence. Stamped, by post—credit, 3s. per quarter; prepaid, 2s. 6d.

Published on Friday evening, for Saturday.

NORTH DEVON HERALD.

Published Bi-weekly, every Thursday Morning, price One Penny, Eight Pages, Forty-eight columns, "Times" size; and every Monday Evening, price One Halfpenny, Four Pages. The HERALD is the recognised Organ of the Conservative Party in the Important, Influential, Extensive, and Wealthy District north of Exeter, and extending over half the County. It has secured a wide reputation by reason of its trenchant and outspoken comments on topics of Local and Imperial Interest, as well as for the copiousness of its Reports, and the attractive and readable form in which the intelligence it contains is presented to the reader. It is the only Bi-weekly Newspaper in Devon, and was the pioneer of the cheap press in the northern portion of the county, for which it is the popular and universally read journal. The HERALD has by far the largest circulation of any paper published in the district, which embraces a population of over a quarter of a million. Being read by all classes of the community, it is the most advantageous medium for giving publicity to Advertisements addressed to the Nobility, Clergy, and Gentry, as well as to the Agriculturist and Trader. No announcement can be fairly brought under the notice of the public of North Devon, East Cornwall, or West Somerset, unless inserted in the HERALD. Advertisements are inserted at the following moderate scale, viz.: Two Lines, One Shilling, and Threepence per Line after the first Two Lines. Specimen Paper, and Estimates for Advertisements, sent on application.

CIRCULATION OF NEWSPAPERS IN WALES.

AN IMPORTANT FACT.

As it is of the greatest importance to those who have announcements to issue to know through what medium or mediums the greatest amount of publicity can be obtained, the publishers of the

NORTH WALES OBSERVER AND EXPRESS, Y GENEDL GYMREIG, and Y WERIN, wish to call the attention of the advertising community to the fact that the number circulated of their papers would show, if tested by comparison,

AN EXCESS OF OVER 10,000 COPIES PER WEEK OVER AND ABOVE THE CIRCULATION OF ALL THE PUBLICATIONS OF ANY OTHER WELSH PUBLISHING FIRM COMBINED.

The strict accuracy of the above statement is vouched for by the publishers, who invite any Welsh publishing firm that may choose to do so to bring the figures to the test of comparison, conditionally only upon the result being publicly announced.

Each of the above papers is perfectly distinct from the other two, the publishers not believing in the mode adopted by other firms of multiplying their papers by a mere change of headings, and printing of some but a few dozen copies.

THE NORWICH MERCURY

EVERY TUESDAY (1D.) AND FRIDAY (2D.).

Is one of the oldest newspapers in the Kingdom. The date of its first issue is unknown, but the files in the possession of its proprietary trace its existence as far back as 1714. Besides its city sale, the NORWICH MERCURY enjoys a postal circulation amongst the nobility, gentry, agriculturalists, and other county residents, which for the influence and respectability of its subscribers cannot be surpassed.

THE NORWICH MERCURY is noted for its agricultural reports by practical contributors, and the completeness of the local news, furnished by a large and efficient staff of correspondents.

The "Norwich Mercury" is the special organ of the Red-Polled Cattle Breeders, and its Editor is also Secretary of the Hackney Stud Book Society.

The city and county official advertisements, with those of the auctioneers and traders, appear in its columns, and the NORWICH MERCURY rightly claims to be one of the best papers in the Eastern Counties for the home circle, the busy trader, and the country gentleman.

The NORWICH MERCURY is the only paper that publishes visitors' lists for the two most fashionable Eastern Counties resorts—CROMER and LOWESTOFT.

THE NUNEATON OBSERVER
AND DISTRICT ADVERTISER.

The Nuneaton Observer has a far larger circulation and consequently a far greater influence than any paper in the district. Great care is observed in collecting and compiling the intelligence which appears in its columns. It circulates extensively in Nuneaton, Attleborough, Chilvers Coton, Arbury, Stockingford, Griff, Collycroft, Ryton, Bramcote, Wolvershill, Astley, Fillongley, Arley, Ansley, Whitacre, Coleshill, Bedworth, Bulkington, Wolvey, Longford, Higham-on-the-Hill, Stoke-Golding, Upton, Shenton, Fenny-Drayton, Sibstone, Market-Bosworth, Hartshill, Chapel End, Hinckley, Barwell, Burbage, etc.

Nuneaton is the centre of the Poor Law Union of that name, containing a population, according to the last census returns, of nearly 13,700.

The head office of the Nuneaton Observer is 126, Abbey Street.

THE ATHERSTONE OBSERVER,
AND WARWICKSHIRE AND LEICESTERSHIRE GAZETTE.

The Atherstone Observer has a far larger circulation in Atherstone and the surrounding villages than any local organ. The paper is sold by agents in Atherstone, Mancetter, Witherley, Ratcliffe Culey, Merevale, Wilnecote, Polesworth, Dordon, &c. Atherstone is the seat of the Hat Manufacture, and the Market Centre of the richest part of the Warwickshire and Leicestershire Daily Districts. The Atherstone Poor Law Union contains a population of 14,419.

THE BEDWORTH OBSERVER,
Nuneaton, Foleshill, Exhall, and Bulkington News.

Circulates in and around Bedworth, a Mining and Agricultural District.

It will be thus seen that the Nuneaton, Atherstone and Bedworth Observers have the largest circulations in the districts in which they are published, and are consequently the best mediums for Advertisements of all kinds, as the district is a wealthy Agricultural, Mining and Manufacturing one, containing no less than 40,000 inhabitants.

THE PUBLISHING OFFICE, HARLOW, ESSEX.

All kinds of Printing executed at least 5 per cent. under lowest London prices. Orders promptly attended to.

EVERY FRIDAY MORNING. ONE PENNY.

The People's Weekly Journal

Was started in 1864 as a cheap paper for the people, and at once won for itself such favour that its circulation speedily became larger than that of any other Eastern Counties' journal. Year by year its growth in public estimation continues to be most gratifying, and the ANNUAL INCREASE in its weekly circulation averages fully 1,000 copies.

Though pre-eminently a Norwich, Norfolk, and Suffolk newspaper, its Fifty-six columns contain such a varied amount of general, as well as local news and interesting literature, that it finds readers in all parts of the world.

To advertisers who desire the greatest possible publicity the PEOPLE'S WEEKLY JOURNAL (or "Norwich People's Journal," as it is popularly known amongst the advertising agents) affords advantages that cannot be over-rated, and which are certainly unobtainable by any other means.

All communications should be received on Thursdays to ensure insertion same week.

THE PHILANTHROPIST.

The REPRESENTATIVE JOURNAL of PHILANTHROPIC MOVEMENTS and INSTITUTIONS.

ESTABLISHED 1881.

Published Monthly, Price 3d. Yearly Subscription, 2s. 6d., Post Free.

OBJECTS.—The PHILANTHROPIST is the exponent of the true principles that should govern the support and administration of charities and philanthropic works generally. Its columns are available for the discussion of any subject of philanthropic interest. Shams thriving under the name of charity are denounced—movements worthy of support are upheld and pleaded for—and it is a medium of intercommunication for managers of public institutions, and a guide to those who maintain them by their benevolence.

PRINCIPLES.—The science of true philanthropy is preventive rather than curative. Therefore all good should be done on the principle—first thrift, then charity; THRIFT to make the industrial classes independent of charity, and CHARITY to prevent the honest poor from becoming paupers.

LITERARY.—Articles, Notes, Items of interest concerning Benevolent Works, Correspondence, Notices of Meetings, &c., may be addressed to to THE EDITOR.

CIRCULATION.—In addition to its ordinary subscribers, THE PHILANTHROPIST is regularly circulated amongst a SPECIALLY PREPARED LIST OF THE GIVING PUBLIC, who by their repeated donations, have proved themselves regular supporters of philanthropic works. As a medium for a regular appeal, therefore, it offers obvious advantages. Special terms for a series.

ESTABLISHED OVER A QUARTER OF A CENTURY.

THE PORCUPINE,

A Weekly Journal of Current News, Exclusive Information, General Notes, Artistic and Literary Reviews, Social Gossip, &c.

Every Saturday. Fifty-four Columns. Price One Penny.

HEAD OFFICE: 50, LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL.

The PORCUPINE has for a Quarter of a Century occupied a position in South Lancashire, Cheshire, and North Wales similar to that held in London by "Truth" and "The World." It has by far the largest circulation of any publication of its kind out of London.

The PORCUPINE is generally known in the district to have a circulation of exceptional character, extent, and influence, and has maintained a steady and regular growth since its establishment—twenty-six years ago.

The PORCUPINE is the only independent and non-party organ in Liverpool. It is recognised as dealing with all public matters in the most trenchant manner and with strict impartiality, and is pre-eminently the Home and Family Journal of the district.

The PORCUPINE deals with most matters of public interest in the interest of the public. It is not subject to or under the control of any political party or clique of persons. Its contributors include men of the highest standing in all sections of political, theological, social, and financial schools of thought.

The PORCUPINE gives some of the best and most reliable information to Investors and Speculators in its articles under the heading of "FILTHY LUCRE." This column is consulted freely on 'Change, and in some of the leading financial circles in the North-West Counties.

The PORCUPINE, having a large circulation—perhaps one of the largest—in Lancashire, Cheshire, and North Wales, offers special facilities for placing your announcements before the residents of these important and populous portions of the country.

CIRCULATION LARGER THAN ANY MORNING PAPER IN LIVERPOOL.

The Leading RAILWAY GUIDE in South-West Lancashire.

THE CLOCK.

THIS useful and reliable RAILWAY GUIDE, which will compare most favourably with any similar production out of London, is by far the largest and most complete published in Liverpool.

The CLOCK is most carefully and accurately compiled for the convenience of residents in and the commercial public of South-West Lancashire, giving every information requisite for travelling to and from the suburban stations, as well as the principal towns in the United Kingdom, together with information as to Postal Arrangements, Omnibus, Tram, and Steamer Guide, Parcel Rates, Tidal Information, and a Special Map of Liverpool, and other unusual features contained in no other publication.

The CLOCK is taken by all the leading Restaurants, Hotels, and Licensed Houses in Liverpool and district, as well as the leading Hotels throughout the Kingdom.

A limited number of Advertisements only are accepted for the CLOCK, and all Orders are contingent on space.

Terms: £1 per page per insertion for a series of twelve monthly insertions.

THE PORTOBELLO ADVERTISER.

ESTABLISHED 1868.

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY AFTERNOON. PRICE ONE PENNY.

Has an extensive circulation in and around this fashionable Seaside Resort, and is the only Journal giving adequate attention to the Local News of the town and district.

The ADVERTISER is the officially-recognised Advertising Medium of the Town Council and other public bodies, and possesses great facilities for giving extensive publicity to general Business Announcements.

The Midlothian Journal, & Dalkeith, Leith, Musselburgh, & Penicuik Weekly News.

ESTABLISHED 1883.

Circulates very largely in Musselburgh and Penicuik, and among the large Mining, Spinning, and Paper-making population of Eskside. It is much prized for its Local Tales, Sketches, and Road-side Papers. Published every Friday in time for circulation throughout Midlothian the same evening. Advertisements are inserted in both ADVERTISER and JOURNAL for One Price.

Office: 149, HIGH STREET, PORTOBELLO, MIDLOTHIAN.

THE PRESCOT REPORTER

AND ST. HELENS CENTRAL ADVERTISER.

With which is Incorporated (by purchase), the ST. HELENS STANDARD (Established 1865). Published every Friday afternoon for Saturday, at One Penny. The only Paper entirely Printed in St. Helens.

The REPORTER is the oldest and most widely-circulated paper published in the important manufacturing and agricultural district of South-West Lancashire lying between Liverpool, Ormskirk, Wigan, Warrington, and Runcorn. It is the only local paper circulating in all the following places, which contain a population of over 140,000 inhabitants:—St. Helens, Prescot, Rainhill, Huyton, Roby, Rainford, Garston, Much Woolton, Little Woolton, Widnes, Bold, Cronton, Ditton, Hale, Halewood, Tarbok, Speke, Whiston, Knowsley, Windle, Parr, Sutton, and Eccleston. In a large majority of these places the REPORTER may be said to be the only local paper known to the people.

Publishing Offices:—ST. HELENS and PRESCOT.

CULSHAW, BROWN AND CULSHAW, Publishers and Printers.

THE PRESENT TRUTH.

PUBLISHED THE FIRST AND THIRD THURSDAYS IN EACH MONTH.

A Sixteen-page, Religious Bi-monthly for people of all classes and conditions. Thoroughly Protestant and Biblical in tone. It advocates a better observance of the Sabbath, and the near coming of Christ, with its important correlative doctrines. It teaches Christian Temperance, and inculcates practical godliness through Christ as the only means of Salvation.

Price, Stitched and Trimmed, 1d.; by Post, 1½d.; One Year, 3s.; Six Months, 1s. 6d.

Address: "THE PRESENT TRUTH," GRIMSBY.

THE PRIMITIVE METHODIST.

A WEEKLY NEWSPAPER OF DENOMINATIONAL INTELLIGENCE.

ESTABLISHED 1868. PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY. PRICE ONE PENNY.

The Primitive Methodist Connexion is next in importance to the Wesleyan, and now numbers upwards of Two Hundred Thousand Adult Members, amongst whom THE PRIMITIVE METHODIST has an extensive circulation, which has increased year by year since the issue of its first number on June 11, 1868. It has the hearty approval of most of the ministers and laymen, the most influential of whom are contributors to its columns. The advantages, therefore, of THE PRIMITIVE METHODIST as an Advertising Medium will be fully apparent, largely circulating, as it does, amongst so respectable and extensive a portion of the Christian community throughout all parts of England and Wales, Scotland, Ireland, and the American and Australasian Colonies, and amongst the members of other denominations.

CHARGES FOR ADVERTISEMENTS:—Single Insertion, 3s. per inch; 2s. 6d. per inch for Series.

PRACTICAL CONFECTIONER,

BAKER, AND PASTRY COOK,

IS PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

Price Five Shillings per annum, post paid.
Single Copies, 5d., post paid,

Is the Organ of the Confectioners, Bakers, and all those interested in the manipulation of Sugar and Flour for the purposes of Cookery.

It teaches the trade to produce novelties at a small cost, and to increase their business profits to the utmost.

It advocates the cause of Temperance in a rational way, and the proprietors consider that this is best attained by the promotion of a better preparation of our food, than has been the case hitherto, especially for the people in general.

Every Number contains original contributions from eminent Chemists and other scientific men on Flour, Yeast, & Sugar, SUGGESTIONS FOR BAKERS, &c.

The Circulation of the "Practical Confectioner" is larger than that of any Trade Paper of a similar nature.

The Practical Engineer,

AND METALLURGICAL, MINERALOGICAL, GEOLOGICAL, AND COMMERCIAL JOURNAL.

1d.—Published every Friday.—1d.

The first object of the Practical Engineer is to acquire a large circle of readers amongst Engineers, Machinists, Steam-users, Toolmakers, Metallurgists, Shipbuilders, Ironfounders, and others connected with the Mechanical and Engineering Trades, and to circulate original information and news of such a character as to commend the journal to its readers. By fixing the price of the Practical Engineer at the popular figure of one penny, we shall secure at least one of these objects, viz.:—a large circle of readers. The literary matter will be very largely original, and will be written by the staff of the journal or by outside contributors well versed in the subjects with which they will deal; the style will not be too stiff or high for the intelligent artizan, but will be easy, light, and understandable, and presented in such a form as to be easily digested. The engineering journals already in existence are too high in price to become very popular, and hence are not much read outside the circle of professional gentlemen; what we propose to do, then, is to open out another field entirely, and to supplement the higher-priced journals by circulating the best available information at the low price of one penny, which will bring it within the reach of all. The journal, on account of its price, will be limited to 24 pages, which will be of a handy size for use, and suitable for binding without forming too bulky a volume. A special feature of the journal will be its technical articles dealing with practical matters of design and properties of materials and appliances in mechanics and engineering, which will be suitably illustrated by line sketches; these articles, it is expected, will prove very valuable to foremen, draughtsmen, and others who have to do with the design of machines and the calculation of stresses. Seeing that of all subjects in engineering, the steam-engine and boiler interest the largest number, we shall allot a portion of our space to these and allied subjects. Under these headings will be included the ordinary land engines and boilers, locomotives, portable and traction engines, and marine engines and boilers. Bridge and railway engineering will receive attention to a more moderate extent, while physical and specially scientific matter, so far as it bears on the foregoing subjects, will be allowed to appear in plain and comprehensible garb.

It is well known that modern American engineering presents many points of difference from the practice of this country; some of these differences arise from the different circumstances of the two countries, and the relative prices of material and labour; others again from the natural desire of American engineers to be nothing if not original, while many differences result from improvements in American practice which have been neglected on this side the Atlantic; these latter we shall endeavour to present to our readers as opportunity offers, and shall thus be setting forth the best practice of both countries.

The Practical Engineer will endeavour to keep its readers informed of every event of engineering importance, and to this end the co-operation of its readers is invited. Any new invention likely to be of great value, or of great interest for other reasons, will be noticed in our pages in addition to the weekly list of current patents taken out.

The journal may be ordered through any newsagent or bookseller, or it will be sent post free to any address in the United Kingdom for 6s. per year prepaid; for America and the continent of Europe the prepaid charge will be 8s. 6d. per year; and to India, Australia, and New Zealand, 10s. 6d. per year.

In connection with the journal there will be established a patent agency under the management of a gentleman of many years' standing, who will also have the assistance of experts connected with the editorial staff. Special terms will be offered to artizans, and in order not to interfere with their regular work, when interviews are necessary, evening appointments can be made.

The proprietors are prepared to supply scientific or technical works at the published prices to intending purchasers, and particulars of any work in print will be supplied on application.

Advertisers will please notice that the space allotted for their use is strictly limited, and they are urged to make early applications for space.

A MONTHLY ILLUSTRATED FAMILY PAPER.

PRICE ONE PENNY.

LONDON: W. WILEMAN, 34, BOUVERIE STREET; J. KENSIT, 18, PATERNOSTER ROW, and of all Booksellers and Railway Bookstalls to order.

The PROTESTANT ECHO, first published in January, 1880, is intended to re-echo the principles of the Reformation, and to seek their extension by fairly setting forth the pure Truth of God in contrast to the errors of Popery. It also contains articles on Scriptural subjects and passing events, and its pages are open to general correspondence, questions and answers bearing upon Biblical and Protestant subjects.

CONTENTS FOR DECEMBER, 1886.

Ebenezer.—Led about (Poetry).—Romish Errors Refuted.—The Pope and his power.—Gospel Book Mission to the Army and Navy.—The Life, Land, and Labour of Christ.—Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world.—Dr. Pusey's Hopelessness.—Christmas Day.—The origin of Christmas Day.—How did the Romish Church fix on December 25th?—A Happy Christmas (Poetry).—He hateth putting away.—The Priest in the Family.—The Sovereignty of Christ.—Heart-Burn (Poetry).

As the PROTESTANT ECHO is regularly supplied to about 900 public institutions, it must therefore command an immense number of readers, and be a FIRST-CLASS ADVERTISING MEDIUM.

Pulman's Weekly News and Advertiser.

Is published every Monday afternoon, at Crewkerne and Yeovil, Somerset, and Axminster, Devon, and enjoys a very large circulation among the respectable classes, in a large portion of Somerset, Devon, and Dorset, comprising about 300 parishes, and a population of about half-a-million. It is recognised as one of the leading papers in the West, and as a first-class Advertising Medium. It publishes reports of the London Monday's corn, cattle, and other important markets eighteen hours before the arrival of the London papers, and it is therefore in great request, and has for years been regarded as a reliable authority by West of England agriculturists and traders, while its free, unfettered, and outspoken expression of opinion has made it popular with politicians and the general public. The circulation has increased to between eight and nine thousand since the reduction of the price to a penny.

THE

RAILWAY SHAREHOLDER,

"THE SHAREHOLDER."

A Weekly Journal for Investors, and advocate of Reform in Railway Administration.

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY. PRICE ONE PENNY.

THE RAILWAY SHAREHOLDER, which was established in July, 1885, is the outcome of "The Railway Shareholders' Association," founded three years prior to that date.

It circulates largely among the Members of the Association, and also among Railway Shareholders generally, who number 400,000.

It is the only Independent Financial Journal which deals with questions from the Shareholders' point of view and no other.

THE RAILWAY SHAREHOLDER is not the property of any clique of Stock-brokers, nor of any one connected with the Stock Exchange.

It is not confined to Railways alone, but treats every undertaking in which Investors are concerned, including Tramways, Omnibus, Banks, Canals, Commercial, Docks, Coal, Iron, Financial, Land, Gas, Insurance, Mines, Shipping, Telegraphs, Waterworks, &c.

It deals with everything upon its merits.

THE RAILWAY SHAREHOLDER contains the closing prices of every Stock which is quoted on the Stock Exchange, in which respect it stands alone.

AND

21, FURNIVAL STREET, HOLBORN, LONDON, E.C.

Annual Prepaid Subscription, Six Shillings (Post free); including "Special Weekly Contract List," 5s. Extra.

THE RECOGNISED JOURNAL OF RAILWAY, TRAMWAY, AND DOCK CONTRACTORS SHIPBUILDERS, ETC.

LEADING COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Largest circulation among Railway, Dock, and Tramway Contractors, Shipbuilders, Steamship Managers, Railway and Civil Engineers, Locomotive Builders, Locomotive and Carriage Superintendents, Storekeepers, Railway Carriage and Wagon Builders; and also among the MANY THOUSANDS of MERCHANTS and MANUFACTURERS interested directly or indirectly in Railway, Shipping, Tramway, and allied enterprise.

LARGE CIRCULATION ABROAD.

The Special Foreign Edition of the RAILWAY AND SHIPPING CONTRACTOR is largely read in India, South Africa, Australia, Canada, the United States, and South America, where it is generally recognised as the most influential and useful paper of its kind published in Great Britain.

SPECIAL WEEKLY CONTRACT LIST.

DELIVERED TO ANNUAL SUBSCRIBERS BY THE FIRST POST EVERY MONDAY MORNING.

Possesses the following merits:—

1. It is published late on Saturday afternoon, and contains ALL CONTRACT ANNOUNCEMENTS—Home and Foreign—made up to the hour of going to press.

2. It reaches Contractors by the first post on Monday morning, and thus places before them, at the beginning of the week, the LATEST CONTRACT INTELLIGENCE KNOWN.

3. Whilst the Trade Papers published Friday evening for Saturday merely give the contract announcements made known up to Friday—and very frequently only those of which they have the advertisements—the SPECIAL WEEKLY CONTRACT LIST, on the other hand, contains not only a COMPLETE and ACCURATE list of ALL contracts in the market, but ALSO THOSE WHICH ARE ANNOUNCED ON SATURDAY.

4. It is, moreover, quite ONE HUNDRED PER CENT. CHEAPER than any other similar publication, the entire subscription for the year—postage included—amounting to ONLY ELEVEN SHILLINGS, which payment also entitles the subscriber to a copy of each issue (monthly) of the RAILWAY AND SHIPPING CONTRACTOR.

CONTRACTORS' PLANT AND MATERIALS.

BUYERS and SELLERS should insert their advertisements in the RAILWAY AND SHIPPING CONTRACTOR, and its Weekly Supplement, THE SPECIAL WEEKLY CONTRACT LIST, such advertisements being transferred from the one to the other without extra payment.

THE RHYL ADVERTISER AND RECORD.

Published every Friday Evening for Saturday.

PRICE ONE PENNY.

This (recently amalgamated) Newspaper is the oldest in Flintshire, has the largest circulation, and is the most influential organ in the district, being more specially sought after on account of the admitted reliability and the fulness of its Reports. As an Advertising Medium, THE ADVERTISER AND RECORD commends itself to Tradespeople, Manufacturers, and others desirous of giving extensive publicity to their business. The splendid View published during the Season, together with a complete List of Visitors, secures for this Paper a monopoly among those who throng to this fashionable Watering Place in summer.

Offices: 13, SUSSEX STREET.

AMOS BROTHERS, PROPRIETORS.

THE RHYL GUARDIAN.

Published every Thursday. Price One Penny.

THE RHYL GUARDIAN is the largest paper published in Rhyl, and circulates in this important fashionable watering place and the district around.

BEST ADVERTISING MEDIUM IN FLINTSHIRE.

POLITICS—CONSERVATIVE.

RHYL is a first-class station on the London and North-Western Railway (Chester and Holyhead branch), situate 30 miles from Chester.

It is a town which has doubled its population and its rateable value within 20 years.

Being a superior marine residence, Rhyl is visited during the summer months by many thousands of people from all parts of the United Kingdom.

Thus, ADVERTISEMENTS in the "JOURNAL" are brought under the notice of FAMILIES FROM MANY HUNDRED TOWNS—the Advertiser paying for this advantage the charges of ONE PAPER ONLY. In addition to this, as THE JOURNAL contains a photographed view of Rhyl (and during the season publishes a full list of visitors) the paper is regularly posted by all the families to their numerous friends in every part of the country.

Parliamentary Notices arranged for insertion to suit Solicitors and Parliamentary Agents.

THE RIPON GAZETTE.

PUBLISHED THURSDAY & SATURDAY.

PRICE ONE PENNY.

The circulation of the RIPON GAZETTE far exceeds that of every other Newspaper, both in the City of Ripon and its wealthy environs, and also in the populous Agricultural and Commercial district of which Ripon is the recognised centre. It is the recognised organ of the Liberal party in the Ripon division, whilst the fulness and accuracy of its Reports of all Local Meetings has made it a household necessity as well as a medium of reliable communication between all parties. This fact amply testifies to the great value of the GAZETTE as an Advertising medium.

Orders and Advertisements (inserted in both editions at one charge) should be sent either to Ripon & Richmond Chronicle.

FORTY-EIGHT COLUMNS. WEEKLY—SATURDAY—ONE PENNY.

ESTABLISHED 1855.

Offices:—4, Castlegate, YORK; Market Place, RIPON; Finkle Street Corner, Market Place, RICHMOND.

The extensive patronage received by the CHRONICLE from all classes of Advertisers proves that it is recognised as the most powerful Advertising Medium in North Yorkshire! It is certainly the best known Journal and the most widely circulated in the district. It is not supported or controlled by any Political Proprietary, and is the only Journal entirely independent in the North Riding. It contains, with much original local matter, Special Articles on Agricultural and other topics of interest to its district.

EFFECTIVE ADVERTISING.

No Announcement can be effectively brought under the notice of the inhabitants of the Ripon, Richmond, and Thirsk and Malton Parliamentary Divisions, unless it appears in the columns of the following excellent series of Weekly Newspapers—the recognised organs of the Conservative Party—published by the Ripon Division Conservative Newspaper Company, Limited.

THE RIPON OBSERVER,

Circulating throughout the Ripon Parliamentary Division, including Ripon, Harrogate, Knaresboro', Boroughbridge, Pateley Bridge, &c.

THE RICHMOND OBSERVER,

AND THE

NORTHALLERTON, THIRSK & BEDALE OBSERVER,

Jointly circulating throughout the Richmond, and Thirsk and Malton Parliamentary Divisions.

56 Columns Weekly. One Penny. Established 1885.

CENTRAL OFFICE: RIPON.

All Announcements, with the exception of local business advertisements, are inserted for one reasonable charge in all the above-named Newspapers, and thus publicity is given to them over an extensive agricultural and residental district, containing a population of over 150,000. The OBSERVER circulates extensively amongst the wealthy and influential classes throughout the district referred to, and will be found a first-class medium for Announcements of Sales of Estates, Farms, Farm Stock, and other Property, Residences to be Sold or Let, which it may be desirable to bring under the notice of Capitalists. The Weekly Paper is the only effective and cheap means of bringing announcements before those engaged in agricultural pursuits in this extensive district.

As an Advertising Medium, the OBSERVER is unequalled, being read alike in Mansion and in Cottage. It has a large circulation, which is steadily increasing. The OBSERVER has its own reporters and correspondents in every market centre and other towns of the divisions, and in addition to its complete local reports, it comprises Serial Tales, by eminent authors; Home and Foreign Intelligence; Extracts from London and Provincial Papers and Magazines; Complete Market Reports; Choice Tit-bits; Humerous Random Readings; Jottings from Scientific Reviews; Original Articles on subjects of local interest, &c., &c., forming altogether the most complete and interesting Weekly Newspaper published in the above mentioned divisions.

ROCHESTER AND CHATHAM JOURNAL, And MID-KENT ADVERTISER.

ESTABLISHED 1854. SATURDAY, PRICE ONE PENNY. LIBERAL-CONSERVATIVE.

The JOURNAL is the only paper printed in Rochester; and has the widest circulation throughout Rochester, Chatham, Strood, Brompton, New Brompton, Gillingham, Rainham, and the neighbourhoods (population 80,000). It has the largest circulation of any Conservative paper in Kent. The JOURNAL is generally recognised as the leading and most popular newspaper of the "Towns," and is patronised by all the Nobility, Clergy, Magistracy, and Gentry; by Landowners and Occupiers, Merchants, Bankers, and Tradespeople. It therefore, beyond doubt, offers to Solicitors, Auctioneers, Estate and Land Agents, Public Companies, and every class of Traders, the best opportunity of laying their proposals before the inhabitants of the district, in which it is universally read. For placing before the public Business Advertisements its medium is unequalled. Its advertising columns contain all the Government notices, and contracts for the Chatham district.

Offices:—St. Margaret's Bank, and 196, High Street, Rochester; and 326, High Street, Chatham.

THE ROCHDALE TIMES.

PUBLISHED TWICE A WEEK..... { WEDNESDAY, FOUR PAGES, ONE HALFPENNY. SATURDAY, EIGHT PAGES, ONE PENNY.

CIRCULATION MORE THAN DOUBLED DURING THE LAST FEW YEARS.

THE Rochdale Times owing to the enterprising manner in which it has been conducted, the Management sparing no expense to increase its circulation and enhance its influence, has now a well-defined position amongst the Lancashire press. Indeed, it is not too much to say that during the last few years no Lancashire journal has made such tremendous strides as the Rochdale Times. This has been achieved by persistent and energetic labour, combined with lavish expenditure when the interests of the Paper demanded it, the result being that in less than six years

THE CIRCULATION HAS BEEN CONSIDERABLY MORE THAN DOUBLED.

The new and attractive features are many and varied. The Times is at once a Family Magazine and a Local Newspaper, and as such is looked forward to every Saturday as a friend in thousands of households. One reason why it has assumed the former position is, because in addition to a well-written Ladies' Column, which we have reason to believe is greatly appreciated, the very best fiction is published in its columns. Original Tales by Novelists in the very first rank, have appeared simultaneously in the Times with the very best Newspapers in the Kingdom, and naturally such enterprise has met with the reward it never fails to secure—INCREASED CIRCULATION. Amongst the Celebrated Writers who have written for the Times are Miss Braddon, Miss Dora Russell, Miss Adeline Sergeant, Mr. Joseph Hatton, Mr. Robert Buchanan, and Mr. William Westall.

By an efficient staff of Reporters, and a trusted galaxy of Correspondents throughout the district, the events transpiring each week are duly collated and recorded. Independent and accurate reports are aimed at, and Political Parties and all sections of the Christian Church alike admit that this characteristic is rigidly adhered to.

AS AN ADVERTISING MEDIUM

The Rochdale Times is admittedly one of the best amongst the penny weekly press, because it is a "live" newspaper, with Fresh News and Racy Fiction, and the public—the great omnipotent omnivorous public—believes in freshness and originality. Believing in originality and freshness they buy the Times to read its News and its Novels, consequently they must see the Advertisements.

Wednesday's Edition has already attained a large circulation, and is, therefore, an excellent Advertising Medium.

Government, Legal, Municipal (Rochdale and Heywood), and Local Board Advertisements appear in the "Rochdale Times."

AUCTIONEERS' ANNOUNCEMENTS CANNOT OBTAIN THOROUGH PUBLICITY UNLESS THEY ARE ADVERTISED IN THE "TIMES."

TO SOLICITORS, AUCTIONEERS, TRADESMEN, AND THE PUBLIC GENERALLY, UNEQUALLED FACILITIES ARE AFFORDED FOR MAKING THEIR INTIMATIONS AND THEIR "WANTS" COMPLETELY KNOWN.

The Longest Legal Notice (Ten Columns in length) ever advertised in Rochdale appeared in the "Times," on the 23rd April, 1881.

THE SCHOOL BOARD CHRONICLE,

AN EDUCATIONAL RECORD AND REVIEW.

ESTABLISHED FEBRUARY, 1871. EVERY SATURDAY. PRICE THREEPENCE.

The SCHOOL BOARD CHRONICLE is the accepted organ of the School Boards throughout England and Wales, and the weekly chronicle of the proceedings of the School Attendance Committees under Lord Sandon's Act. It occupies the position of a "Hansard to the great educational parliament of the United Kingdom," and is filed regularly by subscribers, amongst whom are the President of the Education department and other officials, members and clerks of school boards, school managers, mistresses and masters in board schools, members and clerks of school attendance committees and boards of guardians, school attendance officers, mayors, town clerks, members of Parliament, and many others interested in the great question of national elementary education.

It will thus be seen that Advertisers, through the SCHOOL BOARD CHRONICLE, reach those who have the management of a large number of schools, the carrying out of the arrangements connected with the school buildings, and the entire responsibility of furnishing them with the necessary books, maps, diagrams, school apparatus, furniture and fittings, sanitary and ventilating appliances, warming apparatus, musical instruments, &c.

The SCOTTISH LEADER was established to meet a strong and widely expressed demand. For some time past there had been only one other morning paper in Edinburgh, and its political sympathies were not in accord with those of a large majority of the population.

The SCOTTISH LEADER therefore commenced its career with positive assurances of influential support from all classes of the community, and this, not only in Edinburgh and the district, but throughout Scotland. The arrangements for its circulation are very extensive and carefully organised, and, as an advertising medium, it has taken a place in the foremost rank of Scottish journals.

The SCOTTISH LEADER has a fully equipped staff in all departments, and special arrangements have been made to secure fulness and accuracy in the commercial and money market intelligence. The LONDON OFFICE, 74, FLEET STREET, is connected with the Head Office in Edinburgh by two special telegraph wires.

THE SECULAR REVIEW:

A JOURNAL OF

AGNOSTICISM AND NEO-SECULARISM.

Edited by SALADIN.

THE SECULAR REVIEW is the only Journal of advanced thought of the overt and aggressive order that has broken away from the "Freethought" traditions of Richard Carlile and his school to adopt a policy compatible with the higher moral tone and riper culture of modern times.

THE SECULAR REVIEW contends that liberal thought does not necessarily arrive at the conclusion that all existing institutions should be overturned; and it distinctly repudiates the crude sedition in Politics and the revolting prurience in Sociology which have for so long made popular "Freethought" a hiss and a byword with all whose adherence would be of value.

THE SHETLAND NEWS.

SATURDAY. ONE PENNY. EIGHT PAGES.

INDEPENDENT. ESTABLISHED 1885.

With it being incorporated the ORKNEY & SHETLAND TELEGRAPH,
ESTABLISHED 1876.

The NEWS circulates amongst the fishing population of the Northern Counties. Shetland, which contains a stationary population of 30,000, and a migratory population of 10,000 people, is one of the largest fishing districts in the kingdom. Containing, as it does, full and complete Fishing Reports, the NEWS circulates extensively in the Islands. It is also circulated largely in the chief Scotch towns, and in the British Colonies, amongst natives abroad. The NEWS devotes space to general as well as local news, contains all official advertisements, and is the best Advertising Medium in the County.

THE SHOE & LEATHER RECORD.

Conducted by JOHN T. DAY, late Editor of the "Boot and Shoe Trades Journal."

Publishing Offices: 74—76, GREAT QUEEN STREET, W.C.

Editorial Offices: 30, FINSBURY PAVEMENT, E.C.

Also at GLASGOW, LEEDS, and LEICESTER.

The success of the SHOE AND LEATHER RECORD has been phenomenal. This will best be understood when it is stated that from the very first number the revenue from Subscriptions, Sales (news trade), and Advertisements has shown a substantial excess over an expenditure more liberal than that of any trade paper published in this country. When it is remembered how many fortunes have been lost in attempts to establish trade papers, the instantaneous success of the SHOE AND LEATHER RECORD is all the more remarkable. Its advertising pages are employed by all the best-known Houses in the Trade, and as a medium for the publication of Trade Announcements, the SHOE AND LEATHER RECORD is unequalled.

There is no secrecy attaching either to the reality of the paper's success or to the factors which have brought this success about. As to reality, the Postal Subscription List is open to the inspection of any Advertiser calling at the Head Offices; while as to the reasons of success, these may be expressed very briefly: The SHOE AND LEATHER RECORD is the very best of Trade Papers, and can be bought of any Newsagent for a PENNY A WEEK. Its pages abound with Technical and Commercial Articles written by business men for men of business, and it gives the earliest and most reliable information of Bankruptcies and Private Arrangements, together with Lists of Creditors, as also Notes on Current Topics and Trade News from Correspondents in all parts of the Kingdom.

WEDNESDAYS AND SATURDAYS. PRICE ONE PENNY.

CONSERVATIVE.

THE ONLY ILLUSTRATED PAPER IN THE DISTRICT.

Each issue of the SOUTHPORT STANDARD contains Political Cartoons, Portraits of local and other Celebrities, Sketches and Engravings illustrative of Topics of the Hour, thus marking an era in Provincial Journalism.

The literary contents of the Journal, contributed by an efficient staff of writers, comprise Leaders on general and local subjects, Descriptive Articles, Satirical Sketches and Verses, Serial Stories, Sporting Notes, London Letter, Correspondence, a Ladies' Column, and full reports of all local events of importance. Special attention is paid to Fine Art, Musical, and Dramatic criticism.

The SOUTHPORT STANDARD—being the only Paper in the town owned by private individuals, and not under the control of a Board of Directors interested in other undertakings—is largely read on account of the independence of its tone and the fearlessness of its criticism. It is, therefore,

THE VERY BEST MEDIUM FOR ADVERTISERS, circulating as it does amongst all sections and classes of the local community and district.

PREPARING FOR PUBLICATION.

South American Journal of Commerce.

FOR THE PROMOTION OF BRITISH TRADE IN SPANISH-SPEAKING COUNTRIES.

Published for the Proprietors by W. H. ALLEN & Co., Publishers to the Indian Government, 13, Waterloo Place, Pall Mall, S.W.

Editorial Enquiry & Advertisement Offices—Leadenhall Buildings, Gracechurch St., London, E.C.

Editor and Manager—TH. SIMPSON JONES.

The Spanish-speaking Countries, next to the British Empire, are the richest, largest, and most populous in the world, presenting enormous opportunities and openings for business. Fortunately for British Manufacturers, these territories (including South America) are practically undeveloped. Briefly stated, these areas consist of—Spain, Mexico, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua, Central America, San Salvador, Venezuela, Spanish West India Islands (Cuba, Porto Rico), Haiti, St. Domingo, Ecuador, Bolivia, Peru, Chili, Argentine Republic, Uruguay, U.S., Colombia, Brazil, Philippine and Ladrone Islands, Canary Islands, &c.

The Exports and Imports of these countries are capable of great increase, and the growing respect and appreciation for British Manufactures renders business prospects brighter in these parts of the earth than in other centres of trade. Indeed, the Spanish South American business for the last year or two has developed to such an enormous extent, that it ranks next in importance to the Australian Trades. The recent Treaty between Spain and Great Britain will also stimulate business in Southern Europe and North Africa in favour of British Trade.

Altogether, from various causes and reasons, the present is an admirable opportunity for projecting a new Business Journal, on strictly neutral lines, in the interests of British Merchants and Manufacturers. The SPANISH, MEXICAN, AND SOUTH AMERICAN JOURNAL OF COMMERCE will not interfere with any existing publication, as the general contents will be strictly Mercantile, Commercial, Statistical, and Suggestive. Printed in Spanish and in English, one purpose will predominate, namely, the Promotion of Trade for British Merchants and Manufacturers in New Markets where Spanish is spoken.

The general plan of the Work, the Merchants and Manufacturers associated with the enterprise, the names of ports where trade will be cultivated will be furnished to subscribers and intending Advertisers.

The Work will be issued Monthly, price ONE SHILLING, and supplied by the Publishers to the Trade direct. Subscriptions, the supply to Merchants of sections for their special circulation, will be attended to at LEADENHALL BUILDINGS, GRACECHURCH STREET, E.C., where Advertisements are received and Editorial services rendered.

ST. PANCRAS GAZETTE,

THE ONLY BONA FIDE LOCAL PAPER.

ESTABLISHED 21 YEAR8.

R. & J. WIDDICOMBE, 80, High Street, Camden Town—The only Address.

The ONLY Official Organ of the London School Board, the Licensing Magistrates, and the Metropolitan Board of Works; and the ONLY old-established and bona fide Local Organ and representative of the Parochial and Administrative Boards of St. Pancras and Hampstead, &c.

St. Pancras and the North-West District comprise the area between and inclusive of Hampstead and Highgate in the north to near Holborn in the south, and from Islington to Marylebone east and west.

As there is no other Local Paper in this, the largest and best district of London, it is the only sure means that the public has of speaking through the medium of local intelligence, to all classes of society. It has been recently enlarged and improved, having also added a large London and Provincial connection; and is the leading Local Paper of the Metropolis. No other medium has any comparative entrée with this Gazette's into the social, local, political, professional, and business circles of the district.

CAUTION.—As no other papers represent St. Pancras and the localities detailed above but in a partial manner, and only in conjunction with other remote districts, and cannot and do not give any comparative amount of Local Intelligence with that which this Gazette gives it is obvious that any representations of either equal or larger or better circulation must be FRAUDULENT.

STIRLING OBSERVER

And Midland Counties of Scotland Advertiser.

ESTABLISHED 1836.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY. PRICE 1d.

The STIRLING OBSERVER is the leading County Newspaper in the Scottish Midlands, being read by Landlords, Farmers and Tradesmen. It is especially extensively circulated in Stirlingshire, Perthshire, and Clackmannanshire (Stirling being situated on the confines of these three counties), and exerts a commanding influence in them. Its criticisms of local events—"Men and Measures"—are most thorough, and completely independent.

While the characteristics of a first-class Political and General Newspaper are fully maintained, special prominence is given in the columns of the OBSERVER to Local News, District Intelligence, Agricultural Reports, and Literature.

The OBSERVER, having the largest and widest genuine circulation, and being read by all classes of the community, is unrivalled in the Midland Counties as an Advertising Medium.

PUBLISHERS: DUNCAN & JAMIESON, STIRLING.

"THE STORE:"

A TRADE JOURNAL FOR CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETIES,

And the Official Organ of the Federated Productive Societies of the United Kingdom.

PUBLISHED QUARTERLY

By EDWARD W. GREENING, Granite Buildings, 115 & 117, Cannon Street, London, E.C.

THE STORE is an exceptionally valuable medium for advertisements, as each issue reaches every co-operative society, who are well known as a most important class of large wholesale cash buyers.

Each number contains a variety of information of interest to the committee-men, managers, and other officials connected with the co-operative stores. The articles include leaders on the progress of the co-operative movement, criticisms on the quarterly business meetings of the wholesale and retail societies, and notes on the discussions at the co-operative conferences.

THE STORE, as the official organ of the Co-operative Productive Federation, chronicles the progress and contains the business announcements of the various co-operative productive societies. This feature renders the journal of special interest to the leaders of the co-operative movement.

Each number also contains a carefully-compiled tabulated statement showing the market fluctuations during the quarter. This table has been found of great use to societies for reference. There is also an illustrated article under the head of in which is described trade novelties, inventions, and specialities likely to prove of interest to those who conduct the business of the stores. Manufacturers and Merchants wishing to have such specialities noticed, are requested to submit particulars and samples to the editor. No charge is made for these notices, and it must be distinctly understood that the editor reserves the right to refuse to notice any article submitted to him whether they are advertised in the journal or not, such notices being solely written with a view to interest the readers.

As in other trade journals, the advertisements form an important and interesting feature to the readers. Advertisers are requested to assist in increasing the utility of this part of the journal by giving as full details as possible of their specialities.

THE TEXTILE MANUFACTURER.

MILLOWNERS, MACHINISTS, DYERS, BLEACHERS, PRINTERS, AND FINISHERS.

This Journal embraces every trade of which Cotton, Wool, Silk, Flax, Hemp-Jute, or any other fibrous material forms the basis, and is the only publication in the United Kingdom devoted to the same industries. The TEXTILE MANUFACTURER deals with the Raw Materials, with the Machinery, Apparatus, Tools, and Processes (Illustrated) employed in their conversion, with the Manufactured Goods, and with Chemicals, Dyeing, Dyestuffs, Bleaching, Printing, and Finishing. The statistics relating to Imports and Exports, as also the Prices Current, of each branch, are carefully collected, tabulated, and reviewed, and Monthly Lists of British and Foreign Patents, Bankruptcies, Liquidations, Bills of Sale, &c., are also given, together with a mass of other reliable information of great value; in fact, no subject of interest to those engaged in any department of Textile Manufacture is neglected. The Advertisements are strictly confined to announcements of Machinery, Steam Apparatus, Plant, and other materials used by Manufacturers, Dyers, Bleachers, Printers, and Finishers.

Offices: NEW BRIDGE STREET, MANCHESTER.

Published on the 15th of each Month.

Single copies, 1s. each, posted to Subscribers within the United Kingdom for* Twelve Shillings per annum; to India, Australia, and New Zealand, Fifteen Shillings per annum; and forwarded to any other part of the world for Twelve Shillings *per annum, which also includes postage.

ADVERTISEMENTS

Must be received by the 8th of each Month. All Business Communications must be addressed, and Remittances made payable, to EMMOT & Co., New Bridge Street, Manchester. Scale of Charges for Advertisements will be forwarded on application. A reduction is made on 13 insertions.

Letters relating to Literary part of the Journal to be addressed to the Editors.

Textile Manufacturers being greater users of Steam Power and Machinery than any other class, the Advertisements are confined to announcements of Machinery, Steam Apparatus, Plant, and other materials used in the Cotton, Woollen, Worsted, Silk, Linen, and Jute Trades, and in Dyeing, Bleaching, Printing, and Finishing. By strict adherence to this rule, these Advertisements form quite an illustrated Catalogue of Plant connected with the Trades, and a Guide to Millowners, Dyers, &c., before buying new appliances.

for above Publications. Special Rates given on application.

THE TEXTILE WORLD.

Conducted by W. E. FOX.

Published Monthly, on the 15th each Month.

PRICE SIXPENCE.

Circulates in all parts of the World where Textile Machinery is used.

Is devoted to the subjects of Wool, Cotton, Silk, and Flax Growing, Spinning, Weaving, Dyeing, and Finishing of Worsted, Woollen, and Cotton Fabrics.

Original articles written by specialists on Designing and Cloth Construction, of Plain and Fancy Dress Goods, are provided for the information of readers in the textile trades.

Notices of newest inventions in Textile Machinery, and descriptions of Processes are inserted in the literary columns of the journal.

A reliable list of applications for Patents is given every month.

The Advertisements are well displayed and where blocks can be obtained illustrations are shown.

The TEXTILE WORLD circulates equally in the Cotton, Woollen, and Worsted Districts of Yorkshire, Lancashire, West of England, Scotland, and Abroad.

The TEXTILE WORLD is read with equal interest in the Cotton Mills of Bombay, and the Worsted and Woollen centres of Germany and France.

The rates for Advertisements are cheaper than those of any other technical journal of standing.

Free Copies are sent every Month to most of the principal Hotels and Public Institutions in the Textile Districts in England and Abroad.

TOBY.

London and Suburban WEEKLY Illustrated SATIRICAL PAPER.

The only Journal of the kind published for a population of upwards of four millions.

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY. PRICE 1d.

Amongst the Topics fearlessly commented upon are:—London and Suburban Abuses: Metropolitan, Local Government, School, and Asylum Boards' Extravagances; Vestry, Trustees, Guardians, and Boards' of Works Anomalies; Police Officiousness and Neglect; Civil Service Corruption and Inequalities; Trade Monopolies and Shams; London Depreciation; Political Caucuses and Social Boguses; the Indolent Clergy and Ministry; Sham Relief and Emigration Agencies; Patronage Mongering; Unctuous Reports Criticised; Swindling Prospectuses and Money-Lending "Sharkism;" Professional Beggars, Agitators, and Self Advertisers; and every other form of abuse which comes within the scope of honest denunciation.

Amongst the features are:—Comic Cartoons of Local Events, Portraits of Typical Londoners and Local Celebrities, Weekly; Reports of Meetings—Freemasons, Druids, Buffaloes, and Friendly Societies; Wit, Anecdote, Music; the Drama; Science, Art, Education; Literature (including London publications).

This publication, in all its comments and criticisms, is fearless and fair. It is not the organ of Party or Creed. In fact, as the faithful watch dog gives notice of the approach of danger, and continues the alarm whilst it remains, so will this Journal fearlessly point out and denounce every political and social abuse that would be prejudicial to the London and Suburban public. Whilst having no political, social, sectarian, or local interests to serve, its object will ever be the political, social, moral, and intellectual welfare of the toilers of life.

THE CIRCULATION IS CONSTANTLY INCREASING.

ADVANTAGES TO ADVERTISERS.—TOBY is circulated very largely in the City, the East, West, North and South of London and their several Suburbs.

This Journal, circulating largely amongst Business and Professional Men, as well as amongst Private Families, is in most cases permanently kept for reference on account of its Cartoons, Comic Sketches, and Descriptions, which from time to time deal with Men, Manners, and Institutions in different parts of London and its Suburbs. Thus an advertisement which would be read only once in an ordinary weekly journal is seen again and again.

TREDEGAR GUARDIAN AND WEST MONMOUTHSHIRE ADVERTISER.

Established October, 1886.

Its success has been such as to induce the Proprietors, two months after the appearance of the first number, to considerably enlarge it. It has now a large and rapidly increasing circulation among the Tradesmen, Miners, Iron and Steel Workers in West Monmouthshire, being the only paper printed and published in a district containing over 100,000 people; and consequently this is an exceedingly valuable Medium for Advertising.

ESTABLISHED 1810.

The Largest Circulation of any Cornish Newspaper.

THE BEST FAMILY NEWSPAPER FOR CORNWALL AND WEST OF ENGLAND.

THE WEST BRITON AND CORNWALL ADVERTISER.

Published at Truro on Monday and Thursday Afternoons. Monday, ½d.; Thursday, 1d.

The WEST BRITON is recognised as the Leading and most Influential Journal of the County of Cornwall. It is very extensively circulated in nearly every town and parish in Cornwall on the days of publication, and throughout the West of England, in London, the North, and in many other parts of the United Kingdom, on the following mornings. Special attention is devoted to local, mining, and agricultural news, which is supplied by nearly two hundred correspondents in different parts of the county.

MONDAY'S Edition contains all the Monday's markets, and a general summary of the latest local and general news; also forty-eight hours' later news respecting the stocks, foreign bonds, &c., than is to be obtained in any other newspaper published or sold in Cornwall.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The last Government Stamp Returns showed that the WEST BRITON AND CORNWALL ADVERTISER stood at the head of the stamped newspapers published in the four western counties—Cornwall, Devon, Somerset, and Dorset. Since the reduction in the price of the WEST BRITON, the circulation of each issue has vastly increased. The WEST BRITON circulates amongst all classes of the community, and especially amongst the trading, agricultural, mining, and commercial classes.

The best Advertising Medium in the West of England. Charges Moderate. Special Terms for Series.

COUNTY OF SUSSEX AND SOUTH OF ENGLAND.

WEST SUSSEX GAZETTE.

It is a popular county Newspaper, published every Thursday, and having a circulation of between 30,000 and 40,000 weekly in Sussex, Surrey, and Hampshire. It is a famous paper for Advertisements, containing a weekly average of over 800, far exceeding any other county newspaper in the South of England.

The WEST SUSSEX GAZETTE was established in 1853, before the repeal of the newspaper stamp duty. At that period the proprietor was much encouraged in the enterprise by letters from Lord Brougham, Mr. Cobden, Mr. Gladstone, Mr. Bright, Lord Stanley (now the Earl of Derby), and other advocates of the repeal of the taxes on knowledge; and, when these taxes were swept away, the then struggling newspaper, having held its ground, took the start of all local contemporaries and has now acquired the extraordinary weekly circulation of between 30,000 and 40,000. The paper is printed by Marinoni's Web Machine, at the rate of 8,000 an hour, and there are 300 agents over the district of its circulation. It can be had at all Smith and Son's local bookstalls, and enjoys a first-class local reputation.

Printed by MITCHELL AND Co., ARUNDEL, SUSSEX, where the Chief Office is situate.

The Chichester Publishing Office is in South Street. Brighton—55 East Street. Guildford—80, High Street.

Advertisements can be sent to either office, or to any of the Agents.

THE WESTERN DAILY MERCURY.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

Occupies the Foremost Position in the West of England.

Its Foreign and Home Telegrams are unsurpassed by any provincial paper in the country, and by means of Special Representation in the House of Commons, and by its numerous band of Correspondents at Home and Abroad, it keeps itself thoroughly abreast of all the questions of the day. The Circulation of the WESTERN DAILY MERCURY throughout the two Counties of Devon and Cornwall makes it an Invaluable Medium for reaching the Large and Wealthy Classes residing in that part of England.

THE WEEKLY MERCURY.

An Eight-Page Weekly Paper, Published on Fridays and Saturdays.

Has a very large circulation amongst the numerous Agricultural, Mining, Shipping, and Industrial Classes who support the Weekly Press. Its Publication on Friday for Saturday enables it to reach and circulate in remote Country Districts out of the reach of a Daily Paper. The features of a portion of a Serial Tale, by a celebrated Author; numerous illustrated sketches, and family and other readings, invest the WEEKLY MERCURY with a charm not to be found in any other publication in the District. London Offices: 80, FLEET STREET. The WESTERN DAILY MERCURY and the WEEKLY MERCURY are published at PLYMOUTH (Head Office), 9, Frankfort Street; DEVONPORT, 90, Fore Street; BODMIN (Cornwall), 10, Fore Street.

WESTERN GAZETTE & FLYING POST.

ESTABLISHED 1736.

Published on Friday (News and Advertisements must be received by 3 p.m. on Thursday).

PRICE ONE PENNY.

This is one of the oldest papers in the West. It is an eight-page sheet, much larger than Times size, packed closely with local advertisements and news, and a carefully written summary of foreign, farming, gardening, ecclesiastical, and general news. It contains a LARGER NUMBER OF ADVERTISEMENTS than any other paper published within fifty miles of Yeovil.

The growth of the CIRCULATION of the WESTERN GAZETTE is entirely without precedent in the West of England. The sale now averages nearly THIRTY-SIX THOUSAND COPIES PER WEEK.

No such issue is claimed for any other paper in the four counties in which the WESTERN GAZETTE is circulated—Somerset, Dorset, Wilts, and Hants. The circulation has become so great that the Proprietors have been compelled to erect one of the famous "Victory" Printing and Folding Machines. The WESTERN GAZETTE is one of the few country weekly newspapers for whose production so rapid, costly, and complete an apparatus has been provided. The extension of the circulation of the GAZETTE over an enormous area has compelled the proprietors to issue four separate editions for different counties. Every advertisement is inserted in all the editions at the one charge. The editions are as follow:—

First or Hampshire Edition.
Published by T. J. Powell, Oval House, Bournemouth.

Second or Dorset Edition.
Published by C. W. Millard, Blandford.

Third or Wiltshire Edition.
Published by E. Hillier, Fisherton Street, Salisbury.

Fourth and Fifth or Somerset Editions.
Published by the "WESTERN GAZETTE" Company, Yeovil.

All communications should be addressed to the Head Office at Yeovil.

WESTERN HERALD,

With which is incorporated the LISKEARD GAZETTE.

Established 1855. Published every Saturday Morning. Price 1d.

Has a steadily increasing circulation, and being the largest and first paper published in Liskeard, it will be found one of the Best Advertising Mediums in East Cornwall.

The WESTMEATH INDEPENDENT is one of the oldest-established papers in the County Westmeath. Established 1846. Being published in Athlone, which is the central town of Ireland. It circulates in Four Counties, which border on that town, viz., King's Co., Roscommon, Longford, and Westmeath. The low price (One Penny) obtains for it a wide circulation, as all the other papers in any of the Counties mentioned are either twopence or threepence per copy. It is thus the Best Advertising Medium for Counties Roscommon, Westmeath, Longford, and Kings Co.

WILLIAM WALKER & SONS, Otley, Yorkshire.

The weekly journal for Mid-Yorkshire is the WHARFEDALE and AIREDALE OBSERVER, 56 columns of 23 inches.

In the populous and important Parliamentary Division of Otley, with 56,000 inhabitants, the OBSERVER has an extensive sale, and is recognized as the leading newspaper of the district. It also enjoys a very considerable circulation in the populous towns of the Parliamentary Divisions of Shipley, Pudsey, Ripon, and Skipton, so that advertisements appearing in its columns appeal to a population of not less than from 100,000 to 120,000.

Essentially a local newspaper, the OBSERVER finds its way into nearly every home, and by the healthy tone of its serial stories which appear from time to time, and the well-selected miscellaneous literature it contains, it is exceedingly popular in each of the following towns and villages:—Adel-cum-Eccup, Allwoodly, Addingham, Arthington, Askwith, Baildon, Bingley, Blubberhouses, Bramhope, Bradford, Burley-in-Wharfedale, Carlton, Calverly, Castley, Clifton-with-Norwood, Denton, Dunkeswick, Esholt, Farnley, Fewston, Guiseley, Harewood, Haverah Park, Hawksworth, Horsforth, Ilkley, Leeds, Leathley, Lindlay, Morton, Menston, Myddelton, Nowall-with-Clifton, Otley, Pool, Rawdon, Rigton, Stainburn, Timble Great, Timble Little, Weardley, Weeton, Weston, Windhill, Wigton, Wyke, Yeadon.

The OBSERVER is the only paper entirely printed in Wharfedale, and in point of Circulation it far exceeds that of all other papers in the district put together. It contains ample and reliable reports of all the news of the district, and in this regard it is practically without a competitor. It numbers amongst its subscribers clergymen, the aristocracy, gentlemen, farmers, manufacturers, tradesmen, and a very large proportion of the working classes, and thus offers to auctioneers, solicitors, tradesmen, and others a really valuable medium for advertising. In the populous centres of Otley, Ilkley, Horsforth, Yeadon, Guiseley, Baildon, Bingley, Shipley, Saltaire, &c., the OBSERVER enjoys a circulation greater than that of any other journal—a fact which advertisers will do well to bear in mind.

The proprietors make a special point of clearly printing and advantageously displaying every Advertisement entrusted to them, and they respectfully solicit your order to insert your announcements.

THE WHITEHALL REVIEW.

A Journal of Politics, Literature, Art, and the Drama.

EVERY THURSDAY. PRICE SIXPENCE.

THIS well-known Paper was established in 1876.

Its LITERARY STAFF is one of the ablest in London, the best Journalistic pens contributing POLITICAL, SOCIAL, and GENERAL ARTICLES to its columns.

Much attention is given to LITERATURE in all its branches, and its Notices of New Books are full and impartial. NEW NOVELS get the earliest notice.

Its ART NOTICES are written by the most competent Critics of the day.

Its THEATRICAL CRITICISMS, Reviews, and Notes are contributed by able Dramatic Writers.

Its MILITARY and NAVAL NEWS is of an early and authentic character, and recognised by both branches of the service.

MONEY and FINANCIAL matters are treated in an independent manner.

FASHIONS and LADIES' DRESS, with other subjects of interest to the household, are specially treated by an able Paris correspondent.

The NOTES of the Whitehall Review, while sparkling and original, are entirely free from all taint of scurrilous personality. They deal with general subjects, including home and foreign news.

A SHORT STORY, each being complete in a number, is one of the leading features of the paper.

THE WHITEHAVEN NEWS is the principal Newspaper in Whitehaven, the centre and capital of the flourishing Agricultural, Commercial, and Mining District of West Cumberland. No expense is spared in procuring the latest intelligence, and the full reports of late news it gives have long been a distinguishing feature of the paper.

THE WHITEHAVEN NEWS is recognised as the leading medium for all announcements of a public nature, in the extensive district in which it circulates, including Cumberland, Westmoreland, and North Lancashire, as a glance at its columns will at once show. The paper has THE LARGEST CIRCULATION BY SOME THOUSANDS of any Newspaper published in Whitehaven, and is read by all classes. It is therefore THE BEST LOCAL PAPER FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.

THE WHITEHAVEN NEWS OFFICES at Whitehaven, Workington, and Maryport, are connected by Telephone, and the Telegraph is also freely used for news when necessary.

Telegraphic Address: "Courier, Wimbledon."
Chief Office: Hartfield Road, Wimbledon.

This Paper is the most successful Journal published in the large, important, and wealthy town of Wimbledon. It is a full-sized eight-page Family Newspaper, and has been no less than three times enlarged during the past two years, which fact alone should be sufficient to prove its indispensable prosperity. To take the population of Wimbledon alone, where our circulation is exceedingly large, and far outstrips that of any other Paper circulating in the locality, it is estimated at over Twenty Thousand, consisting chiefly of wealthy middle and high-class inhabitants, before whom it is most profitable for Advertisers to bring their announcements. To prove that Advertisements in these columns are a profitable source of investment, the Proprietor is open to offer a Series of TEN INSERTIONS at a strictly nominal charge.

WINE AND SPIRIT TRADE CIRCULAR

(RIDLEY & CO.'S)

Is the oldest and accredited representative of the Wholesale Trade, to the interests of which it is exclusively devoted.

It has an extensive circulation amongst Shippers, Wholesale Dealers, and Exporters in London and the Provinces; also in France, Spain, Portugal, Germany, Australia, America, and India.

RIDLEY'S CIRCULAR

Has, since its commencement, been the recognised authority on all Trade matters in the United Kingdom, and deals exhaustively with all subjects in connection with Wines and Spirits.

An American contemporary, reviewing it, says:—

"It is published in London, England, and is the oldest accredited organ, so to speak, of the Wholesale Trade. It was established in London in 1848, and is recognised throughout the world as an authority in all matters pertaining to Wines and Liquors. Its home and foreign correspondence is profuse, and its statistics and market reports are elaborate and reliable. Its editorials are ornate and forcible. Each number is a kind of encyclopædia within itself."

THE ONLY INDEPENDENT PAPER IN WREXHAM.

WREXHAM ARGUS AND NORTH WALES ATHLETE.

PRICE TWOPENCE.

SOCIETY GOSSIP, ATHLETIC NOTES, TRENCHANT CRITICISMS.

The only Journal of the kind Published in Wales.

Finds its way into every house and place of business of any respectability or standing in the District.

Splendid Medium for Advertisers who want their Advertisements to be read.

A Special Favourite with the Ladies.

A recognized authority on Football, Cricket, Volunteering, Wheeling, and kindred sports.

PRESS OPINIONS.

The Leeds Evening Express says:—"The ARGUS should command plentiful patronage, not only in Wrexham, but the Principality generally. Local and general matters are treated of with spirit, smartness, and intelligence, and cricket, lawn tennis, and other sports receive special attention. Several illustrated tales and other contributions appear in the journal, which is creditably got up."

The Liverpool Daily Post says:—"Athletics in the Principality are well looked after by the WREXHAM ARGUS AND NORTH WALES ATHLETE, an illustrated publication, which is conducted with much ability. Football takes a foremost place in its columns, and social and amusing topics are racily dealt with."

The Oswestry Advertiser says:—"Local topics are dealt with, and (as its name implies) special prominence is given to notes on physical exercise in its many forms, such as wheeling, volunteering, cricket, bowling, lawn tennis, and football. The notes are written in a terse and lively style."

The Wakefield Free Press and West Riding Advertiser says:—"The 'get up' of the ARGUS is good, and altogether the paper is of a very readable character. Athletes generally will find in it much matter of interest, whilst locally we must predict for it great popularity."

The Wrexham Advertiser says:—"Points of local interest are touched upon in a happy style."

Eddowes's Shrewsbury Journal says:—"It is really charmingly got up, and eminently readable. There is quite a wealth of local news, and the 'Notes and Notions' and 'Whispers and Suggestions' are smartly and tersely written. Not by any means the least interesting portion is that devoted to 'Sports and Pastimes,' and the 'Notes by Spec' will be read with pleasure."

Y Llan says:—"In addition to being very interesting reading, it contains much that is practical and beneficial, and reflects the highest credit upon the Editor, Mr. A. W. Berkeley. The printing is carefully and neatly executed, and Mr. Edwin Jones deserves much praise for the superiority of his work."

WHEN TO ADVERTISE.

There's nothing on earth so mysteriously funny as a newspaper advertisement. ıe prime, first, last, and the all-the-time object of an advertisement is to draw stom. It is not, was not, and never will be designed for any other human purpose. the merchant waits till the busy season comes, and his store is so full of customers at he can't get his hat off, and then he rushes to the newspapers and puts in his vertisement. When the dull season gets along and there is no trade, and he ants to sell goods so bad he can't pay his rent, he takes out his advertisement. ıat is, some of them do; but occasionally a level-headed merchant puts in a bigger ıe and scoops all the business, while his neighbours are making mortgages to pay the :s bill. There are times when you couldn't stop people from buying everything in .e store if you planted a cannon behind the door, and that's the time the advertise-ent is sent out on its holy mission. It makes light work for the advertisement, for a ıalk sign on the side walk could do all that was needed and have a half-holiday six ays in the week; but who wants to favour an advertisement? They are built to do ard work, and should be sent out in the dull days, when the customer has to be nocked down with hard facts and kicked insensible with bankrupt reductions and ragged in with irresistible slaughter of prices before he will spend a cent. That's the im and end of an advertisement, and, if ever you open a store, don't try and get them) come when they are already blocking up the doorway and sticking out of the rindows, but give them your advertisement right between the eyes in the dull season, nd you will wax rich and own a fast horse, and perhaps be able to smoke a good cigar nce or twice a year. Write this down where you'll fall over it every day. The time) draw business is when you want business, and not when you have more business ıan you can attend to already.

"WHEN SHALL I STOP ADVERTISING?"

Eight successful business men were asked when, in their judgment, it would do o "Stop Advertising." Hear their answers to "My Lord West," and take their dvice:—

1st. "When population ceases to multiply, and the generations that crowd on ıfter you, and never heard of you, stop coming on."

2nd. "When you have convinced everybody whose life will touch yours, that you ıave better goods and lower prices than they can ever get anywhere outside of your :tore."

3rd. "When you perceive it to be the rule that men who never advertise are out-:tripping their neighbours in the same line of business."

4th. "When men stop making fortunes right in your very sight, solely through :he discreet use of this mighty agent."

5th. "When you can forget the words of the shrewdest and most successful business men concerning the main cause of their prosperity."

6th. "When every man has become so thoroughly a creature of habit that he will certainly buy this year where he bought last year."

7th. "When younger, and fresher, and spunkier concerns in your line cease starting up and using the newspapers in telling the people how much better they can do for them than you can."

8th. "When you would rather have your own way and fail, than take advice and win."

THE MAN WHO ADVERTISED JUDICIOUSLY.

A panic dire was spreading fast,
As through a Western city passed
A merchant, grasping in his hand
A banner with this legend grand:
Advertise Judiciously!
Houses were failing that seemed staunch:
The crash came like an avalanche,
But still the buyers thronged his store
While he aloft the banner bore:
Advertise Judiciously!
The panic past, this merchant bold
Had made about a ton of gold.
He gave his business to his son,
But this one thing insisted on:
Advertise Judiciously!
The merchant and his loving wife,
Are leading now a quiet life,
With happiness and riches blest,
Their coat-of-arms on 'blazoned crest
"Advertise Judiciously!"

Work in well doing' Do not say you have no tools. The basest of animalcules, the spider itself, has a spinning jenny, and warping mill, and power loom within its head. Every being that can live can do something. This let him do. Tools! hast thou not a brain, furnished, furnishable, with some glimmerings of light, and three fingers to hold a pen withal? Never, since Aaron's rod went out of practice, or ever before it, was there such a wonder-working tool. Greater than all recorded miracles have been performed by the pen. In commercial life, also, the pen is very powerful. By advertisement and circular buyers can be reached in every parish, and in all parts of the world.—"Business," by J. Platt.

Tacitus remarked "that the gods are on the side of the strongest;"—a sentence which Bonaparte unconsciously translated, when he said, "he had noticed that Providence always favoured the heaviest battalion." In the mercantile world—as it is within everybody's experience to verify—the strongest and most successful men are those who keep themselves and their calling unceasingly before the public eye. What says Horace?—

"Sounds which address the ear are lost and die
In one short hour; but that which strikes the eye
Lives long upon the mind; the faithful sight
Engraves the knowledge with a beam of light."

An experienced man said recently: "There are but few lines of business in which success can be attained without the aid of the newspapers. There is nothing so effective in presenting the merits of an article as an attractive advertisement; it reaches many people whose attention cannot be commanded in any other way, and who are finally influenced by the repeated announcements of the persistent advertiser. By these means a demand can be created for special brands of even the commonest staple articles, for repeated inquiries from their customers will compel retail dealers to order the goods called for, and so that which has been long in the market may be replaced by an article, possibly not any better, but the virtues of which are constantly before the people. Having established a trade, don't stop advertising, unless you are willing to lose the ground already gained."

A PREACHER WANTED.

IN an old number of the Monthly Mirror, is to be found the following singular ertisement:—

"Wanted, for a newly erected chapel, near Grosvenor Square, a gentleman of ant manners, and insinuating address, to conduct the theological department to a ied audience. It is not necessary that he believe in the Thirty-nine Articles; but s expected that he should possess a white hand and a diamond ring; he will be ected to leave out vulgar ideas, and denunciations against polite vices which he may t with in the Bible; and, upon no account, be guilty of wounding the ears of his itory with the words h——ll or d——n. One who lisps, is near-sighted, and who a due regard for amiable weaknesses, will be preferred.

"N.B.—If he is of pleasing and accommodating manners, he will have a chance of ig introduced to the first company, and three card parties every Sunday evening. who knows a few college jokes, or who has been a Chaplain to the Whip Club will preferred. He will have no occasion to administer Baptism, &c., &c., there being old gentleman employed, who, on account of extreme distress, has agreed, for ten nds per annum, to preach in the afternoon, and do all the underwork.—Letters must addressed to James Speculate, Esq., Surveyor's Office, New Square, Mary-le-bone."

WOOD PAVEMENT.

THE introduction of wood pavement for the streets was evidently disliked by the sons who inserted the following advertisement in the Times of 1851:—

"Wood pavement.—All poor and distressed cabriolet proprietors and others, eresoever dispersed, are particularly requested to Forward to us immediately oved Accounts in writing of all Accidents to and Deaths of Horses and Personal and ier Casualties, in order that the several parishes may respectfully, in the first place, extra-judicially called to repay all damages (at our offices), within one calendar nth of our respective application, or otherwise have proceedings taken against them pectively in the County Courts, or under superior jurisdictions, and be so judicially d speedily made to pay any account of entering into ex-parte contracts rendering life d limb and travelling generally unsafe and dangerous in the extreme, and so con-uing the bad state of the wood pavement; for no contracts can be lawful and right less impliedly perused and approved of on behalf of the public generally.

"Cole and Scott, Solicitors, 12, Furnival's Inn and Notting Hill.

A NEWSPAPER is a window through which men look out on all that is going on in the rld. Without a newspaper a man is shut up in a small room, and knows little or thing of what is happening outside of himself. In our daily newspapers, we keep ce with history and record it. * * * A good newspaper will keep a sensible man sympathy with the world's current history. It is an ever-unfolding encyclopædia; unbound book forever issuing and never finished.

IN an advertisement it is allowed to every man to speak well of himself, but I know t why he should assume the privilege of censuring his neighbour. He may proclaim s own virtue or skill, but ought not to exclude others from the same pretensions. very man that advertises his own excellence should write with some consciousness of character which dares to call the attention of the public. He should remember that s name is to stand in the same paper with those of the King of Prussia and the mperor of Germany, and endeavour to make himself worthy of such association.—r. Samuel Johnson.

AMERICAN ADVERTISEMENTS.

Watson, in his annals of Philadelphia, remarks:—"It may surprise some of the present generation to learn that some of those aged persons whom they may now see have teeth which were originally in the heads of others. I have seen a printed advertisement of the year 1784, wherein Dr. Le Mayeur, dentist, proposes to the citizens of Philadelphia to transplant teeth; stating therein that he has successfully transplanted 123 teeth in the preceding six months. At the same time he offers two guineas for every tooth which may be offered to him by persons disposed to sell their front teeth or any of them." This was quite a novelty in Philadelphia; the proper care of the teeth was ill understood then. (Indeed, dentists were few then, even in Paris and London.) He had, however, great success in Philadelphia, and went away with a great deal of our patricians' money.

A DENTIST'S CIRCULAR.

Here is another curiosity of advertising, extracted from the circular of a New York dentist to young ladies about to be married:—"Having heard the happy news of your approaching marriage, I have the pleasure of offering you my services in setting your teeth in complete order, as per annexed schedule of prices. This operation, which is useful in all ordinary events of life, is indispensable under the present circumstances. The first impressions of married life are ineffaceable, and their consequences of the gravest gravity. I, therefore, cannot too strongly advise you to have your teeth thoroughly cleaned by a skilful and conscientious practitioner."

ADVERTISING OUT WEST.

The advertiser who inserted the following advertisement in the Idaho Statesman was evidently rather annoyed at some enterprising competitor.

"Opposition is the life of business!

"Work for nothing and find yourself, Mr. R——, and I am with you, you d— old rascal.

"Here we go!

Horses kept to hay per night	$1.00
Saddle horses per day	1.00
Two horses for buggy per day	2.50
Oats per pound	5

Call any time, day or night!"

"A new era! Wool mattresses in Grande Ronde Valley, Oregon. Prices reduced. The cheapest house in the 'burg.' All the creature comforts to be had at 'our house' as they can be had anywhere on the sunny side of the Blue Mountains.

"Are you hungry? Come to our house.

"Are you thirsty? Take a drink.

"Are you weary? Try one of our mattresses.

"Are you sad? I will condole with you.

"Are you glad? I will rejoice with you.

"If you are mad I will go out and—spar with you.

"Come and see me!"

A WARNING.

THE Bahama Gazette, June 30, 1795, contains this curious advertisement:—"Whereas, the subscriber, through the pernicious habit of drinking, has greatly hurt himself in purse and person, and rendered himself odious to all his acquaintances, and finding there is no possibility of breaking off from the said practice, but through the impossibility to find liquor; he, therefore, begs and prays that no persons will sell him for money or on trust, any sort of spirituous liquors, as he will not in future pay for it, but will prosecute any one for an action of damage against the temporal and eternal interests of the public's humble, serious and sober servant, JAMES CHALMERS.

"Witness, William Andrew, Nassau, June 28, 1795."

STOLEN PROPERTY.

THERE is sometimes a vein of humour running through advertisements relating to stolen goods, especially when the owners may have been more anxious for their restoration than for prosecuting the thieves. Thus: "M. Lefeuve, 48, Bis Rue Basse due Rempart, begs the lady in black, who does not like draughts in omnibusses, kindly to send him the purse she found in his pocket on the 1st of February, and to keep the money it contained as a reward for her cleverness." An American actor is very considerate:—"If the party who took a fancy to my overcoat was influenced by the inclemency of the weather, all right; but if by commercial considerations, I am ready to negociate for its return." An advertiser in the New York Herald says:—"The fat gentleman who assisted on Friday evening, on the Seventh Avenue car, can make fifty dollars by returning the watch. Better take it!"

BOARDERS WANTED.

A WELL-KNOWN boarding-house keeper in Princetown, Indiana, thus advertised his wants:—

"Wanted—Two or three boarders of a decent stripe, such as go to bed at nine o'clock without a pipe or a cigar in their mouth. I wish them to rise in time to wash their faces and comb their heads before breakfast. When they put on their boots, to draw down their pants over them, and not have them rumpled about their knees, which is a sure sign of a rowdy. When they sit down to rest or warm by the fire, not to put their feet on the mantelpiece or bureau, not to spit in the bread tray. And to pay their board weekly, monthly, or quarterly—as may be agreed upon—with a smile upon their faces, and they will find me as pleasant as an opposum (sic) up a persimmon tree."

PUBLICITY.

THE American remedy to induce people to pay their pew-rents is publicity, if we may judge from the following notification:—

"Notice is hereby given that George W. Clinton has made default in the payment of the sum, which has been duly assessed by the Vestry of Trinity Church, for the purpose of paying the annual salary of the Rector, and for the contingent expenses of the said church, upon the pew, No. 51, in the church edifice, at the corner of Mohawk and Washington Streets; part of which sum became due 12 months before the publication of this notice:—And that, by reason of such default, the said pew, of the above-named G. W. Clinton, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder, at the said Church, on the 14th day of September, 1860, at 10 o'clock in the afternoon.

Buffalo, June 21, 1860." DENNIS BOWEN, Attorney.

EXTRAORDINARY STATEMENT.

A VENDOR of Quack Medicine thus advertises in the New York Sun:—

"Tried friends the best of friends. Since the suspension of H. C. Thorpe's advertisements, the number of deaths by consumption is truly astonishing; advertisements will now appear for the benefit of the afflicted."

GOOD SERVANTS SCARCE.

FROM the following announcement, which appeared in a paper in Syracuse, U.S., in 1869, it would appear that good servants were somewhat scarce:—

"Wanted—A Good Servant Girl, to whom the highest wages will be paid. Having had great difficulty in procuring good help, on account of the misfortune of having seven small children, we will poison, drown, or otherwise make away with five of them on application of a first-class servant girl.—Apply at the office of this paper."

A BAKER'S ADDRESS TO HIS CUSTOMERS.

A NEW YORK Baker issued the following plain-speaking address to his patrons:—

"George Ott, 262, North Second Street, respectfully informs his customers and friends in general, that his bakehouse is in full operation, and that he is always prepared to supply them with loaf bread, crackers, pilot bread, fresh rusks, &c., &c.

"On his part nothing shall be left undone to give complete satisfaction to his customers, and, in return, he expects them to pay punctually when their bills are presented. Experience having taught him that a disorderly soldier in the ranks and a bad paymaster in a baker's list of customers, are the most troublesome customers a man can have anything to do with, he requests those who do not calculate on paying promptly to oblige him so far to give their custom to a more accommodating baker.

"Being anxious to take a journey for the benefit of his health, which is much impaired, those indebted to him would oblige him very much by making immediate payment; and he requests those who have claims against him to call and receive their money."

HOW TO MANAGE BUSINESS.

THE following advertisement appeared in the New York Herald:—"Aaron Tomkins begs to return his thanks to the many friends who have patronised his stores, and begs a repetition of their favours, and to inform them he has made 14,000 dollars by this year's trade; and to prevent any questions being asked, he begs to tell them how he made it. He made 7,000 dollars by attending to his own business, and 7,000 by letting other people's business alone."

NOVEL ADVERTISING.

An ingenious Yankee has hit upon a new advertising expedient. He has sent the following circular to a tobacco dealer in Boston:—"Dear Sir,—I take the liberty to write to you about a novel way of advertising, that is to have all tobacco seals and stamps in your line of bnsiness tattooed on the person of a man that is now undergoing the process of being tattooed from head to foot. His back is left for this kind of advertising if you would like to have the lower half of his back for any seal or stamp or picture, you can have it for 350 dols. The uper part is for ——, this man is to travel throughout the U. S. The uper part of his back is 500 dols. I have just finished tattooing Mr. Fred Hadly from head to foot which required the time of eight weeks this man will be done in five weeks this work is the neetest best in this line of business if you would like a smaller place than that let me know as the back of his legs is not wholey finished yet it will be done in first-class style this is the third man that I have tattooed all over Mr. George F. 174th year of Publication.
OLDEST REFERENCE BOOK OF THE PEERAGE.

174th year of Publication.
PERSONALLY REVISED BY THE NOBILITY.

DEBRETT'S

PEERAGE, BARONETAGE, KNIGHTAGE, COMPANIONAGE, & TITLES of COURTESY.

ILLUSTRATED WITH UPWARDS OF 1,500 ARMORIAL BEARINGS.

Under the Patronage of HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN, H.R.H. PRINCE OF WALES, both Houses of Parliament, the Courts of Europe, and Government Offices.

DEBRETT, as the oldest, most largely patronised, and most reliable and practical Work of its kind, owes its popularity to the fact that, in the aggregate, it furnishes ten times more information respecting living members of the Nobility and their Collateral Branches, and of the Predecessors to the title, than all other kindred books combined. The details are collated from all parts of the world, and no expense is spared to attain correctness. It is the only Work recording places of Education, Degrees obtained, Naval, Military, or Official Services, Honours gained in War, &c., Residences and Clubs.

The exceptional details obviate the necessity of reference to Clergy, Army, Navy, Law, Medical, Indian, or Civil Service Lists, while thousands of addresses, which are not elsewhere procurable, are given of residents at home and abroad.

The recent additions to the Work consist of brief sketches of the Collateral Branches of Peers and Baronets; a Complete List of Peers' Predecessors, from the date the title was conferred, and in this year's edition, valuable information is furnished concerning the Parentage of the Collateral Branches. The Work has been substantially increased by the addition of the COMPANIONAGE, which includes Biographies of Companions of Orders of Knighthood and of the Indian Empire.

Its value as an Advertising Medium speaks for itself,—by the constant recurrence, extending over years, of advertisements from high-class business houses, public companies, charities, &c., and from the many complimentary letters received from Advertisers; while, as a Work of Reference (and as an Authority, from it being so frequently quoted by the Press, Public Men, &c.), the opinion expressed in the House of Lords by EARL CAIRNS that the Work is "A Depository of Information which I never open without amazement and admiration," is without parallel.

DEBRETT is also subscribed for by all important Clubs and Hotels and Cafés throughout the world, and by the owners of the principal Lines of Steamships.

DEBRETT'S HOUSE OF COMMONS AND THE JUDICIAL BENCH (RECONSTRUCTED THIS YEAR.)

Contains Biographies of every Member of Parliament, Arms fully emblazoned, Residences and Clubs, Church Patronage, &c.—the Judges of the Superior Courts and of County Courts, and Recorders,—of particulars of Counties, Cities, Boroughs, &c., returning Members to Parliament,—names of Returning Officers; Polls at last Election, and engravings of Corporate Arms. With a list of Peers and Peeresses of Great Britain and Ireland, their Surnames, Eldest Sons, Date of Birth, Residences, Clubs, &c.

Applications for Advertisement space should be addressed to the Manager, Mr. S. CHAS. PHILLIPS, who will, if desired, forward a copy of the Work for inspection, and any information required.

DEBRETT'S Works are published at the following prices:—

Royal Edition, Peerage, Baronetage, Knightage, and Companionage, gilt edges and heraldic binding, one vol., cloth, 31s. 6d.; Persian Calf, 35s. 6d.; Morocco, 40s.

AT the present day, when a taste for reading is so universally diffused, the profession of literature presents unusual opportunities for occupation and emolument. The great prizes it offers are still, perhaps, difficult of attainment, but it is certain that nearly everyone with leisure and a moderate capacity for authorship can now ensure adequate remuneration by suitable efforts, if well directed. The New Editions of C. W. DEACON & Co.'s Works fully supply such direction. A leading newspaper observes :—

"Their three volumes are sufficient to start anyone on a successful literary career, if blessed with a fair share of brains."

EXTRACTS FROM OPINIONS OF THE LONDON AND PROVINCIAL PRESS.

COMPOSITION AND STYLE: A HANDBOOK FOR LITERARY STUDENTS.

"Its sterling worth will at once be recognised by 'all sorts and conditions' of authors, to whom it will be a welcome friend on the high road to literary fame."—"Appeals to the highest class of readers."—"A clever manual, for which young authors ought to be grateful, and which even old reviewers may read with advantage."—"Is really and truly all that it professes to be."—"Cannot be too highly recommended to literary students generally."—"Has only to be glanced at to be approved."—"The latest and cleverest of its kind."—"A most comprehensive, admirably got up, and in every way superior handbook, the value of which to the literary student it would be difficult to over-estimate."—"One of the most useful guides to literary success we have ever met with."—"Well deserves an extensive circulation."—"A valuable vade-mecum by which those attempting authorship may attain a sober and sensible style."—"Well written, well printed, and well bound."—"Contains a mass of valuable and useful information, carefully edited and concisely arranged."—"The reader is told how to write a book, and how to send it forth to the public to be read."—"Every style of writing from the plain to the florid is treated thoroughly."—"The examples given to illustrate the progress of English style, from Roger Ascham to John Ruskin, are a capital feature of the volume."—"The extracts are very well chosen and form excellent reading."—"Gems from the writings of leading English authors, concluding with a number of selections from the works of Mr. Ruskin, will help to increase the value of the work. A better chosen set one could hardly imagine."—"The advice given about the details of printing and publishing are such as must be invaluable to young authors."—"A mine of useful data."—"The mysteries of the printer's craft are lucidly explained."—"The well-known firm, to which thousands are indebted, deserves every encouragement in the circulation of a work replete with valuable information."

THE LETTER-WRITER'S VADE-MECUM AND DICTIONARY SUPPLEMENT.

"Is now an established success."—"Messrs. Deacon & Co. have conferred another favour on society by publishing this beautiful little work."—"A more useful and handy book it would be difficult to find."—"It is styled on the title page a 'Dictionary Supplement, and a Complete Handbook of the Epistolary Art.' It is all that and much more."—"Contains a mass of information."—"Anyone who has much correspondence will find it a capital table companion."—"It is to be hoped that it will have that large sale which it so richly merits."—"We are not aware of another book in the field of literature that embodies so much information as this one in so small a compass."

DEACON'S DICTIONARY OF FOREIGN PHRASES AND CLASSICAL QUOTATIONS.

"Messrs. C. W. Deacon & Co. may be congratulated on having provided such a useful library companion."—"Meets a definite and largely prevalent want."—"The frequent appearance in the daily press and in the speeches of public men, both in and out of Parliament, of French, Latin, and Greek idiomatic and proverbial phrases, makes a work of this kind both useful and acceptable as a treasury of reference."—"A praiseworthy enterprise."—"Should have its place in every house and library."—"Writers and readers of current literature, especially the latter, will find it of great use."—"The unique character of this work must render it a perfect treasury of reference."—"A most useful, comprehensive, and cleverly edited little volume."—"Fresher and more comprehensive than most works of the kind."—"A good idea has been well carried out in this exceedingly handy volume."—"Reference is easy."—"Here anyone may find at a glance a quotation that puzzles him."—"The treasures of both the dead languages and those of Continental nations have been classified and tabulated."—"The translations into English are clear and explicit."—"The Latin, Greek, and French lists are full and accurate."—"The French phrases will be found especially useful to those not thoroughly familiar with that language."—"Contains nearly, if not quite, all the Latin, Greek, French, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese, and German words, sayings, and quotations so commonly met with in newspapers, books, magazines, &c."

COMPOSITION AND STYLE:

A HANDBOOK FOR LITERARY STUDENTS,

With a Complete Guide to all matters connected with Printing & Publishing.

EDITED BY R. D. BLACKMAN.

This volume sets forth and illustrates all the rules which should be observed by the young Author. These, if diligently practised, will enable anyone of ordinary intelligence to acquire for himself a clear and forcible style.

By way of introduction, and as a stimulus to the attention of the Student, a comparison is instituted between the opportunities and status of writers in bygone years and those which favour men of letters of the present day. The greatly enhanced material results which now attend a successful literary career are too obvious to need more than a passing mention here.

In the body of the work the Student is first warned against the improprieties which occasionally disfigure the pages even of good writers. In this connection the purely grammatical errors and peculiarities of expression, drawn principally from foreign idioms which must be sedulously avoided by the merest tyro in the art of composition, are treated at such length and with such clearness of example as will ensure their entire future avoidance. The main lines along which the writer must travel to acquire propriety and precision of style are broadly indicated; and the care which is necessary in the employment of synonyms, or nearly synonymous words, is brought home to the Student by suitable instruction.

His attention is then drawn to the proper construction of sentences—the keystone to the arch of perfect composition—and he is afterwards introduced to the select body of authors, who, from the sixteenth century onward to the present time, have gradually and continuously built up our existing English style.

The Student is now in a position to profit by a detailed account of the niceties of composition comprised in the employment of the various figures of speech, to each of which an entire chapter has been devoted.

The foregoing directions are then combined in a general survey of the different kinds of style which mark the great masters in the art, and many sections are employed in placing before the Student the means whereby he may attain to the facile use of whichever of these styles he may prefer.

At each stage of the process he is furnished with abundant examples, culled from the ancient and modern worlds of literature, of the excellencies he should imitate, and of the faults he should avoid; and his judgment is assisted by a lengthy and careful analysis of the style of some of the acknowledged masters of English composition.

Each of these departments has passed through the hands of a well-known Professor of the English language, and the entire work has been revised and edited with the utmost care.

An important feature in the present volume is the section devoted to practical hints on the technical and business aspects of composition and literature. Such information may indeed be found elsewhere in a scattered form, but it has not hitherto been embodied in a work of the present character. The Author is reminded of the necessary observances in the preparation of his MSS., and obtains glimpses, which may be turned to useful account, of the relations he may sustain with editors and publishers. He is shown how to correct his proofs in accordance with the best practice. He receives all needful explanations regarding the sizes and qualities of paper, and the varieties of type used in printing. In case he should achieve a popular success, he is instructed how he may make a large saving by means of stereotyping or electrotyping. He may further derive no inconsiderable advantage from ample suggestions as to binding, advertising, and distributing copies for review. And, finally, his legal rights are clearly set forth in a careful summary of the law of literary copyright. So fully, yet compactly, have all the essential practical points been brought out in this particular section, that no hesitation is felt in applying to the work the title of a Complete Guide to all matters connected with Printing and Publishing.

It is with the assurance that success will crown their earnest endeavours to furnish a useful guide to those about to enter on the pleasant paths of literature, that the Publishers confidently submit this volume to the attention of a discerning public.

THE

Letter-Writer's Vade-Mecum

AND DICTIONARY SUPPLEMENT:

A COMPLETE HANDBOOK TO THE EPISTOLARY ART.

EDITED BY R. D. BLACKMAN.

The great success which attended the previous editions of this work has been such as to justify the publishers in endeavouring so to extend its scope as to appeal to a still larger section of the public than heretofore.

It was felt that something more was needed to secure the ultimate aim of the work; and that to effectually assist those desirous of acquiring facility in the art of Letter-Writing, it was necessary to begin from the very foundation, and, by presenting to them in a convenient and compact form the most useful rules in every subsidiary branch of that art, to enable even the comparatively uneducated amongst them to practise it with ease.

With a view to stimulate curiosity, and to show what delightful results accrue from proficiency in that too rare accomplishment, an account of the most Brilliant Letter-Writers of the World, and of their style and productions, is prefixed to the main body of the work. This is followed by a series of useful hints on those elementary subjects which should first engage the Letter-Writer's notice; and some veritably golden rules are here set forth and illustrated by appropriate and forcible examples.

The next portion of the work is in reality an introduction to Composition and Style in their essential elements, and should receive an attention corresponding to their importance.

At this stage full explanations are inserted on all matters which bear on Punctuation; and a full and useful chapter is introduced on the Blunders and Blemishes that most commonly beset the path of Young Writers in every department, and mar their best endeavours.

The contrast between the well-educated and those who have had fewer opportunities, or who have turned their opportunities to less account, is nowhere more conspicuous and painful than in the region of orthography. Many would confess their deficiency in this respect; and few indeed are they who have never, in writing a letter, felt a moment's hesitation as to the correct spelling of some probably familiar word. Difficulties of spelling relate principally either to Inflected words (as Participles, Plurals of Nouns, etc.) or to Homonyms (words of nearly similar orthography and sound, but often of widely different meaning). The former class, regulated by a number of more or less arbitrary rules, are not to be met with at all in the ordinary dictionary, and the latter are only to be found by a separate and troublesome search. To obviate this great inconvenience, a collection has been made of all those words the spelling of which may be expected to offer any perplexity to the average Letter-Writer, and which are not found in the dictionaries in general use. It contains a complete list of the Participles of Verbs that can present the smallest difficulty as to spelling; every example being referred to the rule which affects it; and a very full list of Homonyms is included. Other points, necessary to be observed, and therefore, useful to the Letter-Writer, for example, the Prepositions proper to be employed after particular Verbs or words possessing verb force are noticed at length.

Some attention has also been given to the correct Pronunciation and Accentuation of certain words which present difficulty in this respect. A list of the most important of these words has been prepared; and it is hoped that a successful effort has been made to convey to the reader as exact an idea of the pronunciation as can possibly be conveyed by symbols. The so frequently embarrassing question of the correct Division of Words is also fully elucidated.

To keep pace with the growing interest felt in technical terms and ideas, a list of those Greek Words, which, either in their original or a modified form, have been pressed into this service, will be found in its proper place.

In order to fully justify the title of a Complete Handbook, a list is given—more complete and exact than any hitherto published—of the Forms of Epistolary Address, with full directions for beginning, concluding, and addressing letters to persons of all degrees, ranks, and denominations. A full account of the Order of their Precedence and the relative social position of the various grades in the service of the Crown is included in this section.

One of the most valuable divisions of the work, considered as a handy book of reference, is that devoted to Postal Information and cognate matters. The mass of details comprised in the many separate Official works on these subjects are here shown in a single section.

The publishers are not aware of any similar work to this, which attempts within the same compass to deal with all the obstacles, little and great, which present themselves to the average Letter-Writer, and which at the same time furnishes him with so much extraneous assistance. In the full expectation that this little volume will be found in every way worthy of being a Constant Companion, it is respectfully offered to the public for their acceptance.

DEACON'S DICTIONARY

OF FOREIGN PHRASES AND CLASSICAL QUOTATIONS:

A Treasury of Reference for Writers and Readers of Current Literature.

EDITED BY R. D. BLACKMAN.

It has been credibly reported in the press that a theatrical audience, having before them a drop curtain representing a Roman Villa, with the word "SALVE" prominently displayed upon it, one of them innocently enquired who was the maker of the salve which he supposed to be thus advertised. This is an extreme and somewhat ludicrous instance of a lack of knowledge which is prevalent to a much greater degree than is generally admitted.

Anyone who has received an education, however meagre, however strictly confined to his native tongue, is credited with a perfect acquaintance with most of the numerous foreign expressions and classical quotations which occur now more frequently than ever in current literature.

It is indeed almost superfluous to point out the fact that by the side of the movement which has set in against the so-called waste of time involved in an exhaustive study of the classical languages, there never was a period when more frequent use was made of expressions and quotations drawn from these sources. Although the number of Members of Parliament who can quote off-hand from their Iliad or Æneid, or Horace, is fewer by far than half-a-century ago, yet we have quite recently heard an alderman cite Greek; and it may be safely affirmed that those who still possess these accomplishments are not indisposed to display them.

It is, however, chiefly in the columns of the Press and in works of a technical character that numbers of words and allusions, which are "caviare to the general," are to be found. Let us take at random a well-known evening newspaper. In a single leading article extending over little more than a column in length the following seven terms occur:—Ménage, quid pro quo, savoir faire, in camera, amour propre, pro forma, infra dig. No better demonstration could be given of the position we maintain. Even popular works appear under such titles as Fors Clavigera, Sartor Resartus, Altiora Peto, Vestigia, Omnia Vanitas, &c. On the other hand, the decline in the study of the Classics has considerably lessened the number of moderately well-educated persons who might, with the aid of a dictionary, spell out for themselves the meaning of such terms, and many of them are probably in the condition of the youth in the novel, who translated the motto, "Toujours à Toi," by "All Days to Thee;" and of the reporter who took down phonetically the well-known phrase, "Amicus Plato, amicus Socrates, sed major veritas," as "I may cuss Plato, I may cuss Socrates, said Major Veritas." They might even regard au sérieux the late Henry J. Byron's clever absurdity, "Honi soit qui mal y pense"—"On his walk he madly puns."

The difficulty we point out is largely increased because very many of the terms referred to are of the nature of idioms, or proverbial expressions, condensed very frequently to the last degree, and consisting sometimes of a mere catch-word which conveys to the initiated all that was expressed by the original author in a long sentence.

Many collections of sayings and quotations in all languages have been from time to time offered to the public, but hitherto no single work has appeared having for its two-fold object, to assist the perplexed writer in finding any expression or quotation which may for the time escape his memory in its exact form, and on the other hand to enable the general reader at once to refer to the meaning of such expressions as constantly meet his view. These objects have been achieved, in the first place by making a collection, as complete as possible, and in the second, by so arranging its contents that by means of cross references they may be consulted without trouble or loss of time.

The contents of the work are grouped under the heads of the various languages from which they are drawn, and in every case the words and sentences are accompanied by their English equivalents. There are comprised:—LATIN—Words, phrases, mottoes, proverbs, maxims, quotations, pithy expressions, sententious sayings embodying a moral or practical lesson. The great writers have been freely drawn upon. GREEK—Words, phrases, proverbial and other striking sentences, from the poets and prose authors. FRENCH—Words, phrases, idioms, proverbs, moral maxims or observations, and a special collection of original idiomatic sentences, with pertinent examples in English to exhibit their usage. ITALIAN—Words, phrases, proverbs, quotations of practical import; with a very full collection of musical terms. SPANISH—Words, phrases, and especially proverbs and moral reflections. PORTUGUESE—Chiefly proverbs, or moral sayings. GERMAN—Words, phrases, practical maxims, and sentences containing important and elevating thoughts.

In case of the quotations no pains have been spared to ensure their correct transcription and translation, and the meanings of the Foreign Phrases and Expressions have in many instances been brought out by original examples composed expressly for that purpose. Where the meaning of the Foreign Idiom can be better so conveyed, ordinary colloquialisms have been employed. The student of "Comparative Proverbialisms," if we may coin such an expression, will find much material ready to his hand by noting the way in which the same idea has been expressed by different nations in their several languages.

In each department competent assistance has been secured, and the whole work has passed through the hands of an editor well acquainted with the needs of the public in such matters.

ELLIS'S
EDUCATION DIRECTORY
AND SCHOLASTIC GUIDE for 1887.

Thoroughly Revised Substantially Enlarged and Improved.

An indispensable and invaluable Manual of Information and Reference for Parents, Guardians, Students, Clergymen of all Denominations, Members of the Learned Professions, Professors and Principals of Colleges and Schools, Schoolmasters, and all interested in Educational matters.

We question very much whether there is any one such complete Scholastic Guide referring to places of Education. We might go further and say there is no combination of Guides which can approach it. Paterfamilias, no matter what part of the United Kingdom he may reside in, will find ample scope for selection as to where he shall send his boys—no matter what his creed or sect may be, or for what profession or business he wishes them educated. It is one of the most useful publications which have come under our notice.—Christian Globe.

Yearly advances in importance, and is now in every sense a very complete Handbook on the subject of education throughout the united Empire. It even goes further afield, and devotes a section to Schools on the Continent; a useful, as well as a novel, addition to the present issue. The statistical part seems executed with care and accuracy, for which Mr. ELLIS has earned a name. The Directory knows neither politics nor religion, and the information given will be prized by all religious denominations in the country, equal justice being dealt out to all.—Irish Ecclesiastical Gazette.

"THE EMPIRE."

4, BROWN'S BUILDINGS, ST. MARY AXE, LONDON.

The Best English Weekly Paper Published for South Africa.

Price 5d. 10s. 6d. per annum. Post Free 12s. 6d.

THE object of the Proprietors of the "Empire" has always been, and still is, to please all readers by a comprehensive selection of matter.

COLONIAL QUESTIONS.

A familiarity with Colonial Politics will enable the staff to deal intelligently with all questions affecting South Africa which are brought into prominence here, and it will ever be the aim of the paper to promote Colonial interests.

COMMERCIAL.

Commercial and Shipping News will receive careful attention. A gentleman connected with the markets supplies a letter fortnightly, and in addition full information is given of the sales of produce, and of goods exported to the Colony.

FARM.

Recognising the needs of the farming population, steps have been taken to provide practical information on agriculture and farming pursuits generally. Any inquiries put to us will receive prompt attention.

SPORTING.

Our Sporting contributor takes care to keep our readers well acquainted with the events of the sporting world.

GENERAL NEWS.

Our Summary of News gives a concise and complete account of the events of the week and is supplemented by more detailed accounts.

THE "EMPIRE."

A Weekly Commercial and General Newspaper, devoted to Colonial and Imperial interests.

Published for South Africa every Friday.

SUBSCRIPTION:—

Twelve and Sixpence per annum, including Postage.

THE "EMPIRE" possesses a large circulation throughout the Cape Colony, Natal, Orange Free State, and the Transvaal. It thus offers special advantages to the English manufacturers, who, by advertising in its pages, will secure an introduction to the Home Shipper, the Colonial Merchant, and the Colonial Consumer.

Important to Manufacturers, Merchants, and the Export Trade. Contains Valuable Continental Information.

TWENTY-THIRD YEAR OF PUBLICATION. PRICE 15*s.*

THE EXPORT MERCHANT SHIPPERS

Of London, Manchester, Liverpool, Birmingham, Glasgow, Leeds, Edinburgh, Sheffield, Hull, Leith, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Gateshead, Sunderland, Middlesborough, Stockton-on-Tees, Bristol, Cardiff, Dundee, Aberdeen, Belfast, Leicester, Northampton, &c.

THEIR ADDRESSES, RESPECTIVE TRADING PORTS, AND CLASS OF GOODS THEY SHIP ALPHABETICALLY ARRANGED.

EDITED BY A CUSTOM HOUSE EMPLOYÉ.

THIS work is of paramount importance to MANUFACTURERS and EXPORTERS. It contains INFORMATION THAT CANNOT BE OBTAINED FROM ANY OTHER SOURCE.

CORRECTNESS of detail in a Book of this character is of paramount importance, and to attain this, desideratum considerable expense has been incurred, as nearly the whole contents are compiled from information furnished upon personal application.

LEST it should be thought that the particulars given of the list of shippers are paid announcements, the publishers distinctly assert that in no instance has a charge been made for inserting the name of any firm; and they urgently desire that any deficiences or errors may be pointed out to them for future editions.

THE EXPORT AND IMPORT GUIDE.—Showing at a glance, Value of Exports and Imports for 1885-6, Population of Port or Province, Foreign Ports having British Consuls, and the Postal Addresses of the Foreign Consuls in England, &c.

THE whole of the work is clearly printed, and the indices are specially arranged for hasty reference and contain information that cannot be obtained from any other source. The information supplied is classified under five sections.

The total corrections for the last three years exceed thirteen thousand; the additions include ten towns, and valuable statistical information, &c.

TO ADVERTISERS.

Advertisements intended for the New Edition should be forwarded early.

IN addition to the large annual sale amongst the various Merchants and Manufacturers at home and abroad, this Book will be found in most of the principal British and Foreign Hotels and Clubs, Chambers of Commerce, &c., and [by permission] in the Saloons of Steam Ships; thus affording an opportunity to Advertisers of placing their Advertisements immediately before the buyers whose attention they desire to attract—an advantage rarely secured.

"We have received the EXPORT MERCHANT SHIPPERS' AND MANUFACTURERS' GUIDE, a serial now in its 20th year. Very complete as a directory of the leading trade houses in London and the principal English centres of Business, and also contains valuable information about the principal Ports. The leading or exclusive business of each Merchant is indicated, and there is a copious index which makes reference to any part of the work easy."—TIMES.

CHEAP PRESS SPORTING INTELLIGENCE SUPPLY.

TO NEWSPAPER PROPRIETORS AND OTHERS.

"KINGSCLERE,"

Having for a number of years successfully supplied Daily and Weekly Sporting Notes to the Press, is open to extend his connection by supplying

SPECIAL DAILY SERVICE BY WIRE

as follows: —

1st. "KINGSCLERE'S FINALS FROM THE SCENE OF ACTION," which contains his Selections for that day's racing, in time for the Noon Editions. Hundreds of additional readers for this service, as the intelligence is 12 hours later than what appears in the London dailies.

2nd. "KINGSCLERE'S" OVER-NIGHT SELECTIONS FOR NEXT DAY'S RACING—a Supply for Evening or Morning Papers. This Supply is in advance of any London Dailies, and greatly appreciated by those interested in turf matters who are on the outlook for early hints.

 By using these Services one paper made in three months an Increased Daily Sale of 3,000 copies.

WEEKLY SPORTING NOTES of a quarter of a Column, containing "Prognostications," &c., supplied per contra.

Terms for Daily Service (either noon or evening), inclusive of all Telegrams, 10s. per week. Address, "KINGSCLERE," care of Southwark Standard, 18, Newington Causeway, Southwark, London.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.—Several Weekly Newspapers during the Racing Season take the Noon Supply, and publish a Daily Supplement, which is eagerly purchased by Publicans and the Sporting Public, as "KINGSCLERE'S FINALS FROM THE SCENE OF ACTION" at noon would cost any private individual 2s. 6d. each day, whereas the supplement is published for one Halfpenny owing to the local advertisements which are inserted in the Daily Supplement. This Service, inclusive of payment for all Daily Telegrams, only 10s. per week. Every Jobbing Printer should publish a noon sheet; it would soon become good property.

THE MECHANICAL WORLD AND STEAM USERS' JOURNAL

Is devoted to practical information for Makers and Users of all kinds of Machinery, and all interested in Electricity and Industrial Science generally. The Articles describing New Inventions and Improvements are not for sale, but are written free of charge, after personal inspection only. The aim of the Editors of "The Mechanical World" is to make it an "Inquire Within for Everything" connected with the successful Working and Management of Boilers, Engines, and Machinery of all descriptions; and as the Editorial Staff are all practical men, to whom the best sources of information are open, Subscribers can easily get many times the value of their annual payments in answer to inquiries. The low price of the Journal brings it within the reach, not only of the Masters, but of the Managers and Foremen also, the latter of whom often possess much influence in the giving out of orders, and as there are but few industries that can be carried on without the aid of machinery in some form or other, the importance of obtaining reliable information concerning new mechanical appliances cannot be over-rated, as success or failure mainly depends upon the prompt adoption of improvements.

Offices: New Bridge Street, Manchester; and 6, York Street, Covent Garden, London.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY,—PRICE FOURPENCE.

And posted to Subscribers within the United Kingdom on the day of Publication for 17s. 6d. per annum, and being registered for transmission abroad, is forwarded to any other part of the world for 21s. a year, which also includes postage.

CERTIFICATE OF CIRCULATION.

I hereby certify that I have examined the Books relating to the Printing and Publishing Departments, from January 22nd, 1880, to June 30th, 1881, and find that the number of Copies sold during that period was 597,386, or a weekly average of 7,965 copies.

The MERCANTILE NAVY LIST AND MARITIME DIRECTORY.

Compiled from Official and other Sources by ROBERT JACKSON, Esq., Registrar-General of Shipping and Seamen.

The MERCANTILE NAVY LIST AND MARITIME DIRECTORY contains authentic particulars of the Rig, Dimensions, Tonnage, Date and Place of the Build and the Owners' names of ALL British registered Steam and Sailing Vessels. All those interested in British Shipping will find in the MERCANTILE NAVY LIST AND MARITIME DIRECTORY information procured from impartial (official) sources which cannot be obtained from any work of a similar character; and while it is habitually used by Captains of Merchant Ships, when at sea, as a means of adding to the information contained in the British Code List, and, when in port, for ascertaining particulars respecting Officers employed in administering the Merchant Shipping Acts at the several ports, Local Marine Boards, Lloyd's Agents, &c., it is constantly referred to by Shipowners, Merchants, Insurance Companies, Underwriters, Brokers, and Shipping Agents, in furtherance of their business, and for the protection of their interests.

Philips' Standard Atlases.

NEW AND REVISED EDITIONS.

Imperial folio, half-bound Russia, gilt edges, price £5 5s.; full morocco, £6 6s.

Philips' Imperial Library Atlas.

A Series of 51 new and authentic Maps, engraved from original drawings, by J. Bartholomew, F.R.G.S. Edited by Wm. Hughes, F.R.G.S., late Professor of Geography in King's College, London. Accompanied by a valuable Index of Reference.

"Among recent commercial publications has been Philips' Imperial Library Atlas, edited by Mr. Wm. Hughes, F.R.G.S. The size of the maps exceed that of any work of similar pretentions hitherto published in this country, and the employment of the best style of chromo-lithographic printing has enabled great clearness and distinctness of colour to be attained alike as regards the broadest geographical outlines, and the most minute political boundaries. Its preparation is stated to have occupied several years, and every effort seems to have been made to render it solid and complete."—Times.

"This work is the result of careful labour, extending over many years. In drawing, in colouring, and in printing, it comes very near perfection."—Athenæum.

Imperial folio, half-bound morocco, gilt edges, price £3 3s.; full morocco, £4 4s.

Philips' New General Atlas of the World.

A Series of new and authentic Maps, delineating the Natural and Political Divisions of the Empires, Kingdoms, and States of the World. Edited by Wm. Hughes, F.R.G.S. Accompanied by a valuable Index of Reference.

"Philips' General Atlas will rank among the best works of the kind which have been published for many years. The Atlas is in every respect well adapted to meet the requirements of the student and counting-house, and should have a place in every good library."—Observer.

"Philips' General Atlas is one of the most complete and important publications of the time that have ever been issued. The work is accompanied by a valuable Index of Reference. The size of the Maps exceeds that of any other work of similar pretentions hitherto published in this country."—Daily News.

Crown folio, half-bound morocco, gilt edges, price £2 2s.; full morocco, £3.

Philips' Handy General Atlas of the World.

A Comprehensive Series of Maps, illustrating General and Commercial Geography With a New Index of 40,000 names. By J. Bartholomew, F.R.G.S.

"It is really a most valuable work."—Westminster Review.

"We have tested both Maps and Index in many ways, and have not been able to find a single error, and we can therefore pronounce the Atlas very good, while it is certainly anything but dear."—Standard.

"The Maps are clearly printed, carefully coloured, and they appear, so far as we have been able to examine them, to be accurate in all respects."—Scotsman.

"Philips' Handy General Atlas, which has just been published, well deserves its title. It is a 'Handy Atlas' in the best sense of the word. It is not only convenient in size and shape, but it is very complete."—Liverpool Courier.

Crown folio, handsomely half-bound, gilt edges, price £1 1s.
Superior edition, with additional Maps, half-bound Morocco, gilt edges, £1 11s. 6d.

Philips' Popular Atlas of the World.

A Series of authentic Maps of the Principal Countries of the World, constructed from the latest and best authorities, and on a sufficiently large scale to embrace all the information needed in a volume intended for everyday reference. With a complete Consulting Index. By J. Bartholomew, F.R.G.S.

"To judge of the merits of a work like this, it is well to recall the bare outlines thinly furnished with names which appear in some of the maps of fifty years back. This gives an idea of the amount of discovery the half century has witnessed, and of the increased magnitude of the geographer's task. Let us take the map of Africa in this volume. Only a small tract on the latitude of the Gulf of Guinea is marked as quite unexplored. The tract south of this is filled with rivers and lakes, the origin or tributaries of the great Nile or Congo, flanked by numerous mountain heights. . ."—The Bookseller.

ENGLAND

ENGLAND contains forty counties. The shapes of these divisions are very irregular, and the sizes very unequal, as the map shows us. Rutlandshire, the smallest of the English counties, is hardly more than one-fortieth part of the size of Yorkshire, which is the largest. Lincoln, Devon, and Norfolk come next to Yorkshire in order of magnitude; Middlesex, Huntingdon, and Bedford are, next to Rutland, the smallest in dimensions.

The English counties are divided, with reference to relative situation, into six northern, six western, five eastern, nine southern, and fourteen midland counties.

The first column gives the page upon which publisher's own announcement will be found; second column gives page of the general alphabetical list.

BEDFORDSHIRE (County Town, BEDFORD).

A small agricultural county, has for its capital the town of Bedford, on the river Ouse, the birthplace of John Bunyan. Returns two Members to Parliament. Area, 462 square miles. Population, 140,000.

IRELAND.

The third largest island of Europe, lies to the west of Great Britain. The shores of Ireland and Great Britain make the nearest approach to each other between Fair Head and the Mull of Cantire, where the channel is only 13 miles wide, and are furthest apart along the 54th parallel, between Dundalk Bay and Morecambe Bay, a distance of about 140 miles. St. David's Head, the most westerly point of Wales, is about 50 miles distant from Carnsore Point on the opposite Irish coast. The superficial extent of Ireland is 32,531 square miles, or rather more than one third that of England, Scotland, and Wales. Population, 5,174,836, an average of 160 per square mile, or only one third of that of England.

Ireland is divided into four provinces, which are subdivided into thirty-two counties. The provinces are, Leinster in the east, Ulster in the north, Connaught in the west, and Munster in the south. Leinster contains twelve counties:—Dublin, Wicklow, Wexford, Kilkenny, Carlow, Kildare, Queen's County, King's County, Westmeath, Longford, Meath, and Louth. Ulster nine:—Armagh, Down, Antrim, Londonderry, Donegal, Tyrone, Fermanagh, Monaghan, and Cavan. Connaught five:—Leitrim, Roscommon Sligo, Mayo, and Galway. Munster six:—Clare, Limerick, Tipperary, Waterford, Cork, and Kerry.

ANTRIM.—Ulster.

Returns Four Members to Parliament. Area, 1,190 square miles. Population, 200,000. County Town, Belfast.

WALES.

THERE are twelve Welsh counties, six in North Wales, and six in South Wales. The six counties of North Wales are Anglesea, Carnarvon, Denbigh, Flint, Merioneth, and Montgomery. The six counties of South Wales are Cardigan, Radnor, Brecknock, Glamorgan, Carmarthen, and Pembroke. The counties of Flint, Denbigh, and Anglesea, in North Wales, with Glamorgan and Carmarthen, in South Wales, possess coal and iron mines, and Glamorgan has considerable trade.
